Cooperation Is Goal

"It doesn't cost anything to talk," said Virginia Beach City Councilman G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., to cap a brief discussion held at Council's informal meeting Monday regarding merger talks with other south Tidewater cities.

Mayor Frank A. Dusch told Council he had received formal notification from Norfolk Mayor Royce Martin that the city of Norfolk was interested in sitting down at the conference table with three representatives of Virginia Beach, Portsmouth and Chesapeake with an eye toward merger of all four or any of the cities.

There is little doubt that officials of Virginia Beach feel any differently today than they did the last time Martin proposed merger two years ago.

Cutbacks Anticipated

Civilian cutbacks at Virginia Beach military installations will soon probably be felt here, according to the latest information available.

A spokesman in the office of the Secretary of the Navy said the cutback authorization bill for the Navy had not been fully worked out so far, but that "some cuts will undoubtedly be made in Virginia Beach."

The same man said he did not know the full extent of the cuts to be made here and for that reason had no further comment.

Civilian personnel at Oceana Naval Air Station, at Little Creek and at Dam Neck have already been subject to job freeze for some time, and rumors have it that some jobs will be cut or reduced in grade, but nothing definite has been forthcoming.

Spokesmen for the installations say they feel certain that most workers that will be cut from one specific job can fill other vacancies, although perhaps of a lesser grade. They say regular and early retirements and normal attrition will handle most of the cuts, and that few, if any, will actually be lost. They do not feel there will be a real effect on the Virginia Beach economy.

First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing said, "As part of the general reduction in armed forces personnel, there will undoubtedly be a reduction in Virginia Beach, as has happened at every military base in the country, but we're always hopeful the commanding officers will be able to absorb as many as possible by attrition."

A spokesman at Fort Story army installation said there have been some cuts made there, but no massive cuts. He says the small cutback should be taken care of by early retirement incentives and attrition.

Those opposed generally did not wish to get into the expense of such a facility.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

Service Features Downing

Downing

As part of the observance of Veteran's Day next Tuesday, Nov. 11, memorial services will be held at Rosewood Memorial Park in Virginia Beach.

Lt. Col. Eugene P. Millette, chairman of the Mayor's Veteran's Day committee, announced that First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing will be the principal speaker at the ceremonies which begin at 2 p.m.

Rosewood Memorial Park is the only qualifying veteran's cemetery in the area, and for this reason was chosen for the observance.

A military service will be held, with representatives of all military installations taking part, along with units of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans and the Virginia Beach police department.

The Amphibious Forces Band from Little Creek will serve as color guard. Millette said he had also written school Supt. E. E. Brickell asking that all students observing a moment of silence at 11 a.m. Tuesday, the same time as the laying of the wreath at the grave of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

Arrangements for the ceremony were made at a meeting Tuesday by Millette, Mayor Frank Dusch and John Shand, representing the memorial park.

Backing of Local Voters Pleases Middleton, Guy

The winners in Virginia Beach were Linwood Holton, Sargeant Reynolds, Richard Obenshain, B. R. Middleton and Richard Guy.

Holton took the city by nearly 4,000 votes; Reynolds by about 1,500; Obenshain by 129 votes; and Middleton and Guy were successful over their Republican opponents by more than 2,000 votes.

A total of 25,078 turned out at the city's 26 precincts Tuesday, about 5,000 more than had been predicted by both parties. William C. Battle, the Democratic nominee for Governor, polled 10,210 votes in the city to Holton's 14,095. The vote here was considered crucial to the Battle camp, and when it became known that Holton had won in Virginia Beach, his election to the state's highest office was almost assured.

The Virginia Beach vote, with the exception of the Obenshain victory, was almost a carbon copy of the majority of the state, where Holton, Reynolds, and Andrew Miller were the winners for Governor, Lt. Governor and Attorney General, respectively.

Battle won only six Virginia Beach precincts (See tabulation p. 3). With the exception of a narrow victory in Bayside at Shelton Park School and at Seaboard the Battle precincts were in the southern part of the city in the rural areas.

Tabulation of the votes in the city was quick. The first precinct, Creeds, reported at 7:10 p.m. and the last, London Bridge, at 9:30 p.m.

In the Lt. Governor's race Reynolds won 19 precincts to Dawbarn's nine. Reynolds polled 12,571, to Dawbarn's 10,903. In the Attorney General's race Miller and Obenshain each took 13 precincts, and Miller's total was 11,837 to Obenshain's 11,965.

In all three statewide races, minor party candidates fared badly. The highest total (547) was for Rev. Beverly McDowell, running for Governor on the Conservative ticket.

The House of Delegates race in Virginia Beach was not so close. Incumbent B. R. "Bev" Middleton, and newcomer Richard Guy were elected easily, and it was apparent that the voting was right down the party line. Middleton received 12,419; Guy, 11,943, a difference of 476 votes.

Republican Robert Furniss received 9,622; Walter Schwelger, 9,625, a difference of only three votes.

While a strong Republican showing was expected in the statewide races, political observers said Wednesday they had expected it to be somewhat closer in the gubernatorial race.

The Middleton and Guy win had been expected, but the GOP strength is believed to have come mostly because of the support City Treas. V. A. "Jack" Etheridge had given Battle in the past, prior to Etheridge's falling into disfavor politically during a time when the city's top finance officer was accused of certain misdealings regarding taxes.

Wednesday Guy said he was particularly pleased that the voters had expressed confidence in Middleton and in him in spite of the heavy Republican turnout in the statewide races.

"I feel that the vote I received was due to my express intention to represent Virginia Beach actively and effectively and to my interest in involvement in positive programs that will be beneficial to the area," said Guy.

He said he hoped the concerned citizens will express their ideas to him concerning legislation in the "new age of responsive government."

In the statewide races Guy said he does not see the city vote as a great indication of strength of the GOP, but a reflection of a feeling of time for a change.

"I don't believe the local Republican effort really affected the vote very much," he said.

Middleton said of the local race, "It should indicate to Richard and to me that we've got a wide segment of the city to represent, and we certainly have to turn ourselves to all of the people of the city."

Concerning the statewide races, he said it was known fact that he had supported Battle and had been looking forward to working with him.

Specialized Treatment Provided

Five-year-old Rose Ellen Styron is receiving treatment at the Shrine Burns Institute in Cincinnati, Ohio, for injuries she received in an accidental fire at her Pungo Borough home last Wednesday. Authorities said the daughter of the Vernon L. Styron's, of Vaughan Road, has third degree burns over the upper 40 per cent of her body. Investigators said the child apparently set her clothing afire with matches while her mother was in the yard hanging up the family's laundry.

Following emergency medical treatment at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach the girl was transferred to King's Daughter's Hospital in Norfolk and placed under intensive medical care.

Arrangements were completed Monday afternoon for the child to receive specialized treatment at the Shrine Burns Institute. She was transported from King's Daughters Hospital through the cooperation of men of the Princess Anne Plaza Rescue Squad and the use of the Squad's ambulance to Norfolk airport where she was flown by chartered aircraft to Cincinnati. Miss Rosemary Hubbs, King's Daughter's evening supervisor, accompanied young Rose Ellen on the flight. There has been no indication as to how long the child may remain at the Shrine Burns Institute.

Cromwell Backs Commission

Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell praised the work of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission at City Council's informal meeting Monday. He said that the commission was not responsible for opening and keeping open the Rudee Inlet channel, but had volunteered to try to do so, and was doing the best job possible.

His comments came following a closed meeting Friday between commission representatives and those of City Council, the City Manager and the Rudee Inlet Authority.

After that meeting the Erosion Commission met and decided to use about $125,000 of its funds that it had been amassing for new equipment for the hiring of a commercial dredge to dredge the sand trap to the desired depth of 18 feet, as had been originally planned. The commission's sandsucker had been having a problem keeping the channel open and trying to dredge the trap also. The problem resulted in severe criticism of the commission by charter boat operators, and a number of city officials also questioned what was wrong.

About $825,000 has been spent so far on the Rudee Inlet project, and Council is aware that full development is not possible until the channel is kept open at all times; therefore City Manager Roger Scott asked for the commission to use its funds for the dredge.

A commercial dredge is expected to take about three weeks to finish the job, and then the Erosion Commission says it can definitely maintain the project.

In other action Monday Council heard from officials of the public utilities department that mounting cost of sewer installation in the City may result in higher fees to land owners. During the same meeting a spokesman for a group in Fair Meadows asked for sewers there because of severe septic tank problems, although not enough persons had actually requested the lines.

Council also asked for more information on a 16-inch proposed sewer line from the expressway to S. Birdneck Road at General Booth Blvd.

In addition Council discussed leasing of a new "third generation" computer to handle city functions, since its "second generation" computer was working to capacity.

Townhouses Slow Pace

Although the meeting is delayed one day because of Veterans' Day, the Virginia Beach Planning Commission will face a full schedule when it meets at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 12. The usual meeting day is Tuesday.

Townhouse applications have dropped to two for a total of 202 townhouses, a record of sorts for recent meetings. When applications for large numbers of townhouses have met with School Administration protests, Mill-Russ Construction Company, Inc. for 102 townhouses on the south side of Lakecrest Road near Club House Road in Princess Anne Plaza and by Larrymore Organization, Inc. for 100 townhouses on the northwest corner of College Park Blvd. and the Norfolk and Southern Railway right of way in the College Park area.

There are also applications from two Baptist churches for use permits to construct churches. One is Diamond Springs area and the other is Brook Baptist Church on Wishart Road near Witchduck Road in the Witchduck area.

A use permit to construct another nursing home on First Colonial Road near the General Hospital of Virginia Beach is sought by Colonial Manor. A nursing home in the same area to be built by another group was approved in September.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. is seeking use permits to construct and operate three gasoline supply stations. One is on the southeast corner of Kempsville Road and Princess Anne Road. Another is for the north-west corner of Virginia Beach Blvd. and North Witchduck Road at Chinese Corner, and the third is for the southeast corner of Shore Drive and Diamond Springs Road near the Little Creek Amphibious Base.

Randy, 4; Buddy, 6; and Chip Bryant, 8, watch Mayor Frank Dusch sign a proclamation urging help for the current muscular dystrophy campaign. Also looking on is Virginia Beach Fire Chief E. B. Bayne, chairman of the Tidewater Chapter of MS. The three Bryant boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Carrone E. Bryant of Norfolk, all suffer from MS and are among 30 children aided by the Tidewater chapter.

Police Officer's Number Retired

Former police officer W. A. Padon's identification number was officially retired from service in a special ceremony at 2nd Police Precinct Headquarters Tuesday afternoon.

Officer Padon's breast and hat shields, bearing number 13, his identification card, breast name plate and special Civil Disturbance Unit badge were mounted in a special plaque which was presented to Padon's widow, Virginia.

Officer Padon was fatally injured in a car accident on Aug. 6 of this year in Rhode Island. He was on leave of absence from the police department and on routine training with his Naval Reserve Unit at the time of the accident. Padon, who was 27 years old at the time of his death, had been a member of the Virginia Beach police department since Sept. 14, 1964.

The memorial plaque was presented to Mrs. Padon jointly by 2nd Police Precinct C.O. Capt. W. J. Moore, Jr., who was Padon's commanding officer at the time of his death, and by Det. Div. C.O. Capt. R. C. Davis, under whom Padon had served prior to Davis's transfer to the detective division. In making the presentation both Moore and Davis commented to Mrs. Padon the high regard they held for Padon from not only the standpoint of his professional manner in carrying out his responsibilities as a police officer, but also as an individual of the highest caliber held in high regard by all his fellow officers and associates.

Padon's mother, Mrs. Herbert Padon, was on hand to witness the ceremony, as were a number of his fellow officers Lt. F. S. Krahenbill, Sgt. N. C. Morse, officer E. E. Morrow and Auxiliary Police officer A. J. Pallett.

Mrs. Padon displays the memorial plaque presented her, in honor of her late husband, by Capt. Davis (left) and Capt. Moore (right).

Raid Leads Church Realizes Dream to Arrests

Three men are awaiting court appearance on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors as a result of a police raid Halloween night on a Malibu Palms Apartment.

Police officials identified the accused as David E. Matheny, Jr., 24, of Fairview Street, Chesapeake; and Stewart H. Russell, 33, Kentucky Avenue, Norfolk. Investigators said each of the adults are charged with six counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Russell is also charged with operating a disorderly house, while Matheny and Kent are also charged with frequenting a disorderly house.

According to authorities police found six juveniles, one age 13, three age 14, one age 15 and one age 17, consisting of three boys and three girls in the apartment at the time of the raid. A large quantity of various alcoholic beverages were in the apartment and two of the juvenile girls, aged 13 and 14, were in a highly intoxicated state.

The King's Grant Baptist Church will dedicate its new church building on Little Neck Road this Sunday.

According to the pastor of the church, Rev. W. Jerry Holcomb, "The dedication climaxes three years of hard work by the members of the church who, back in August of 1965 held the first meeting to organize King's Grant Baptist Chapel. Those who met that day had a dream, and during the years put a lot of hard work behind the dream to 'bring it to this reality.'"

Rev. Holcomb went on to explain that under the first pastor Rev. Glen Tallant, "After a little more than one year of using the Kingston Elementary School, the church voted approval of a $150,000 bond issue to purchase a tract of land and construct a building on Little Neck Road. One month later the church approved the basic floor plan for construction of the first increment of the building consisting of the sanctuary, classrooms and social hall."

Ground breaking ceremonies were held on Feb. 16, 1969 and the first Sunday morning worship service was held in the new building on Sept. 21.

On Oct. 5, after receiving approval from the mother church, Thalia Lynn, the Kings Grant Baptist Chapel was constituted into a local autonomous Baptist church.

According to Rev. Holcomb, who has served as pastor since June of 1968, "More than 200 families have been invited to attend the dedication services this Sunday. Those invited," said Rev. Holcomb, "include not only the members, but a number of others who helped make this a reality by purchasing bonds for the construction of the building."

Following the dedication service, the G.A.S. of the church are sponsoring a luncheon in the social hall.

Four Charged

Court appearance is pending for three men and a woman arrested in connection with a recent series of crimes in the resort city. Police identified the suspects as Frank E. Dickson, Kenneth L. Carey and his wife Linda and Daryl T. Smith. Investigators said Dickson, 19, who had aliases of Jerry Dickson and Jerry Wade was arrested in connection with burglaries at Kellam High School and the W. C. Barnes Grocery Store; possession of a sawed off shotgun, malicious assault, grand larceny of a TV set, grand larceny of a car and arson in connection with the burning of the car. Carey, 25, is charged with possession of a sawed-off shotgun, charged in connection with the grocery store burglary, grand larceny of a TV set, grand larceny of a car, and arson in connection with the burning of the car. Mrs. Carey, 21, is facing charges of possessing a sawed off shotgun. Smith, 20, of New York City, is facing charges in connection with the burglarizing of Kellam High School. Police Officials also said they have charged Dickson and Carey with being fugitives from authorities in Athens, Ga.

26th Fatality

A 22-year-old Michigan man, stationed at the Oceana Naval Air Station, has become the 26th fatality of the year in Virginia Beach. Police officials identified him as David C. Lindell. According to authorities Lindell died of head injuries received when struck by an auto on Sept. 30. Investigators said Lindell was walking along Oceana Blvd. when struck down by a car a short distance from the Naval air station entrance roadway. Police are continuing their investigation of the accident regarding the filing of any possible charges.

Sentence Delayed

James T. Anderson, 21, of Indian River Blvd. is awaiting sentencing following his conviction of the charge of using a sawed off shotgun in a robbery. Police charged Anderson with taking part in the March 16 robbery of a Shore Drive 16-Eleven store. Legal technicalities have resulted in a mistrial being declared in Anderson's trial on the charge of armed robbery in connection with the alleged crime, and the new date of this trial has not yet been set. Circuit Court Judge George W. Vakos has delayed sentencing of Anderson on the sawed off shotgun conviction pending the outcome of a presentence report.

Boys Face Charges

Two boys are facing court appearance on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics. Police officials said they charged the 16 and 17-year-olds during an investigation early Sunday morning. Investigators said a quantity of marijuana was reportedly found in a car, located near the intersection of Virginia Beach Blvd. and Little Neck Road, which was occupied by them. Authorities also said the auto, which reportedly belonged to the father of one of the accused, has been confiscated by police pending completion of the court proceedings.

Injuries Fatal

A 21-year-old Ft. Story soldier died last Saturday of head injuries received Oct. 17 in a two-car accident in Norfolk. Hospital officials identified him as Michael G. Sellers of Flowerfield Road.

Lt. Capps, in raft, gives final instructions to the police diving team before they submerge for an underwater training exercise.

Divers Increase Proficiency

Members of the police diving team are undergoing a more intensive training program to increase the proficiency of the team.

Such a training session, aimed at building endurance of the team members, took place last Tuesday in a large water filled borrow pit behind the 3rd Police Precinct off Wilsht Road.

Those who took part in Tuesday's training session included Lt. Henry Capps, as instructor, Sgt. N. C. Morse, Officers George Ball, J. G. Malocky, R. T. Munford of the Animal Control Bureau, and Alfred Gregg of the City's Engineering Department.

Tuesday's session consisted of the men, working as a team underwater, covering a 1,000 yard distance without surfacing, then after taking a rest period covering the same distance by means of a freestyle swim over the surface of the water. Lt. Capps during both training procedures followed the team in a special outboard powered raft in case any emergency developed during the exercise.

At the conclusion of the session Capps had words of high praise for all members of the team for the manner in which they successfully completed the training exercise.

Action Sought on Divorce

The former wife of James H. Capps, Jr., who is serving a sentence of life imprisonment for the murder of her second husband, has taken legal action in Circuit Court for a second divorce decree on her marriage to Capps.

Mrs. Selma Capps obtained a divorce from Capps three years ago, and subsequently married Ronald E. Powell, a Navy hospital corpsman.

Within a month of her second marriage the couple's home on Ardmore Road in Norfolk was rocked by a dynamite blast. Powell was killed instantly, she escaped serious injury.

The status of Mrs. Capps' marriage to Powell has been questioned as the result of court action which led to nullifying her divorce from Capps 10 months ago. This past spring the State Supreme Court of Appeals denied her a writ of error in an appeal of the nullification.

Under the present circumstances, which cast doubt on the validity of Mrs. Capps' marriage to Powell, she is faced with the possibility of loss of benefits entitled to her as a Navy widow and the repayment of as much as $20,000, consisting primarily of insurance payments resulting from Powell's death.

Counsel representing Capps' is attempting to obtain a new trial for him by making use of the nullification of her divorce from Capps. The retrial attempt is based on the grounds that if Mrs. Capps' initial divorce was nullified, and her marriage to Capps remained valid, she was therefore prohibited by law from testifying against Capps during his trial on charges that he participated in the dynamiting of the Powell home.

During this trial she testified that Capps had made a threat to her regarding possible bombing of the Powell home two weeks before a dynamite explosion ripped through the bedroom of the home.

In-Service Training Initiated by Police

This week marked the beginning of an intensive in-service training program for men of the Virginia Beach police department with the transfer of Sgt. M. E. Beane to duty as assistant to Lt. C. W. Simmons director of the police department's Personnel & Training Division.

According to Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis this will be accomplished through a "sight and sound training program", involving the use of 35 mm filmstrips and a sound projector.

The Virginia Beach police department currently has two series of filmstrips designed for use in instructing police officers in such subjects as principles of investigation, rescue breathing, testifying in court, field inquiry, crowd control, evidence collection, the police image, search and seizure and police ethics. As pictures from men without taking police officers from their regular duties. This particular phase of training will consist of approximately 360 hours of instruction by means of the sight and sound technique.

Other duties of Sgt. Beane will include assisting Lt. Simmons in field investigations and processing, new applicants for the police department.

Indications are that Sgt. Beane will also be given six weeks of specialized training at the National Institute of Lie Detection in New York City. This schooling will prepare him for the Virginia state examination as a qualified polygraph examiner, an important phase of the examination of new applicants for the Virginia Beach police department.

While Col. Davis points out that Sgt. Beane's new assign-

Record May Still Be Set

What tight money? What worry about building now? That's what the inspections division of the city of Virginia Beach wants to know.

At the end of October the city was on the verge of setting a new record for construction in a single year. With two more months left in 1969, only $798,520 in building permits must be issued to equal the record year of 1965. And in that year the national economy was considered in far better shape.

Last year the city came close to the record, but a disastrous dropoff in December caused the figure to be $143,486 short. All during 1968 Robert Lohr, of the inspections division, continued to predict a new record.

He has been a little more cautious during 1969, but Tuesday said he's "now ready to predict a new record in 1969." It is almost inconceivable he could be wrong this time.

"We still have a large number of apartment units pending and at least two large motels," he said. "We should breeze by the old record this month."

The 1965 record stands at $63,522,332. The total through October 1969 is $62,723,812. In 1968 the ten-month total was a mere $54,045,173.

Apartments and townhouses accounted for the better part of the October 1969 total of $8,678,627. The multi-family dwelling value last month was $6,454,944, compared to only $1,135,480 in October 1968.

But as has been the case all year the value of single-family housing fell off considerably. Only 52 units, valued at $1,334,533, were begun last month, while 146, valued at $2,822,712 was begun a year ago in October.

The October total in 1968 of $5,026,194 was more than $3.6 million lower than this year. Tight money notwithstanding, it looks like Lohr's prediction is safe this year.

Workshop To Repeat At Beach

The first of three regional medico-legal workshops investigating current medical examiner problems, drug abuse and sudden and unexpected causes of death will be held Thursday, Nov. 13, in Arlington.

The workshop, also to be held in January at Virginia Beach and in March at Roanoke, is being conducted by the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner to keep local medical examiners, pathologists, physicians, homicide investigators and other legal and law enforcement officers informed of the latest medico-legal techniques in the investigation of sudden, unusual, unnatural and violent deaths.

The first medico-legal workshop will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., at Arlington Hospital. The program will be repeated Jan. 22 at Virginia Beach and on March 19 at the Rehabilitation Center, Roanoke Memorial Hospital.

Finally It's Over

The people of Virginia and Virginia Beach have made their choices. Both chose Linwood Holton as our next Governor. Their wisdom will only be borne out by the next four years.

Mr. Holton will have a tough road ahead, with a Lt. Governor, Attorney General and General Assembly being Democratic. That much is certain, but hopefully personalities will not enter the picture and Virginia can continue to progress.

He won it on the oldest adage, "It's time for a change." That has been a successful adage in Virginia Beach in recent years. But there is some irony. There is no doubt that Virginia has progressed measurably in the Godwin years, especially in education and mental health. Yet the very Democrats who did it were hit at the top with a GOP victory.

This is hardly the beginning of a two-party system in Virginia as such. Linwood Holton was merely a most attractive candidate and a fine gentleman with a lot of help. His victory is a well-deserved personal one. He waged an excellent campaign.

Virginia Beach is a good example of the feeling. Both Holton and Dick Obenshain were successful here, and Sarge Reynolds barely eked out a victory, but Bev Middleton and Richard Guy were elected easily on the Democratic side. The people were not out to oust the Democrats. They voted for the man, not the party.

Middleton and Guy will be outstanding assets to the city in the House of Delegates. Their victory was also most deserved.

Now we wait. Virginia must continue to progress.

Run-down City Symbol

Even the remote prospect that the City of Virginia Beach and the Chamber of Commerce might take over the old Cape Henry Lighthouse and improve it to the point where it can be reopened and made into a major city attraction is encouraging.

Its present owners, the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, have certainly been remiss in their handling of it. Hopefully they will help fix it up and that the city will lease it. Then the Chamber can provide the operation of this major landmark.

Our overgrown, ramshackle, filthy city symbol has a majestic history and needs to be saved from ruin. The efforts of all involved to bring this about are needed now.

An Ounce of Prevention

South Lynnhaven Road from the expressway to Cox's Creek is a disgrace to the city of Virginia Beach. This narrow, bumpy, winding stretch of road, with its deep drainage ditches and no shoulders needs to be repaired immediately before someone is killed.

Never does a day go by without a car or truck finding its way into one of those ditches, partly because of the narrowness and partly because there are no shoulders before hitting the overgrown ditches.

One night last week a little sports job all but disappeared into one of the deep chasms after slipping off in a particularly bumpy part. The next day a truck camper found another ditch a few yards away on the other side of the road.

The road is heavily traveled because of the many homes and apartments nearby, as well as the two elementary schools and junior high school that are reached by traveling it.

We can argue that this was poor planning on everyone's part that the road was not improved before, but that doesn't help the dangerous situation. It took a school bus in a ditch on the other part of the same road before that was greatly improved. Must this happen here too? If it must, let us pray that the injuries are not too serious. Rosemont Road reportedly has priority and there is a shortage of funds, but officials say now they hope to start work on Lynnhaven Road by spring. Maybe irate motorists and residents of the city can hold on that long, but they had best know for sure that help is on the way.

Eventually Lynnhaven Road is planned for a four-lane thoroughfare, but all we want now is a replacement for a most alarming situation.

To Merge or Not

Most likely none of us will live long enough to see the four-city area of south Tidewater as one giant city, due to merger, but the possibility is at best interesting.

Nothing can be lost by talking with the other cities about it, now that Norfolk has suggested it. If nothing more comes out of the talking, perhaps more honest-to-goodness areawide cooperation on a giant scale will be the result.

It is foolish for neighbors to fight or stand firm adamantly out of pure and simple obstinence, but this has been known to happen. Maybe the conference table will help settle old differences and plan ahead for the future, merger or not.

And we also may find that merger would or would not be ideal.

DON'T FORGET -- THEY CAN'T.

Independent Group

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I would like to say a few words for independent organizations in the Virginia Beach Secondary Schools versus the PTA. This organization has become an outdated habit with many parents and I feel they are under the impression that there is no other way to be represented in their school—this is not true.

There are several schools in the Virginia Beach School System that have independent organizations that have proven themselves to be groups of very active parents whose main interest is their own children. I believe many other schools would prefer this type of organization to one that has so many rules and regulations to abide by that the incentive for many parents to participate is stifled.

Of course, there are still the old standbys who believe in the PTA as strongly as a child believes in Santa Claus. I have heard all their arguments; "a group with as large a membership must be right (even if 75% of this group is inactive and complacent), we can speak up on important issues as a large group, and we are interested in our children's education on the dope, sex and other problems."

Now, any thinking citizen of a community surely knows that by just being a taxpayer and voter of this community and country that he has the right and privilege of talking with any public official he so desires and if his problem is of a public concern he can be heard and assured that the problem will be corrected if it is within the power of that particular public official. Our public officials are mainly concerned with us taxpayers and voters—they do not ask you before they will talk to you whether or not you are a member of the PTA.

I believe it would be beneficial to have parents' organizations in all Virginia Beach Schools. It does not matter what they are called, however, I feel that each school would be better served by an independent organization dealing directly with their own needs as they arise. Consider the fact that 40% of your $1 membership dues does not stay in your local schools to benefit the children of Virginia Beach, it goes to State and National Headquarters of the PTA.

Mrs. Stanley J. Franklin, Jr.

Name for Hero

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I put "Yes" on the SUN SURVEY (see front page story concerning four-city stadium question of last week), but I feel this does not mean that it should be built in Norfolk. I feel it should be studied by the four cities, and the best site picked. And once approved by the four cities, then I feel each city should pay for a quarter of the stadium and that it be named after a great Navy hero, this being a Navy area.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question.

Mail each to: Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Post Office Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451.

Special Report

Get Ready for Next June

One of the longest and most grueling gubernatorial contests in the history of Virginia is over at last. Republican Linwood Holton has ended the consecutive line of 21 Democratic governors that spanned nearly a century in the state.

And he did it in spite of all the odds. First he was a Republican. That was enough to keep away a large bloc of votes. But the man himself, not necessarily the party, managed to paralyze the disaffected and the real Republicans into a great victory.

He managed to win support from unheard sources for the GOP. He won support of organized labor, black groups, and from those conservatives that have many times before voted Republican in national elections and Democratic in the state elections.

The magnitude of the victory and the impact upon the state that has been known as a Democratic stronghold is only lessened by the few gains made by the GOP in the House of Delegates, mostly in Northern Virginia, and with the election of a Democratic Lt. Governor and Attorney General.

Battle was thought to have a slight edge in the state, but the cities in the eastern half of the state and the populous northern corridor either let him down or did not give him a big enough majority to overcome Holton's wide support.

In retrospect Battle was never the strong candidate. It took him two primaries to win the nomination of his splintered party. The party was torn between a liberal, a conservative and Battle, the moderate. He certainly was the logical choice in such a mess, but the party was hopelessly torn apart when the two primaries were over. Strong attempts on the part of loyal Democrats, including Gov. Godwin, were just not enough to overcome a so-so candidate, without much hard work at all levels that was never done.

Holton was by far the more attractive candidate and made a better appearance on the podium. Neither were dynamic speakers and they agreed more often than they disagreed. The issues were not even a part of the campaign.

No doubt the national Republican party money and prestige aided Holton, but even the appearance of Gov. Reagan and Pres. Nixon were only a small part of the victory. If all the signs could have been read prior to election day, the predestination of the Holton win was right where it was clearly visible.

The use of the "It's time for a change" slogan has again done its job, even at a time when Virginians are enjoying the most progressive era they have ever known. The slogan itself is shallow, but it works, as in the case of the 1966 statewide and Virginia Beach races, it works big and it works well.

It did again Tuesday and Holton rode the slogan to the Executive mansion. He conducted a hard, honest, above-board campaign, free of mud-slinging and free of the problems of the Democrats. And because he is the man he is, he pulled off the upset of the century in Virginia politics without a single real issue.

Battle's candidacy was first discussed in Virginia Beach three years ago when Jack Etheridge rode the identical slogan to political power. Now Battle and Etheridge have both felt the blow of political disfavor.

In Virginia Beach we can only take a deep breath, a very deep breath, assess the situation where our Democrats were elected easily to the House of Delegates, and prepare for the deluge of candidates that surely will be announcing their intention of seeking the 11 City Council seats up for grabs in June of next year.

Who or what faction will emerge as the political leaders is just hard to figure after last Tuesday. But we'll soon be ready to find out.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"I know it's loose," she said. "But I don't want you to pull it."

"Why not?" he asked. "It has to come out sooner or later. Wouldn't you rather get it out before you swallow it?"

"No," she said emphatically. "I want to keep it as long as I can. I'll look so funny without a front tooth."

"Vanity, thy name is little girl," he said.

The Tooth Fairy Lives

seriously, "you know I don't believe in the good fairy. I know that you or Mother will come in after I'm asleep and put the money there."

"What makes you think that?" he asked. "Wouldn't you rather believe in the good fairy?"

"Good fairies don't have any money since they're not real," she said logically. "You do."

"Do you really think your Mother can get in there and take the tooth and put money under your pillow without waking you?" he asked.

"No," she said. "You do it. You're quieter."

"All right. Now let me see the tooth. It's so loose."

"You can look and feel, but don't pull it," she said.

"No promises," he said. "It could fall out in my hand." He pulled it forward and gave it one quick snap. It came out.

"I heard it crack," she screamed and ran to the mirror. "You broke my tooth. Look, it's bleeding. Now I'll have a terrible time getting it out." She screamed more.

"Here's your tooth," he said, holding it out to her. She went into six-year-old hysterics.

"It's bleeding so badly," she said in between yells.

"Slosh a little water around in there and it'll stop," he advised. She finally did and it did.

"You shouldn't have done that, Daddy," she said. "That crackling sound scared me."

"Did it hurt?" he asked calmly. She thought it over.

"No, I guess it didn't," she said. "I wonder why I cried and yelled?"

"Because you were expected to. All kids do when they lose their first tooth," he said. "Now you know what it's like. You won't let it bother next time."

"That's right," she said. "Now give me the tooth. I want to take it to school to show everybody and tell them how brave I was. Then tonight I'll put it under my pillow for the tooth fairy."

"You don't believe in the tooth fairy," he reminded her.

"Well, I guess I will for a little while," she said.

"Aren't you going to thank me for getting that tooth out of there so painlessly?" he wanted to know.

"No," she said. "I'll thank you tomorrow morning after I see how much money I get. Gotta' go to school now. See you later, tooth fairy."

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

By W. A. Leavell, Ph. D.

Our "flock" in Congress seems reluctant to come to grips with many parts of the new budget requests. I can't much blame them. Some of the requests are down right amazing if not merely foolish.

Take the new budget request for foreign aid. That little goodie is enough to turn your pocketbook inside out. According to Congressman Otto Passman, chairman of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee where this worldwide giveaway program has to go for its money, the new request is for $10,528 BILLION dollars. That is $10,528,000,000,000.

Our world spenders still have $18.7 billion on hand that they haven't been able to give away. With the $10,528 they want, they would then have $29,236 billion to play with. Anyway you say that it is a lot of money to be giving away.

This giveaway program has been going on since 1946. Get a hold of yourself now. Since 1946, we have given away $182.5 billion dollars. This amount of hard earned money has been distributed among the entire 3.5 billion population of the world, with the exception of a mere 36 million people. I can't imagine how our "flock" managed to miss that 36 million. They must have been very hard to find or they would have had their hand in our pocket along with the rest.

This giveaway program has gotten all out of hand. We are borrowing money from the American people to pay for services and commodities for foreign countries FREE when the U.S. taxpayer has to pay hard money for the same thing.

Just in case you are thinking we are getting out of the foreign aid business, during fiscal 1970, the aid program will be opening in 99 nations and five territories of the world with 51,000 individuals on its payroll. There are 4,408 projects scattered all over the world. While many similar projects in the U.S. A. were closed down during fiscal 1969 due to lack of funds - not a single foreign aid project suffered as much as one dollar reduction!

Have you ever wondered who we have been giving all this money to? You better get your geography book out. Since 1946 we have given to some countries you might not know about. Botswana received $18.5 million, Burundi got $6.8 million, Chad got $8.8 million, Dahomey - $12 million, Gabon - $7.5 million, Gambia - $1.6 million, Ghana - $268.7 million, Guyana - $61.2 million, Ivory Coast - $69 million, Kuwait - $49.4 million, Lesotho - $4.8 million, Malagasy - $13.4 million, Malawi - $25.9 million, Mali - $21.3 million, Mauritania - $3.3 million, Mauritius - $14.4 million, Rwanda - $7.4 million, Senegal - $36.2 million, Surinam - $10 million, Tanzania - $65.4 million, Togo - $14.9 million, Uganda - $35.8 million, Upper Volta - $12.1 million and so on and on and on and on.

Now be honest - how many of the above countries have you ever heard of? Has anyone ever told you these countries have had their hand in your tax pocket? Would you have voted for this? Of course our "friends" got most of the giveaway. England got $7.69 billion, France - $7.01 billion, Turkey - $5.39 billion, Spain - $1.96 billion, Netherlands - $2.05 billion, Japan - $3.60 billion, India - $7.46 billion, Greece - $3.68 billion, Germany (West) - $3.67 billion, Brazil - $2.72 billion, and so on. Our "friends" are expensive!

Don't think we haven't been kind to our enemies as well. We have managed to give Cuba $43.8 million East Germany - $3.8 million, and even Russia got $186,400,000,000 of our dollars. I almost forgot Yugoslavia who got $2,593,400,000,000.

Can this country survive indefinitely as a strong nation if we keep on dissipating our wealth to nations all over the world? Will it never end?

If we had all the $182.5 billion we have given away I wonder if we would have as many problems as we do today. Would we have inflation, over taxation and the other problems? $182.5 billion is a lot of money. I am not saying it would buy us happiness but it sure would make our misery a lot more bearable.

Joint Effort Begins in Seatack

Last Saturday marked the beginning of an intensive program for improving conditions in the Seatack which houses more than 3,500 of the resort city's residents.

An estimated 350 civilian and military volunteers joined residents in clearing the area of debris, hauling away truck loads of junk which had accumulated, removing abandoned cars from the region, and destroying dilapidated buildings no longer fit for habitation.

The work crews, who began arriving about 8 a.m., carried out their task with the assistance of heavy duty equipment, such as trucks, bulldozers, and similar equipment furnished by the city and military units of the area.

Volunteers included men from various Virginia Beach city departments, the Oceana Naval Air Station, Fort Story, FAWTC at Dam Neck, the Virginia Beach Jaycees and the Virginia Beach Council of Church Women, United.

City Planner James Wilson coordinated the activities from the parking lot of the Seatack Community Center on S. Bird-neck Road. A number of women volunteers used the Center's kitchen in preparing gallons of hot coffee and plates of doughnuts and grilled hamburgers outside to refresh the work crews throughout their monumental task.

At last 100 abandoned cars, which not only were eyesores in the community but which also posed possible dangers for children who might play in them, are to be removed before the project is complete.

High winds last Saturday prevented the burning of a number of houses which have been condemned under the City's minimum housing code. However, prevailing conditions did permit the burning of one such structure, a one story frame and shingle house at the end of Gregory Lane. This task was carried out by men of the Seatack Volunteer Fire Department, under direction of Capt. Silas Hyman, who stood by with fire fighting equipment to prevent the flames from spreading to nearby dwellings or woods and to extinguish the flames when they had accomplished their purpose. At least four other condemned houses were torn down by wrecking crews. A minimum of six houses have already been earmarked for destruction under this program.

Other projects which got underway last Saturday included clearing of land to be used for two neighborhood recreation parks and the initial phases of work involving drainage improvements throughout the area.

Another phase of the program calls for repainting and repairing a number of the homes in the area. These projects are expected to continue for a few more weeks.

The use of military volunteers and military equipment was accomplished through the provisions of a recent Department of Defense directive which calls for military units to provide whatever assistance they are able to in aiding local and community agencies in upgrading the standard of living conditions in depressed regions.

Members of the City Planning Commission drew up the blueprints for the Seatack improvement plan and obtained approval of the project from members of City Council.

One abandoned structure gave way to a bulldozer.

White Is Suggested At Night

"It is important that the public be informed of the life-saving potential of wearing white after dark," says Richard S. Holland, director of Tidewater Automobile Association.

Over half of all pedestrian fatalities occur during hours of darkness when reduced visibility on the part of both the motorist and the pedestrian plays a major role in the death toll.

Response Overwhelms Library

Although unadvertised as such, a three-draw filing cabinet at Kempsville Branch Library contains literally a world of knowledge.

Since the library opened last April, Miss Janet Gall Kaplan, branch librarian, has written all the states in the United States and countries around the world, including Communist countries, for information. In response, the filing cabinet has been filled.

"We got it by the bushels," said Miss Kaplan. "We got some wonderful stuff. We gave some of it to the other libraries."

Included are booklets on the countries and states, maps and posters. Among the unusual things received are a beautifully illustrated book on the mammals of Australia, monthly, non-propaganda magazines from Czechoslovakia, a book about prisons in East Germany, which came from West Germany, and information from Russia and the Ukraine.

"The North African countries were very cooperative," commented Miss Kaplan. "We've received so much material we had to take out other files out of this cabinet to make room for it all. We're just waiting for the teachers to assign reports."

"It's good, up to date material, although some of it is slightly biased," she added.

Danger of Drugs Is Real

Until recently, most parents of young people were not especially concerned with facts about drug abuse. The use and misuse of new and ancient mind-altering preparations were largely matters of medical pharmaceutical, and, as regards control, legal interest.

Any compendium of advice on "what every parent should know" might comfortably have excluded the subject of drugs. No longer is this so. Today, our pill-oriented society is alarmed and confused over the growing abuse of drugs among young people.

Waves of shock follow in the wake of reports of campus-wide "pot" or marihuana. The word, "marihuana," has, like it or not, infiltrated the nation's playgrounds.

The problem is real, not just a hobgoblin one. Drugs, such as marihuana, the amphetamines and barbiturates, LSD, and the opiates (particularly heroin) have become familiar: pot, speed, bennies, goofballs, junk, acid, and similar terms in the world of youth, whose innocence frequently blurs the distinction between being turned-on and turned-off.

As the principal Federal agency responsible for stimulating research on drug abuse, the National Institute of Mental Health is vitally interested in strengthening our arsenal of knowledge and in helping to make the real facts about drugs, as known from scientific evidence rather than rumor, available to the public.

In reaching the public, every member of which has a personal need to know about mind-affecting drugs and their proper and improper use, newspapers are a most important medium.

In our current campaign to develop and carry out, as a cooperative program with everyone interested, a nationwide drug abuse educational program, the newspapers of America are playing a key role.

Articles, such as this, and many other features, editorials, and, of course, the reporting of news developments of all kinds are helping a great deal. Through such means, people can learn, for example, that the Institute has recently published a series of four factual easy-to-read leaflets on drugs which are being made available to anyone who wants them.

These leaflets attempt to answer some of the most frequently asked questions surrounding the use of marihuana, LSD, amphetamines, barbiturates and narcotics.

Many of the questions about drugs that young people may bring up to their parents will be enough to make mature decisions as to their behavior.

Finally, there is the irrefutable fact that the fresh young years of personality growth and development are dangerously inappropriate for any chemical means of confounding reality.

As authorities are well aware, neither laws nor knowledge of the medical facts can themselves bring about the prevention of drug abuse.

Police Attend Seminar

Many members of the Virginia Beach police department Detective Division, Juvenile Division and Vice Squad were in Williamsburg, last week attending a Virginia State Crime Clinic Seminar.

One entire day of the two-day seminar was devoted to "Drug Abuse and Its Relation to Crime". The seminar's approach to drug abuse was through the use of films pointing out the attraction drugs seem to hold for today's youth and a number of addresses and panel discussions featuring respected authorities in the field of drug abuse.

The featured speakers included Lt. L. W. Hurst, officer in charge of the Norfolk police narcotics squad; Delbert T. Agee, State Board of Pharmacy Drug Laboratory; Don Garver, State Board of Pharmacy drug investigator; Rev. John Gimenez, director of "Proclaim" in Norfolk, and William Olivanti, Special Agent in Charge of the Washington field office of the Justice Department's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

IDENTIFICATION NUMBER

Most Federal Employees have.

Year after year most U.S. Government employees select Blue Cross and Blue Shield for their health care protection. Right now, in fact, most all federal employees are protected by us. In other words, the Government-wide Service Benefit Plan covers over 4½ million people.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield are the largest voluntary prepayment organizations in the world, protecting over 68,000,000 people. That's about one out of every three Americans.

It's a big responsibility and we know it. That's why our programs are specially designed to keep pace with rising health care costs.

Atlantis Stock Goes on Sale

Virginia Beach Festival Park Ltd., which plans to build a $6 million amusement complex in Virginia Beach is now offering stock for sale publicly. Frank E. Butler III, vice president of the company, said 56,000 shares of stock at $10 will be for sale to help pay for land and a feasibility study for the park. Minimum purchases of 50 shares at $500 will be required.

"Atlantis", as the park is to be known, will be built on a 45-acre tract adjacent to the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and will front on Birdneck Road.

The feasibility study will cost between $10,000 and $15,000 and will be conducted by Economic Research Associates of Washington and Los Angeles. It is expected to be started next month, with completion early next year. No date is set for completion of the park. The major attraction in the park will be a volcano called Atlantis. There will be rides through it, waterfalls and simulated lava. Other themes of the park will include New Orleans in 1810, the West, Mexico, Jungle Trails, Europe, the Orient, Children's World and Atlantis itself.

Stegemann Was 1 of 8

Fredrick H. Stegemann of Caren Drive in Virginia Beach, was among eight representatives of Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company to attend a Recruiters Seminar at the Company's Home Office in Philadelphia in October. Stegemann, a veteran of 20 years service with the U.S. Army and Navy, joined Provident Mutual in 1968 and was John S. Waller, president of the company and designer of the park, said it would be open only during the summer affix with hopes later of full-time operation. Butler said he expects the park to attract about 800,000 persons a year. Other principals of the company include Leigh Ansell and Joseph Canada, directors.

Real Estate Class Planned

The Distributive Education Service of Virginia Beach City Schools will sponsor a 10-hour course in Architecture and Construction for Real Estate Salespeople. The course will begin Nov. 19 and run through Dec. 1.

Classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday nights from 7 to 9:30 in Room 5-09 at Princess Anne High School. The cost is $10 per person, which includes all instructional materials.

The instructor will be Stanley B. Brundage, A.L.A., principal in the firm of Brundage, Cohen, Holten and Kroskin.

Topics to be covered include neighborhood sites and land values, elements of building and construction, design and planning, and construction knowledge as an aid to sales. Those interested in taking the course should contact Clifford H. Lewis, Distributive Education Service, Princess Anne High School.

Tugman Acquires Associate

As of Nov. 1, Edgar A. Tugman, Virginia Beach labor relations consultant, has changed the name of his firm to Edgar A. Tugman & Associates, and Thomas M. Ammons has joined the firm as an associate.

Ammons has spent more than 30 years with the U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions.

Tugman said his firm will continue to assist management in coping with labor problems, as well as with government regulations.

His Subject Is Planning

W. Russell Hatchett, former City Manager of Virginia Beach, was recently the guest speaker before a meeting of the West Virginia Planning Association, in Clarksburg, W. Va.

Hatchett spoke to the conference on "The Role of the Planning Commission-Advisory."

He discussed the urgent need for proper planning and timing in developing plans, as well as finding ways to meet objectives.

"I feel advisory planning commissions to be the best approach to planning," he said, "I believe it to be sound and it has certainly been accepted by the public."

In addition he discussed the need for long-range comprehensive planning.

Werner Named to Institute

Stanley J. Werner of Virginia Beach has been named a fellow in the insurance industry's Life Management Institute.

Office supervisor of the Norfolk district office of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., he qualified for the honor after completing the industry's Life Office Management Association's education program.

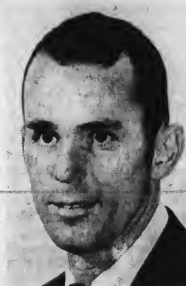

This year, 469 men and women from across the nation completed the eight-course program which provides a basic understanding of life insurance concepts and operations.

Hiway Group Picks Man

The Ocean Hiway Association has named a new executive director to direct operation of the 35-year-old tourist promotional group which has membership from the New York-New Jersey state line to Florida. According to Louis A. Rodia of Cape May Court House, N.J., president of the Ocean Hiway Association, Patrick B. Miskell of Norfolk was named to the post to succeed John Griffin of Virginia Beach.

Miskell

Miskell has resigned his position with the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, where he had served as manager of the Business and Government department for a year and a half.

Of course, if we had all that money in the kitty I don't doubt that our glorious leaders would come up with something else to squander it on. They don't have a very good history of money management.

No matter, Enough is enough. Just because we have been "Uncle Sugar" for all these years is no justification to keep on being the prime sucker of the world. If we spend our wealth on our own problems could we be any worse off than we are in the world today? Can you think of one friend we have bought that has stayed bought?

This time, let's say NO! Let's apply our tax dollars to our own problems for a change. Amen!

Nominations Sought For Award

The Virginia Beach Jaycees are seeking nominations for their annual Distinguished Service Award winner. The deadline for nominations is Nov. 15.

The DSA is given yearly in recognition of outstanding service to the city, particularly in the past calendar year. Leadership ability of the man between the ages of 21 and 35 also taken into consideration, as is evidence of personal or business progress.

As in the past, nominations are made by individuals, groups and businesses in the city. A selection committee will then screen all applications and the winner will be announced in the near future.

Anyone wishing to make a nomination is asked to send complete information to the Virginia Beach Jaycees, in care of L. D. Finley III, chairman of the DSA committee, P.O. Box 1044, Virginia Beach, Va. 23458.

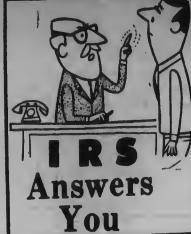

Symposium Planned

"A Symposium on Drugs - What Parents Should Know and Do about Them" will be held at First Colonial High School on Wednesday, Nov. 12, at 8 p.m.

The following will be featured as speakers:

Dr. James N. Williams, psychiatrist, Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center, Virginia Beach; Gordon Turner, Juvenile Probation Officer, Virginia Beach; Rev. John Jordan of Galilee Episcopal Church; and Virginia Beach Police Detective Richard Taylor.

Each participant will have ten minutes to speak formally on the subject from his own point of view. Following all of the presentations the participants will be available to answer written questions from the floor.

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Question: The IRS auditor who examined my return says I owe $65 more. Can I get a further hearing on my case without getting involved with legal fees and the like?

Answer: Yes, you may request a district conference and present your side of the dispute to an impartial third party. It will not be necessary for you to engage legal counsel to represent you at the conference. It also is not necessary to file a formal written protest to obtain a conference since the tax involved is less than $2,500.

Procedures for requesting a conference are outlined in a letter you will receive from IRS setting forth the results of the examination of your return.

Question: I found an expense I overlooked when filled out my tax return this year. Is it too late to make this change?

Answer: No, you may still claim this expense by filing Form 1040X, Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. As a general rule, you have three years from the date your return was due to claim items you forgot about.

Copies of the form and instructions for completing it may be obtained by writing to District Director of Internal Revenue, 400 North 8th Street, Richmond, Virginia 23240.

Question: My son worked on my farm this summer and I paid him regular wages. Can I deduct them just as I do wages paid to my other workers?

Answer: Yes, reasonable wages paid to your son are deductible if there is a true employer-employee relationship.

Navy W. O. Arthur B. Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl M. Everett Sr. of Bunker Hill Lane, Virginia Beach, is serving aboard the USS Long Beach in the Western Pacific.

Outside Teams Seek Beach Wins

The Black Knights of Kellam High School, riding a victory crest, take on the wild Wildcats of Great Bridge this weekend. The Knights, in their new role as giant-killer, are the underdogs, but the contest promises to be a spirited one. After a loss to previously winless Bayside, Kellam has gone on a scoring binge, winning their last four games and scoring a total of 130 points in the process. The impressive win over Granby last Friday was by a score of 42-8. And before that Granby was highly-ranked statewide and unbeaten on the season.

The credit goes to Carl Summerall whose passing was almost flawless and to the running of Ronnie Combs and Steve Thompson. Granby was held to -31 yards on the ground by a sterling Kellam defense.

But lest the Knights relax too much on their laurels, this Friday at Great Bridge they face the team now ranked second in the state and most likely headed for the top spot. The Wildcats have in Lora Hinton one of the most promising football players ever seen in this area, and the team has beaten all comers including powerhouse Wilson so far. It should be a great game, but Great Bridge should win it with little trouble.

Princess Anne saw its defense come to life in the second half, as well as the offense. Lake Taylor scored first in the opening minutes after taking the initial kick-off down field on a series of plays and into the end zone. But the Cavaliers also scored before the half, and twice more in the third quarter to win it 19-7 for the Cavaliers' second win of the year. They take on Bayside this weekend, and the hapless Marlins will probably lose another.

Bayside took it on the chin and everywhere else last weekend in its contest with Norview. They did manage to get on the scoreboard once, but the raging Norview Pilots won it easily, 52-6. Larry Stepeny scored three of the Pilot touchdowns and gained 243 yards rushing. The Pilot's only loss is to Wilson, in interdistrict play. Norview remains the Eastern District leader.

Granby comes again to Virginia Beach this weekend, this time to Cox. Last week the Falcons took revenge on Oscar Smith, 43-0, after the loss to Kellam. Sophomore quarterback Al Williams passed for a record five touchdowns, and could well be the difference against Granby this week. It looks like a tossup, with the edge going to Cox.

Lake Taylor also comes back to Virginia Beach, this time to First Colonial, and will probably suffer another loss there. The Patriots, however, have been a disappointing team all season. Last weekend they scored their second tie of the year, 6-6, against Maury. The other was in the season opener against Western Branch. David Winecoff and Richard Jones still combined for a well-played 95-yard march for a TD, but defense was the true story of the Maury stand off.

The Patriots then play Kellam next week for the Virginia Beach championship, and the game is expected to be an excellent class.

Norview also makes another trip to Virginia Beach, this time against Kempville, the hottest hot-and-cold team in the district. After beating PA, the Chiefs settled for a 42-14 loss last week at the hands of Indian River at Deep Creek. Indian River is probably one of the most improved teams around the area.

Kempville can expect to take another loss this weekend against Norview.

The 4-H on wheels.

4-H'ers Take to Rink

If you happen to go by the Plaza Roller Rink on South Lynnhaven Road on a Tuesday or Thursday afternoon, then expect to get into somewhat of a traffic jam. On these two days around 550 students arrive to participate in a 4-H Roller Skating Project.

The class is a nationwide pilot project whose purpose is to change the image of the 4-H club. "We are trying to get away from the rural idea," explained Miss Jo Ann Brett who is a VPI Extension agent, "the idea that all you do in the 4-H club is raise cows and hogs. We are developing projects for all kids, including urban ones."

To find out how many students, ages 9-14, would be interested in participating in a skating class and in becoming a 4-H member, they went to the schools and distributed applications. Over 1,000 enrolled for the hour of roller skating instruction and 30 minutes of educational teaching. Each day the students have a quiz and skating lessons; and at the end of the course, the student who progresses the most will receive a recognition award.

After the educational program, the students may skate, where they are joined by an on-the-floor instructor.

Each member is given a membership card which allows them entrance to the rink. "One day," Miss Brett recalls, "one little girl forgot hers and she just cried because she was afraid we would not let her in."

Miss Brett is an agent with the VPI Extension on Consumer Education and Home Economics. They teach classes upon request on any subject included in their title.

"We can answer questions on agriculture, gardening, and anything dealing with home economics, including how many eggs to use in a certain recipe. And we have booklets on everything, so if we don't have sufficient information we can get it," stated Miss Brett.

The 4-H Roller Skating Project is a 10-week course, lasting until Dec. 18. In January another instruction period will begin, and anyone interested in applying for membership may call the VPI Extension office at 427-4611.

The idea for the 4-H roller skating program was conceived last year and Walter E. Carter, owner of Plaza Roller Rink, was chosen to head a national committee to study the feasibility.

"After I researched it and talked with so many people I decided the best way to find out the worth of it was to set one up and try it," said Carter.

He approached the 4-H people in Virginia Beach, who were endrily receptive, and the project was born.

"A roller skating rink is a natural gathering place for boys and girls who are not currently participating in other clubs or activities," said Carter. "And these are the same people the 4-H'ers are trying to reach."

Carter added that once Miss Brett and others in the office here had accepted the program they moved quickly and efficiently to set it up.

"Without their cooperation it would not have been possible," said Carter. "They have done a fine job."

But Carter's job is not over. He will present the program and the results of his pilot project to the board of directors of the Roller Skating Rink

Hunters Are Reminded

By T.L. Ogden
State Game Warden

Nov. 10 is the first day of goose hunting in the fields. The legal hours are a half hour before sunrise until sunset each day. Bag limit is three geese per day.

Manual or mouth-operated bird calls are legal while recorded or electric amplified calls are outlawed.

Since game that is taken has to be transported, a few hunters get into trouble. To transport legally a dressed bird, one wing fully feathered must be left attached until reaching home. If one hunter is transporting birds have to be separated by a rope, string or container.

The hunter's name, address, and hunting license number must accompany each limit of geese and all other migratory birds.

Fire fighters listen to Chief Anderson's instructions in the proper use of masks which may be necessary in fighting various types of fires.

Classes Train Local Firemen

Men from the various fire departments of the city have just completed special training in standard fire fighting techniques.

The school, which ended last Friday, was held at the headquarters building of the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Department.

More than 100 fire fighters from throughout the resort city enrolled for the special two week training program. Attendance during the 30 hours of instruction averaged 93 per night.

The training covered various types of fire fighting equipment which fire fighters must use proficiently in responding to different types of fire alarms. Those who acted as instructors for the fire school included Lt. F. E. Bennett of the Beach Borough Fire Department, covering overhaul and pick-up; Deputy Chief W. H. Colston, Sr., of Norfolk, instructing in the proper use of masks; Capt. D. F. Dickinson, of Chesapeake, on the proper use of ropes and rescue operations; and W. H. Welch, fire training instructor at the Norfolk Naval Base, instructing in hydraulics and pumps.

The deadline is at hand for nominations for "Fireman of the Year" in Virginia Beach. The outstanding fireman of the city will be chosen on the basis of recommendations from other members of the department which he is assigned to. Any fire fighter from any fire department in the city including paid and volunteer departments and all military as well as civilian fire departments is eligible for the award.

BADGES & BANNER

By Les Lehigh

We extend our sincere sympathies to the family and many friends of Harry W. Peck who passed away unexpectedly last Saturday. Peck, 70, who resided in the 300 block of 48th Street, recently retired from civilian service with the Virginia Beach police department. He will long be remembered for his many outstanding contributions to the community as a leader in Masonic and church activities.

Another new officer began duties this week with the Virginia Beach police department. Harry T. Cobb has taken up duties in the 1st Police Precinct and will be undergoing specialized training in the near future.

Justice of the Peace H. Bates Reese, working in the 3rd Police Precinct, says the Bayside Lions Club is sponsoring a blood donor drive this Friday. Reese indicated the Bloodmobile will be at the Bayside Baptist Church at Pleasure House Road and Northampton Blvd. from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Police Lt. J. L. "Johnny" Whitehurst remains hospitalized as the result of a heart attack. While his condition does not allow visitors, or gifts of flowers, fruit, or candy at the present time, those who wish to send cards may address them to him in care of the Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Men of the Beach Borough Volunteer Rescue Squad travelled to Cincinnati, Ohio, recently to represent the city of Virginia Beach in the annual International Rescue Squad & First Aid Association Convention.

Women of the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary are sponsoring a "family spaghetti dinner" this Saturday. Meals to satisfy the heartiest of appetites will be served at the fire station on Pleasure House Road from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

The latest issue of the nationally distributed law enforcement magazine "Police" contained an article which compliments the city of Virginia Beach on its "summer police officer" program. Roy A. Tyler, a professor at the University of Indiana, who served in the program describes it as a rewarding experience for college students who wish to gain a better insight into the responsibilities of police officers and receive first hand experience in applying their training received in law school.

We understand the "Halloween Eve Ball" held at the Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge home was a "howling success". Det. M. O. Palmer and his wife took the best couples' costume award. He was dressed as Fidel Castro, complete with cigar, while she was outfitted as a skunk, complete with a stripe down the back. The best girl's costume award went to Brenda Barfield, outfitted as a "flapper", while Douglas Gilbert, made up as an unbelievable "fat man" took the best man's costume award. While they did not win any prizes, we understand Officer John McDonald and his wife Dianne made the show. He was attired in a woman's clothing and she dressed as a man.

Men of the 2nd Police Precinct tell us they recently showed their admiration for J. P. George Queen by presenting him with an addition to his fishing tackle. Queen reportedly received a gift of 50 feet of "special line" which, we understand, is supposed to do wonders in improving his capabilities to land "those big ones."

Navy Lt. Frederick E. Phillippi Jr., son of Cmdr. and Mrs. Fred E. Phillippi of Innisbrook Road, is serving aboard the Newport News which recently participated in the NATO exercise "Peace Keeper" in the Atlantic.

VIRGINIA BEACH COURT NEWS

Virginia Beach Circuit Court
Decisions Oct. 24 to 30

Michael J. Cartwright, John Hancock Drive, Virginia Beach, appealed a charge of reckless driving, found guilty of reckless driving, (drag racing), fined $50 and costs, drivers license suspended six months.

Will L. Sample, Jr., Piney Branch Road, Virginia Beach, appealed a charge of reckless driving, found guilty, fined $50 and costs.

Virginia Beach Municipal Court

Convictions Oct. 24 to 30

Thomas S. Smith, S. Military Highway, Chesapeake, convicted of impaired driving, fined $100 and costs, drivers license suspended for six months.

Louis E. Hubbard, Bruton Lane, Virginia Beach, convicted of reckless driving, fined $250 and costs.

Robert T. Boyd, Madry Marr Motel, Virginia Beach, convicted of reckless driving, fined $50 and costs, drivers license suspended for 30 days.

Virginia Beach Juvenile Court

Case Summation Oct. 24 to 30

The court had hearings on 59 juvenile petitions which concerned persons accused of violating state laws or city ordinances. Included in these hearings were 15 cases involving felonies, two of which were continued generally, one was appealed, two were forwarded to a grand jury, and the remaining ten were continued to future dates.

Other cases which the court settled involved 48 on traffic law violations and ten on family domestic problems. There were three cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

Stewart Found Guilty

Circuit Court Judge Robert S. Wahab has found Dennis P. Stewart guilty of possession of dangerous drugs and possession of narcotics. Dennis, 19, of Willo' Wisp Drive, was arrested on May 13 when Vice Squad Det.'s Joseph Vitale and John Pritchard found a quantity of drugs in the trunk of a car being driven by Stewart. Judge Wahab sentenced Stewart to six months on a state road gang on conviction of the dangerous drug charge and gave Stewart a suspended three year sentence on conviction of possession of narcotics. Stewart was also charged with alleged sale of LSD. However, Asst. Commonwealth's Atty. A. A. Ege declined to prosecute this charge.

Operators of America next week in Lincoln, Neb. If accepted there, the program will be adopted by rink operators and 4-H's all over America. Carter says the success can be measured not only by the size of the group and the long waiting list for the next period but also by the enthusiasm of the youngsters.

The four "H's" stand for "Head," "Hand," "Heart" and "Health." It could just be that an "RS" for "Roller Skating" may have to be added to the 4-H clover insignia.

THE WOMEN

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, November 6, 1969

She's on the Go--Always

By Carolyn McAllen

She's a Jet Age great grandmother. She likes short skirts and boots and sees no reason why age should influence fashions.

She's known by face, if not by name, by a good portion of Virginia Beach.

She's Olga Edwards, advertising manager of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN and author and partygoer for "Here Comes Olga."

Right now, in addition to her job and her partying, she is interested in Yoga and horseback riding.

"Yoga rejuvenates the body and the mind," she says. "You can practice at home on your own once you learn to do it properly." She is presently enrolled in a class taught by Mrs. Rodney Crawford.

She said the hardest part was learning to breathe. "You breathe with the lungs instead of the chest. It's entirely different."

A native of Norfolk, Olga has lived in Virginia Beach 35 years and has sold advertising for the SUN for the past nine. Since she is before the public eye so much, both in business and socially, she keeps up with fashions. Right now her favorite is pants dresses for evening.

Immediately before coming to the SUN Olga worked in the Virginia Beach Hospital campaign office when the hospital was raising funds for its first new building. However, her career has included selling hats, clerk in a hotel, Welcome Wagon supervisor, bookkeeper, telephone operator. "There are not many things I haven't done."

She laughed as she described getting her first job. "Several of us were enrolled in business college. We got to wondering a few months before graduation how hard it would be to get a job. We tried several places one afternoon, and one of them was the telephone company. A couple of days later they called and offered me a job. I went to work and finished up business school by taking night classes."

Olga's daughter, Mrs. Frances Caffrey, now lives in Richmond, but she left her mark on Virginia Beach before she moved. She was one of the organizers and fund raisers for the original public library on 22nd Street. She was also president of the Virginia Beach Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club and later was vice president of the Federation of Woman's Clubs.

Frances is as active as her mother and is now taking a full schedule to get a degree in social work—but she hasn't given up volunteer Girl Scout work while she's studying. Her own son is two months older than Olga's son, Jeffrey, and he is responsible for making Olga a great grandmother.

Olga, partly because of her own interest in the sport and partly because of Jeffrey, has always been interested and sympathetic toward the surfers and their problems. "I started the Surf Club. I got them to pull together. By putting their pictures in the newspaper, I won their confidence so they would work together for what they wanted."

Another sport Olga enjoys is tennis, also dancing although she does more watching than participating since she's been writing her column. And this isn't her first column. Originally it was called "Party Line." After giving it up for several years she came back as "Here Comes Olga."

"It's my way of mixing business with pleasure," she explains. "It helps me keep myself well known among the local people."

As for the future,--the thing uppermost in Olga's mind is a trip to Hawaii to visit Jeffrey during Christmas.

Mrs. Kyle busily autographing copies of her book.

Church History Is Beach History

She describes her book as "a history of Virginia Beach through the framework of the Episcopal Church."

The author in question is Louisa Venable Kyle, whose book "The History of Eastern Shore Chapel and Lynnhaven Parish 1642-1969" has just been published. A member of the Princess Anne County Historical Society, she is known to many Tidewater residents through her stories in a Norfolk newspaper. She has also written a number of freelance magazine articles.

"I've been carrying around this baby for 40 years and now I'm having it," said Mrs. Kyle. An autographing coffee was given at the church (of which she has been a communicant for more than 40 years) last week. Perhaps the proudest of the more than 300 persons in attendance was her husband, William E. Kyle.

The book, which traces the history of the area as well as the church, should be of interest not only to historians, but to descendants of families who settled this part of Virginia as well as to newcomers to the area. Sales of the book are being handled through The Parish Book Store of Eastern Shore Chapel. The book sells for $5.95, and all profits from sales will go to the fund to aid seminary students from the Diocese of Southern Virginia.

Citizenship Is Program

Mrs. William Brown of Arlington, Va., will speak on citizenship at the Nov. 11 meeting of the Princess Anne Woman's Club of Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Brown and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Kuen of Virginia Beach came to the United States from Sweden. Mrs. Kuen is club program chairman. The luncheon meeting will begin at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Americano.

Dam Neck NWCA 207

NWCA Dam Neck #207 met Thursday, Nov. 6, at 9:30 a.m. in the Special Services Building at Dam Neck.

Service Totals 184

Red Cross Volunteers, numbering 130, at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, volunteered a total of 17,000 hours of service in the last year.

This was the information given at a Volunteer and Recognition Ceremony last Thursday at the Officers Club at Little Creek. On top of that, those awarded at the ceremony had a total of 184 years of volunteer service.

Volunteers receiving caps were: Elizabeth Abercrombie, Janet Boschen, Mary Louise Casey, Jo Anne Cockrell, Barbara Graves, Connie Greene, Jean Hartley, Shirley Kitchen, Joan Lancaster, Mildred Lombard, Lorraine Nimmo, Mary Oliver, Bobbie Olson, Linda Peters, Susan Soule, Marcia Stacy, Palmira Sullivan, Alice Weber and Ingrid Weimer-skirch.

One-year service awards went to: Margaret Allen, Shirley Baker, Patty Bogener, Bette Borysiewicz, Millicent Branigan, Evelyn Brown, Doris Bruner, Aletha Colonna, Pamela Eskesen, Kathleen Feeney, Ann Ferguson, Sue Gillingham, Sylvia Higginbotham, Joyce Hoffman, Carol Loria, Frances Martin, Jeanne Maulin, Lynn Meade, Mary Morris, Jane Poole, Ruby Pope, Toni Sandler, Dorothy Schmidt, Betty Shirey, Susan Taylor, Linda Waltrip and Sharon Watts.

Two-year awards were earned by: Mary Aquino, Betty Duncan, Virginia Krejci, Martha McMillan, Faye Meadows, Jean Nicholas, Caroline Richter, Joan Rothrauff and Carole Watson.

Three-year awards were given to: Lorraine Dallaire, Dorothy Fremd, Lorie Moore, Pat Padgett, Edna Quisenberry, Patricia Roper, and Janet Sothan.

Margaret Dahlman, Katherine Hibbs, Neal Now and Juanita Peek got four-year awards. Elsie Carlson, Margaret Eady and Audrey Peters have five years.

Others, and their years, were: Marcia Benbow, six; Elizabeth Dixon and Sarah Dmoch, seven; Barbara Pressler, eight; June Corner and Anita Crawford, 11, and Mimi Crumming, 15.

Winning Program Set

"My America," a patriotic program written by Charles A. Williamson, of Yorktown, Va., will be presented at the monthly meeting of the Princess Anne Business and Professional Women's Club. The dinner meeting will be held at the White Heron Motel, Nov. 10th at 7 p.m. audience participation, will be narrated by J. Douglas Hubbard, according to Mrs. E. Smith, program chairman for the evening. The author, Mrs. Smith says, has been awarded the George Washington Honor Medal for this work.

Reservations for the dinner should be made with Mrs. Rosalie Wolfley, 428-3371.

Please Pass The Bug Spray

Remember the cute little fruit flies we all used in biology class in our redi experiments?

They were tiny and they stayed confined to their glass jars. They were tired of being pursued around the kitchen and were sharing the shower with them. Apparently they were multiplying.

They were tiny and a very ripe pumpkin. In the middle of the night my husband removed it from the table and it was on the floor. Anyhow the pumpkin was multiplying. I don't know what they were doing but they were multiplying. Speaking of Halloween, I don't have been more than three years old myself, and just stood there, holding a long blood red and a sorrowful piece of some bubble gum, but she still was looking up at me with a woebegone face. I dropped the piece of gum but still no reaction from her.

I asked her if anything was wrong, and she barely whispered, "Trick or treat." So, what could I do? I gave her another piece of bubble gum. Then she turned and walked away. I bet she had the fullest sack in town if she tried that at every house.

And just to finish things off right, my husband and I went to a dance Saturday night. We let the kids stay up late so they would sleep past dawn on Sunday. We got home and in bed about 2 a.m.

Would you believe that at 7 a.m. the six-year-old banged on the bedroom door and bellowed, "Trick or treat"? I was ready to get rid of her and the fruit flies with the same pest spray.

Doubt Makes Housewives Cyclamate Cautious

Cyclamate is the artificial sweetener that for some time was used in most dietetic beverages and foods.

Until recently, the public did not even know that an ingredient called "cyclamate" existed. But since the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington has been experimenting with the effects of this chemical, practically everyone knows.

After the possible dangers of Cyclamate were made known, the manufacturers of dietetic products began suffering. They had to find a substitute, harmless sweetener; they had to alter their advertising; they had to eliminate cyclamate from their manufacturing process, recall the necessary products from grocers' shelves and absorb the financial loss.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN asked Virginia Beach grocers and citizens how they felt about cyclamate, if they are still using it, and what problems, if any, they encountered.

George Brown, manager of the Be-Lo store on 30th Street, said, "Not all the products have been removed from the shelves yet. The man was supposed to have already done it, but he hasn't been in, and I don't have enough help to ask them to. The items are not selling, but the removal of cyclamate has not affected the store to any great extent."

Sal Musarra, manager of the Food Fair Pembroke Store, said, "We have not removed the items from our shelves and we have kept what we had. The products are still selling but not like they were. Our store has financially lost because when we sell out of an item containing cyclamate, we cannot replenish it."

Mrs. Robert W. Nash of Lakeside Drive: "We have not used it much. All we ever drank was pre-sweetened Kool-Aid, and we really didn't like it that much. It has not affected us at all."

Mrs. David Mathews of Twin Lake Road: "I have a boy eight years old who is overweight. I used an average amount of products, including the dietetic dinners. I also had a case of diet drinks in the house. I stopped using all these because

I don't believe in pushing my luck. I feel that if the Food and Drug Administration feels strongly enough to remove it, then I should remove it from my personal level.

"I hope they will find a substitute, but I will not go back on it. It may not really be dangerous, but if I ever went back, then in the back of my mind I would have that little fear. Now I just substitute other things, and I haven't noticed any weight gain in myself or my boy."

Mrs. George McPherson of Minute Men Road: "We don't drink it, but we never did drink that much. The only thing I used was this Sweet and Low, and now I've replaced that with Sacharin. I believe that if the government comes out with these reports, then I'll agree... although they used much larger doses with the animals than what I take. But it's better to be cautious than to be sorry later. Actually, the removal of Cyclamate was just a precautionary measure anyway."

Mrs. Steven Dorrier of Donawood Drive: I stopped using it. I used a lot of the diet fruits and Diet Pepsi. I no longer buy it or use it and I have noticed no significant weight gain."

So, it would appear the public is taking the warning seriously. The next question is, what about monosodium glutamate? Then after that, what?

Miss Sparrow

Sparrow-Dann Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thompson Sparrow of Virginia Beach announce the engagement of their daughter, Orelia Elizabeth, to John Christie Dann, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Marshall Dann of Wilmington, Del.

Miss Sparrow is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berger Lindberg of Monument Beach, Mass. and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Wesley Sparrow of Bridgetown, Va.

Mr. Dann is the grandson of the Rev. Dr. and late Mrs. John W. Christie of Wilmington and Mrs. and the late Mr. Walter M. Dann of Sharon, Pa.

Miss Sparrow graduated from Princess Anne High School and from Radford College, Radford, Va. At Radford Miss Sparrow was elected to Kappa Delta Pi and Pi Gamma Mu honor societies. She is completing an M. A. in American History at the College of William and Mary and is a member of the faculty of Berkely Junior High School in Williamsburg.

Mr. Dann is a graduate of Friends School in Wilmington and of Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. He is a member of Alpha Chi Rho social fraternity. Mr. Dann has completed residence requirements for the Ph.D. in history at the College of William and Mary and is presently writing the dissertation.

The wedding will take place at three p.m. on Jan. 24, 1970 in the Wren Chapel of the College of William and Mary.

The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, and their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Ajbers.

HERE COMES OLGA!

Saturday was a NIGHT! There was at least one ball, one open house and one dinner dance.

The ball was the Cavalier Junior's Lunar Ball at Pembroke Mall, featuring Count Basie. The crowd that came was from Virginia Beach and Norfolk too. And they were all ages.

Decorations were really out of this world. The band stand was set in a moon crater. From the Ceiling hung an assortment of stars and planets painted with bright fluorescent paint. Then "black" lights had been put in the fixtures to make them glow-not to mention how the people in light colors, also the men's white shirts, glowed eerily. It was a shock at first.

The dress for the evening was anything goes. There was one couple in sports clothes, there were a number of cocktail dresses and pants dresses all over the place. There were costumes too. Congratulations to Bev and Larry McEllan for winning first place. Costumes ranged from moon men to astronauts. A number of couples had added antennas to their heads and wore traditional clothes.

One of the notables from Norfolk was U. S. Rep. William Whitehurst who put in a brief appearance. There were several hundred people there, so I can't begin to name them all. Some of them, however, were Mr. & Mrs. Robert DeFord, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Salmon, Mr. and Mrs. Bev Middleton, Mrs. Mabel Owens, long a backer of the Easter Seal Society for whose benefit the ball was held; Mr. and Mrs. James Hutchinson, she's Cavalier president; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Engel, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parcell, she was responsible for the decorations; Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Feller, she was ball chairman; and Mr. and Mrs. Scott Mitchell.

Open house was held Saturday night to celebrate the opening of the Windjammer Motor Lodge.

Bill Campbell manager of the motel was kept pretty busy seeing that the guests were shown around the hotel and introduced to one another.

Of the many attending were: Mr. & Mrs. Bob Jans, Mrs. Laura Lamb, Mr. & Mrs. R. W. Jones, III, Mr. & Mrs. Earl Willis, Mr. & Mrs. John Griffin, Dr. & Mrs. R. B. Whitmore, Dr. & Mrs. S. N. Riggs, Dr. Roy Jarrett, Mr. & Mrs. Floyd Patrick, Mr. & Mrs. Bert Harrison, Mr. & Mrs. Al Malhies, Judge and Mrs. Phil Russo, Mr. & Mrs. Tommie Broyles.

I would like to ask Mr. Campbell whether the motel has a paper or do we have a motel? Our summer tourist guide is called the Windjammer. I would say we have a motel because we were here first. I am sure, Bill, there is room for both the motel and the tourist guide.

Mr. & Mrs. H. A. Albers entertained at the Bay Harbor club Saturday night with a dinner and dance in honor of Mr. & Mrs. Johnson who were recently married. Johnson is president and board chairman of E. C. Ernst, Inc., and they live in Washington. Albers, senior vice president is with the regional office located in Chesapeake. I would say that Mr. & Mrs. Albers are also newlyweds since they have been married only 11 months.

Mrs. Johnson was very attractively dressed in a silver lame sheath dress with shoes to match and a white orchid. Her earrings, bracelet and watch were outstanding. Mrs. Albers was wearing a beautiful black dress brocade in gold which was a dirndl bought in Vienna.

Some of the Virginia Beach people attending were: W. H. Terry, Jr., president of Virginia Beach Savings and Loan, Dr. & Mrs. J. C. Henry, Jr., Judge & Mrs. Robert Wabab, Mr. & Mrs. William Culpepper, Mr. & Mrs. Roy Ivey and Mr. & Mrs. Norman Groh. Out of town guests were Mr. & Mrs. Clinton Bell of Larchmont, N. Y., and Mr. & Mrs. Martin W. Taplin of Bel Harbour, Fla.

Ironing still remains the most disliked household chore, but even your ironing pad can speed it up. Select one with a metallic layer. It will reflect heat underneath fabrics as you iron, to cut ironing time. Another ironing chore easier is spray sizing. Because of its special lubricant, Magic sizing enables your iron to glide over garments sprayed with it, thus reducing ironing time. At the same time, sizing restores "like new" body and feel to garments.

Gift Check Will Buy Turtles

On Nov. 11, the Woman's Club of Chesapeake Beach will meet at the Tidewater Rehabilitation Center in Norfolk.

At this time Thaddeus Gaber, executive director of the Center, will be the club guest. A check will be presented to him by Pres. Mrs. M. Q. Roper on behalf of the club. This money will be used for the purchase of a "Turtle Family" play set to be set up in the therapeutic play area of the Center.

Following a buffet luncheon and a tour of the Center, Gaber will speak to the club on the need of such a playground as the Center provides for the children of the Tidewater area.

Mrs. Roper will preside at a short business meeting at which time Mrs. J. F. Bogdansk, chairman of the education department of the club, will give a report on the district meeting at which she was a delegate. Representatives to the VFWC Board of Directors Meeting will also give a report on the recent meeting held at The Homestead in Hot Springs, Va. Club delegates to this meeting were Mrs. Harry Fulford and Mrs. M. Q. Roper.

New Beater Frees Hand

A one hand beater whipped up a lot of excitement at the recent National Housewares Show in Chicago.

The beater, is characterized by a modernistic wing design and strong, tension spring action that makes mixing, beating or whipping almost effortless! Constructed of bright sturdy polypropylene, the beater is not only dishwasher proof, but it is nondamaging to Teflon surfaces. That means you can whip away to your heart's content without fear of scratching your favorite cookware.

The one hand wonder comes in a choice of three colors: black, pineapple and avocado; and it costs only $1.

Frost Won't Wait

Gardening enthusiasm gets a boost with cool and pleasant fall evenings, and that's fortunate because this is a busy season for outside living areas.

Autumn activity can include planting, some pruning, transplanting, planning, potting, preparing for winter protection and a host of other rewarding projects. Some suggestions offered by the American Association of Nursemen may assist home gardeners in scheduling their recreation time.

Fall is an important planting season, for example, for a number of things from bulbs to evergreens. Plants should have time to put down roots before the weather turns too cold. It's a favorable time to begin new lawns or renovate old ones. Bulbs go into the ground now. Create a rose bed this season. New perennials can be planted pretty soon. All the houseplants that were kept outside during the summer are due to be moved into the house this time of year. Repot those that have outgrown their pots and give all an application of fertilizer.

And fall is clean-up time. Nothing should be left in flower beds, shrub borders or vegetable gardens which might harbor insects, disease or rodents. Garden fences can get a coat of paint now, and any new construction work such as new paths, a rock wall, or a terrace can be started.

A few projects such as these can add to fall gardening pleasure, and pay big dividends next spring.

Phiblant Officers' Wives

APPLYING COLOR -- Pin or tape the stencil in place on the fabric. Apply textile paint with a stubby stencil brush, stroking on color from the outer edges of the stencil cutout toward the center. By using permanent textile paint and cotton fabrics, the place mats will be washable.

Stenciling Takes No Experience

Whether you're the all-thumbs type or an experienced do-it-yourselfer, you'll find stenciling is an easy way to imprint colorful designs on fabric.

For one thing, it's a craft that demands little in the way of artistic talent. You can buy stencil designs or trace them from art books or magazines.

Use stenciled motifs on place mats, curtains, pillow covers, bedspreads, dresses, aprons, even towels and pillowcases. Items stenciled with permanent, washable textile colors can be machine-washed without colors fading.

Choose a firmly woven all-cotton fabric for best results, advises the National Cotton Council. Wash first to remove any sizing in the fabric, and dress.

For stenciling, you'll need textile paints, special stencil paper or any heavy waxed paper, a stencil knife or single-edge razor blade, and a short stubby stencil brush.

Paints, brush, and stencil paper are available at hobby shops or art stores. Heavy waxed butcher's paper or freezer paper also can be used.

For your first stencil, use a simple design -- either a ready-made one or a motif traced from an art book or a magazine picture. Flowers, fruit, sunbursts, leaves, animal shapes and birds are good choices.

To cut your own stencil, place waxed stencil paper on top of a design you have sketched or traced on white paper. Tape to hold securely in place. Hold up against a window pane so the outline of the sketched design will be visible through the stencil paper.

Trace design onto stencil paper with a hard pencil. Then cut out the design with a special knife or single-edge razor blade.

If you plan to use more than one color in the design, cut separate stencils for each color area.

For instance, your design may be a flower with a long stem and leaves. You plan to paint the flower red, and the stem and leaves green. Therefore, cut one stencil for the flower and another for the stem and leaves.

Put fabric to be stenciled on a blotter or thick cardboard to take up any excess paint. Tack or tape the stencil in place on the fabric.

In using textile paints, follow manufacturer's directions. Stroke color on fabric with a stubby brush, working from the outer edge of the stencil cutout toward the center. Be sure you do not have too much paint on the brush. Wipe off excess paint on a paper before you start each brush stroke.

Let the first color dry before stenciling the next color area with a separate stencil cutout.

After you've decorated something simple -- like place mats -- you'll want to try your hand at a bigger project, like a bedspread or tablecloth. Stencil motifs over the entire spread, or just around the hem of a tablecloth. You'll find it's easy to be your own decorator when you take up stenciling.

Rules on Matting Are Flexible

Because picture framing is an art, the rules on selecting the molding and mat are flexible.

Miss Katherine Habel, extension specialist in home furnishings, has some guidelines in framing pictures. Frames protect the picture by safeguarding the edges and allowing easy handling and hanging. It separates the picture from the background.

"The intense subject matter area of a picture needs the boundary and transition provided by the frame," said Mrs. Habel. "A background that is either very quiet or very busy shouldn't compete with the picture for attention. A frame should harmonize in size, color, scale, and character with the picture or else be a simple band. Occasionally a frame is heavily carved or gilded or projects out to 'set off' the picture."

Glass is used to protect pictures, such as watercolors, graphic prints and pastels, that can't be protected with finishes. Place glass-covered pictures where light is not reflected in them or use a non-glare glass, she suggested. If non-glare glass is used, the pictures should be mounted directly against it so the picture won't look cloudy.

"Mats are used to enlarge pictures or surround them with needed resting space," Miss Habel explained. "They are necessary if the picture is small and delicate colors are used."

Water colors and prints are nearly always matted, she added. Oil paintings are seldom matted unless they need to appear larger. Mats are usually pale colored or white so that attention is directed to the picture. Sometimes bright colors, and patterns are used for mats to create a special effect, but this can be confusing.

Mats can be plain cardboard or they can be covered in a variety of fabrics, such as silk, linen, burlap, or velvet, for a wonderful textured effect, Miss Habel said.

"If the frame is very wide, the mat should be narrow," the home furnishings specialist said. "If the background is 'busy' or a narrow-band frame is used, a wider mat may be used. The space of the picture or the place it is hung may also affect mat proportions."

Other suggestions for matting include: square pictures look well with the bottom margin wider, with sides and top equal; long vertical pictures have a wide margin at the bottom, with the top margin next widest, and the sides the narrowest; and long, horizontal pictures have the widest margin at the bottom, the next widest at the sides, and the top the narrowest.

Notice the landscaping along General Booth Blvd. The planting was done by the City last year and the year before. The shrubs and trees are doing well and by next season they should present an attractive picture.

Notice especially the camellia sansanquas now in bloom. The plants are still small, but they are fast growers. In another couple of years the delicate pink blossoms will give a showy effect. You will see the sansanquas along the wire fence bordering the Camp Pendleton property. There is also a long row of other camellias that will be in bloom later on.

VIRGINIA BEACH Garden Club News

Bow Creek

G. B. Straley, a horticulturist from VPI Extension Service, spoke on fall care of shrubs, transplanting, and preparation of compost heaps at the Bow Creek Garden Club's first fall meeting. Slides were shown of fall planting and a chart was shown illustrating the construction of a compost heap.

The meeting was held Oct. 15 at the home of Mrs. Henry K. Edquist. Co-hostess was Mrs. Robert Evans.

After Straley's talk, Mrs. James March, the president, outlined the calendar of events for the coming year.

The club is holding a workshop once a week at the home of Mrs. Daniel Kahn to make Christmas centerpieces and mantel decorations.

Lynnhaven African Violet

"Insects: Prevention and Cures" was the topic of the program given by Mrs. C. L. Hershberger, Sr. at the October meeting of the Lynnhaven African Violet Society at the home of Mrs. Nelson Charlton.

Blue ribbons for violets and arrangements were awarded to Mrs. C. W. Diggs, Mrs. Carl Salland, 2, Mrs. E. A. Dawson, Mrs. Charlton, 3, and Mrs. Hershberger, 2.

Thoroughgood

A program on "The Making and Using of Candles for the Holiday Season" was presented by Mrs. H. L. Freeman at the October meeting of the Thoroughgood Garden Club, which met at the home of Mrs. P. C. Morris with Mrs. T. W. Gray as co-hostess. Mrs. Freeman said that "Candles light the home as a smile lights the face."

Plans for the "Holiday House" to be open in Thoroughgood on Dec. 7 and 8, were finalized, and the chairmen were announced.

Ribbons for artistic arrangements and horticulture specimens were awarded to Mrs. H. M. Jordan, Mrs. Richard L. Lindell, Mrs. William H. Harrison, Mrs. F. A. Manning, Mrs. M. W. Thorpe, Mrs. L. W. Tilt, Mrs. R. M. Reed and Mrs. S. L. Denly.

Built-In Aids Ironing

Half the headache of ironing is the setting up. A built-in ironing board is still the nearest, simplest solution and takes up little space.

One can be installed almost anywhere—in the utility room, kitchen, or sewing room if you are lucky enough to have one. Just be sure there's an electrical outlet handy.

The board itself requires very little depth but you will want the iron at hand, and possibly other accouterments. These may be set on shelves either recessed behind the board, or placed alongside, which requires more width but less overall depth. Either way it's only a matter of a few inches.

Try Plants under Lights

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

Growing plants indoors under fluorescent lights can be a delightful hobby during the winter. With such equipment you may enjoy gardening after the cold weather arrives and terminates your outdoor activities.

A fluorescent light setup is quite easy and economical to assemble. You may hand your installation over a bench or table, or purchase a rack containing three or four shelves with the fixtures already attached.

The fluorescent tubes and reflector should be hung by chains or other adjustable supports, so they can be raised or lowered to maintain the correct height. The lights should be located about six inches above your plants, and never more than 10 inches, to promote the best growth.

The types of plants which may be grown satisfactorily under fluorescent lights require at least 15 watts of light per square foot, and 20 watts is better. Forty-eight tubes of 40 watt capacity are the most practical for the average home gardener.

For maximum light output the tubes may be installed as close as four inches apart, with four tubes per fixture. They should never be located more than eight inches apart, with a minimum of two tubes per fixture.

Give special attention to the type of fluorescent tubes you select. Plants use primarily red and blue wave lengths of light. Gro-Lux tubes are designed especially for growing plants and produce a good balance of these colors. They cast a lavender glow which causes plant leaves to appear darker, and pink flowers to look red.

You may get a good balance of light by using a daylight tube, and a soft white or natural lamp in each fixture. The daylight tube will produce mostly blue light with very little red, whereas the soft white or natural tube will deliver mostly red light with a deficiency of blue.

Your plant growing unit may be placed in a basement, enclosed porch, or recreation room. The best temperature for most of the plants you will grow is about 68 during the day, and 60 at night. You will need to provide a convenient water supply, and a place to store pots, flats and soil.

Most plants need about 16 hours of light and eight hours of darkness each day. Your installation may be operated manually, or timelock may be bought. The use of a timelock makes the job much easier, and will provide proper control if you are away for a few days. Plants will not grow in a satisfactory manner if exposed to continuous light.

A fluorescent light setup is ideal for all types of foliage plants. It also will promote satisfactory growth and flowering of plants which typically grow in partial shade. African violets, gloxinia, tuberous and wax begonia, and tropical orchids are ideal plants for this method of culture. Annual flowers such as browallia and impatiens also bloom well under fluorescent light. Dwarf varieties of celosia, lobelia, marigold, and vinca may give satisfactory results.

Your fluorescent light setup will be very useful next spring for producing seedlings of vegetable and flower plants for your garden.

Donation Day Scheduled

The 1969 Donation Day for Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond will be Tuesday, Nov. 25th. A total of $180,000 will be needed to complete operating expenses for 1969.

Crippled Children's Hospital relies greatly upon statewide contributions from the public to maintain its costly program. Each year more than 4,898 patients, who otherwise would remain handicapped for life, are treated without charge to their families. The doctors give their time and skill free. Busy Richmonders on the Board of Trustees, the Board of Managers and the Junior Board put in hours of labor to keep the hospital running smoothly.

But in the final analysis, it takes money. Hospital costs miraculously have been held to $21.09 per day, chiefly because of the volunteer help given by churches, clubs and civic organizations. The hospital is not a member of the United Givers Fund and does not benefit from the sale of Easter Seals. Once a year it looks to Virginians for the funds it needs so desperately and ask them to share in our program to restore these crippled children to physical health and usefulness.

At Crippled Children's Hospital there is a huge room with many pieces of equipment for physical therapy. A staff of qualified therapists have been treating Virginia's children at this hospital since the program was started in 1950. Besides treating congenital dislocated hips, this free hospital treats patients with affection of growing bones such as rickets, infection of bones and joints, Tuberculosis of Bones and Joints, Polymyositis, Nerve Injury, Cerebral Palsy, Arthritis, Harelips and Cleft Palates.

During the past five years activities at Crippled Children's Hospital have increased. Operations have doubled during this period. This year the hospital has added an out-patient department due to the increased number of patients seen in the various clinics. In this program Crippled Children's Hospital is continuing its great tradition of giving every handicapped child the highest level of care in the best possible surroundings.

This week's Donation Day offers a timely opportunity to send a check to Crippled Children's Hospital, 2924 Brook Road, Richmond, Virginia 23200.

Open House Is Tues.

By Ronald Todd

At Cox, the annual open house is being held next Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. Parents will visit the students' classes and afterwards can see displays by the many organizations at Cox, including scrapbooks and descriptions of their projects.

Cox will try for win number five tomorrow night when they clash with the Granby Comets, at Cox. In other sports the girls' hockey team has completed its season with a perfect record and is first in the city. The team sent five members to the Tidewater first team. They are: Maury Williams, Maggie May, Debbie Matzen, Bev Cockman and Sandy Conkwright.

The cross country team has also completed its season, with a record of 5-1. They placed third in district, 8th in regionals and will be going to state Saturday. Top man on the team has been Paul Cross, who has placed first in four of the meets.

Basketball practice started Monday, and the Falcons are looking forward to another successful season.

Helene Kunschman, a fourth grader at Arrowhead Elementary, and David Walker, a second grader at Woodstock Elementary, were winners in an art fair sponsored by the Kempville Branch Library. First through third grades competed in "My Family" and fourth and fifth grades in "My Community." Prizes were books.

Homecoming Was Perfect New Kind of Program Set

By Mike Raper

Kellam High School

Friday, the Knights of Floyd E. Kellam High School celebrated their 1969 Homecoming in grand style. In a superb game, highlighted by the crowning of Holly Baker as Homecoming Queen, the Knights defeated the Granby Comets 42 to 8. Congratulations also go out to the Kellam Pep Club and Future Farmers of America for taking first and second place respectively in float competition. In line with the statewide elections on Tuesday, Kellam seniors held mock elections for the offices of governor, lieutenant governor and attorney general. Compliments go to the staff of the "Roundtable." If future issues look like this one just past, Kellam will have a paper to look forward to.

Saturday held two important events. On this day, many seniors suffered through Scholastic Aptitude Tests, commonly known as College Boards. At the same time the Kellam Drama Club and speech students were in Williamsburg, where they toured the drama department of the College of William and Mary and watched a performance of "The Unknown Soldier and His Wife" performed by students of the college.

New Kind of Program Set

A college informational program with a new twist will be held by the Virginia Beach public school system on Monday, Nov. 10.

Because of increased interest two sessions are planned with the college admissions personnel participating in the afternoon at First Colonial High School from 3 to 5:15 p.m. and then moving to Kempville High School for a night meeting from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Half-hour periods are planned to provide the opportunity for students to talk with three different college representatives. A final half-hour session will be arranged for individual conferences or question and answer participation.

Mrs. Frances Hudgins, supervisor of guidance and counseling services for the Virginia Beach schools has received acceptances from approximately 125 universities and colleges. An invitation to attend this college program is extended to students of the junior and senior high schools, parents, faculty members, administrators and other interested persons.

Homecoming Spirits Rise

By Carol Veltman

First Colonial

With Homecoming on Friday, First Colonial is experiencing what is probably its busiest, most exciting week of the school year.

The Spirit Committee has called the entire week before Homecoming, Spirit Week. Each class has a day that is all their own in order to out do all the other classes in promoting school spirit. Special skits, hats, signs, and songs have been designed in honor of this week by each class, hoping to squelch all competition in spirit.

Candidates for Homecoming Queen have been chosen. Barbara Land, Rebecca Martin, and Sandi Rice were the excited contestants for this title and now have only to await a final school wide election before the winner is announced.

Floats are reaching the final stages of completion in order to be presented in First Colonial's annual Homecoming Parade down Atlantic Avenue. The chickenwire, napkins, paints, and boards are taking the forms of battleships, oriental designs and flowery aprons as the five classes strive to take first place in the traditional float competition.

"Revolution" is the theme of the dance to be held immediately after the Homecoming football game. With entertainment to be provided by Zion Crossroads, a large crowd is expected. Spirit has been shown with such vigor around First Colonial that the Titans of Lake Taylor surely have much to fear since the Patriots have never lost one of their Homecoming games. They certainly do not intend to halt this record.

Register Delays Writing

By Paul Lankford

Bayside High School

This may well be the shortest article in the history of journalism. It is now 11 Sunday night. My Teacher's Register is due tomorrow morning and my aggregate days of absence just refuse to equal what they're supposed to equal. I am slightly perturbed.

STEP and SCAT tests were administered right and left this past week at Bayside. Don't ask me what those things mean - teachers gave them, the students took them, and a generally unpleasant time was had by all.

Friday morning a most enlightening and entertaining assembly was held in the gym. Sponsored by the S.C.A., the program featured Robert Funniss, Jr., and Del B. R. Middleton - the Republican and Democratic candidates, respectively, for the House of Delegates. The repartee was at all times lively and amusing; the topics of the morning ranged from extending the surfing area beyond the steel pier to introducing sex education classes in the schools. On Tuesday students will vote in a mock election for candidates in both the gubernatorial and House of Delegates races.

And now if you'll excuse me, I'll return to all those little numbers that simply won't become big numbers - the right big numbers, that is. Have a good week.

Thalia PTA Will Have Carnival

The Thalia Parent Teachers Association will hold their annual Fall Carnival on Saturday, Nov. 8, at the Thalia Elementary School from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Booths featured will be the Country Store, White Elephant pitching pennies, Target Shoot, Toy Chest, Cake Walk, Grab Bags, as well as Bake Sell, Pony and Mechanical Rides.

First Colonial and Kempville High School students make pennants for College Day at the two schools.

Five Broadway Shows to Visit

Five Broadway touring shows will be presented in Norfolk's Center Theatre during the coming season.

This year's attractions will include the musicals "Cabaret," "I Do! I Do!" and "Your Own Thing," the comedy "Spotted," and the drama "The Price." All performances are on Friday and Saturday evenings with a Saturday matinee.

The season will open on Nov. 7 with Hans Corried starring in Herman Shumlin's comedy "Spotted," based on the novel "Reuben, Reuben" by Peter DeVries. It's about a witty farmer who collects words and invents phrases with the express purpose of learning a new word everyday. Corried's film credits include "Bus Stop" with Marilyn Monroe, "Big Jim McCain" with John Wayne and "The Birds and the Bees" with Mitzl Gaynor. In recent years, Corried has delighted audiences throughout the country as a frequent touring star in Broadway shows.

The second show of the season "I Do! I Do!" will play December 5 and 6 starring Mimi Hines and Phil Ford.

The music is written by Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones, authors of "The Fantasticks" who based their book on the play "The Fourposter"—about the trials, tribulations and happiness of a marriage. Among the many hit songs, "My Cup Runneth Over" is featured. "Your Own Thing," a rock musical based on Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," will play Norfolk Jan. 23 and 24, while it is still running in New York. This show was the winner of the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award and has been playing to standing room only business since it opened in January of 1968. The tale of mixed-up lovers is currently playing on tour throughout the world. It has been scheduled for a motion picture version following the New York run.

Arthur Miller's drama "The Price" will run March 13 and 14—adding a powerful version of family conflict to the series. "Cabaret," the musical which recently passed the 1,000 performance mark in its third year on Broadway, will play here on May 1 and 2. Tandy Cronyn, daughter of Jessica Tandy and Hum Cronyn, will star. "Cabaret" was the winner of eight Broadway Tonys as well as the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award. The musical is about a flighty waitress improving her life in a decadent European city and the young writer who tries to save her.

Series tickets are now on sale at the Norfolk Center Theatre and are priced at $33, $29, and $25. Matinee performances are priced at $29, $25, and $21. Tickets for individual shows are on sale.

Chief Justice to Speak

Chief Justice of the United States Warren Earl Burger, a Minnesota native who calls Virginia home, will make the featured remarks at the 350th anniversary observance of the first official Thanksgiving in America.

Scheduled to begin at 11 a.m., Nov. 23 at Berkely Plantation, the program will highlight presentation of an original drama recreating events following the arrival of a small band of English settlers in Virginia. The public is invited, and tickets are on sale in Richmond, Williamsburg, and at Berkely.

Burger, whose brief remarks will precede the drama, will be introduced by Gov. Mills E. Godwin—who, along with E. B. Pendleton, Jr., president of the Virginia Thanksgiving Festival, Inc., extended the invitation. The Chief Justice and his wife will arrive in Richmond Nov. 22, and spend the evening, as guests of the Godwins, at the executive mansion. They are expected to return to Washington late the next day.

Described by an old friend as "a middle class, self-made man, the kind who is the backbone of democracy," Burger and his family have resided at Arlington for almost 15 years. During his appearance before the Senate Judiciary Committee early this summer prior to confirmation, Burger was "sponsored" by Virginia Senators Harry F. Byrd and William B. Spong.

A news story explained that while then Judge Burger was a native of Minnesota, he had been living in Arlington since 1955, and now considered Virginia his home.

The program will take place in a recently completed 24-acre amphitheater at Berkely, and some 10,000 people are expected for the observance. Co-authored by noted Civil War historian Clifford Dowdley and Dr. Welford D. Taylor, chairman of the English Department at University College of University of Richmond, the play will depict the arrival of Captain John Woodlief and his group. They landed on December 4, 1619 at what was then known as Berkeley Hundred, and celebrated the first recorded Thanksgiving in America.

Ferrante and Teicher's latest chartbound LP is titled after their current single, which just happens to be titled after the "X" rated movie "Midnight Cowboy." Even though the album in my book is rated "T" for tops. There are interpretations of some movie themes, contemporary melodies, and traditional songs.

Ferrante and Teicher have painted a moving, rhythmic picture of our time. They have skillfully incorporated the use of strings, voices and their famed pianos into a package of free-flowing artistry, enhancing many of the giant compositions of our day. Each cut comes alive with its own message, its own vitality.

Included in the album are: The symbolism of the Academy Award-winning "Windmills of Your Mind"; The tender, doleful love and tranquility of "Little Green Apples"; the intensely moral "Aquarius"; the rock-bottom quest for identity and haunting melody of the title song, "Midnight Cowboy"; the sadness of times and people lost forever in "Those Were the Days"; the poetic eloquence of "Scarborough Fair"; and the introspection and sensitivity of "My Way."

It's all there - Ferrante and Teicher and the music that is so much a part of them and of us. Listen and "live!" (United Artists UAS 6725)

"The Young Society"

Young Group Plays for Adults

A modern music group that 'plays music for adults of all ages' will appear for two performances during the week-long 1970 Auto Show at Pembroke Mall.

"The Young Society" will play Tuesday and Friday evenings, Nov. 11th and 14th, starting at 6. The trio consists of Chip Martin on guitar, Rusty Wilson on drums and Jan Haffling at the organ.

Their appearance at the Auto Show is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Automobile Dealers Association. The Auto Show itself will be held Nov. 9th thru 15th at Pembroke Mall, with approximately 50 new cars and special attractions on display.

Airman Curtis W. Williams, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Williams of Norfolk Road, and Ship's Serviceman seaman Appren. Michael H. Tylzynski, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Tylzynski of W. Bird Neck Road, are serving aboard the aircraft carrier USS Wasp.

Joseph M. McCoy has been promoted to grade E-2 on graduation from basic combat training. Private McCoy was assigned to Company D, 5th Battalion, 1st Brigade, United States Army Training Center, Infantry. The promotion was awarded two months earlier than usual, under an Army policy providing incentive for outstanding trainees.

Navy Ensign David L. McLintock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McLintock of Trantwood Avenue, is serving as a student naval aviator with Training Squadron Two at the Naval Air Station, Whiting Field, Milton Fla.

Group Changes Command

R. Adm. W. R. McKinney was relieved recently as Commander Amphibious Group Two at ceremonies at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

R. Adm. McKinney's next assignment is in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as Deputy Director of Logistics.

Hurst III, Chief of Staff under Adm. McKinney.

The group is composed of Amphibious Squadron Two, Four, and Six which includes a total of 22 ships that serve in both the Mediterranean and Caribbean.

Admiral McKinney assumed command of the group in August 1968.

Retired Officers To Meet

The Hampton Roads Retired Officers Association will hold a monthly dinner meeting at the Officers Club, Ft. Story, on Friday evening, Nov. 14, 1969.

Social hour will start at 7 p.m. with dinner at 8 p.m. The speaker will be V. Adm. W. R. Smedberg, II, USN (Ret), President of the National Retired Officers Association, Washington, D. C., and a former Chief of Naval Personnel. His subject will be matters of interest to retired officers.

All retired officers of the uniformed services and their ladies are cordially invited to attend. For reservations call Cdr. M. V. Cornetta, USN (Ret) at 425-6537.

Ens. Therese A. Driscoll, Navy Nurse Corps, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. John F. Driscoll of Admiral Circle, graduated from Naval Schools Command Officer Indoctrination Course for Nurses and Medical Service Corps, Newport, R. I.

Pungo Station Is Recognized

Men of the Coast radio station at Pungo have been chosen as the "Unit of the Month" for October in the Fifth Coast Guard District.

Commissioned in 1957, the station has played an important role in saving the lives of many persons on vessels in distress on the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

On Aug. 20 the Pungo station received a distress radio message from the charter fishing boat "The Leader", out of D & M Marina, reporting the vessel was taking on water fast. Within one minute the rescue center at Coast Guard headquarters in Portsmouth had been alerted and had dispatched helicopters and other vessels to the scene some six miles east of Cape Henry. The lives of 29 persons on the boat which eventually broke up and sank, were saved.

The station is commanded by CWO Phillip E. Thompson and has a complement of two warrant officers and 24 enlisted men. The unit also has a mascot -- a dog named SA Robert Pungo.

A normal day's operation at the station consists of broadcasting a mariners' notice, weather reports and storm warnings, as well as monitoring a number of radio frequencies which could be utilized by mariners in distress or in need of emergency assistance. Some 300 radio messages are transmitted or received during a normal day's operation.

Normal radio range during the daytime is between 300 and 400 miles; however at night the range of the station could reach as far as half way around the world. The station is also linked by teletype with every Coast Guard Group located north of the District headquarters in Portsmouth.

The Pungo station is equipped with a mobile unit which can be placed into service in the event of a disaster resulting in the failure of other communication facilities. This unit was placed on a standby basis during the recent floods which devastated many parts of the state and could have been placed into service if the need arose to coordinate Coast Guard rescue units for the recovery of flood victims.

Academy Makes Changes

Two significant changes have been announced by the Coast Guard Academy that will affect seniors making application to become cadets.

For the first time, College Entrance Examination Board test scores will be accepted for the tests taken prior to the Dec. 6 date, as well as the Dec. 6 test. In years past only the December test scores would be accepted.

The second major change is in the eyesight requirement which for years has been 20/30, correctable to 20/20. Now, applicants may have a visual acuity of only 20/40, correctable to 20/20. In addition, the Superintendent of the Academy may grant a waiver to outstanding applicants whose visual acuity is 20/100.

These changes are to a program of admissions that is unique among the nation's four military academies. There are no congressional appointments made to the Coast Guard Academy, and there are no quotas of any kind. Those who are accepted as cadets make the grade solely on personal ability.

Additional information and application forms can be obtained from the school guidance counselor or by writing to the Director of Admissions, U. S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut, 06320.

Retiree To Remain At Beach

Lt. Cmdr. Daniel R. Rivera of Kingswood Place in Princess Anne Plaza retired on Oct. 31st after completing 25 years of active duty in the Navy.

He served in a variety of assignments, including the past two years as assistant operations officer of the Manned Spacecraft Recovery Force, Atlantic, in support of the nation's space program, and was commander of the Norfolk-based gasoline oiler USS NESPELEN (AOG-65) during the search for an H-bomb lost off the coast of Spain in 1966. A former chief yeoman who was commissioned in 1958, his service included duty in the Navy Seabees, an assignment in a naval air transport squadron, and various ships and shore stations.

He is active in civic affairs and is currently serving as President of the Princess Anne Plaza Civic League, is a past President of the Plaza Little League and has held various posts in the scouting program.

A Virginia Beach resident for the past eight years, Lt. Cmdr. Rivera and his family will remain in the Beach following his retirement.

It's tough to get excited about Christmas when you think about the pile of bills that'll be waiting for you in January.

That's why you should have opened an F&M Christmas Club account last year. Then you'd be getting a fat check in the mail to really put you in a holiday mood.

But now's not the time to worry about this year. Instead it's time to start planning for next Christmas.

Open a Christmas Club account at F&M today. It's a good step toward establishing a money management program of your own.

And believe us, when the Christmas season rolls around next year, you'll be glad you did.

Divided Terms Set

Pending approval of a public hearing, formal adoption of a resolution by City Council and emergency action by the Virginia General Assembly, five of Virginia Beach's 11 City Councilmen, all of whom will be elected next year, will serve a term of only two years. The other six will be elected for four years.

Two of the five who will get two year terms will not know until after all the votes are counted.

This system was devised as a consensus of Council and with the assistance of City Attorney Harry Marshall in drawing up enabling legislation.

The idea is to stagger the terms of Councilmen so that there will always be experienced lawmakers, no matter what the outcome of a given election. This is the same method

Readers Oppose Merger

The greater part of those who replied to last week's SUN SURVEY question is against merger with Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake or any of the South Tidewater cities individually.

Of those who answered, 90 per cent said "No" to the question, "Should the city of Virginia Beach give serious consideration to merger proposals with the cities of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake, or any of them, as proposed recently?" A mere ten per cent were in favor.

While the question was posed only as "consideration", most in opposition addressed themselves to actual merger and dismissed any real consideration whatsoever.

One opponent said the many problems of Virginia Beach should be resolved assuming the problems of other cities. Other opponents did stress the importance of areawide cooperation, however; and said that inter-city bickering was not healthy for the future.

Proponents of the measure stressed economy of the operation of one government, less duplication of effort and again the importance of cooperation. But even many of them said the voters of any city involved should have to show overwhelming support before the matter should be brought to a vote of the citizens.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called to this week's SUN SURVEY question also, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

To put this plan into effect part of the councilmen who will be elected will be in for only two years instead of the usual four, but just for this once. Council agreed that the two of four at-large winners chosen in June 1970 who receive the highest number of votes will receive the four-year terms, and the other two will serve two years.

Building Record Passed

Robert Lohr can relax now. His prediction has come true. At the end of the first week in November Virginia Beach surpassed all previous records for building activity in a single year. Anything from here until the end of the year will only be icing on the cake and a challenge to future years.

A week ago Lohr, of the inspections division, said a new record appeared to be a sure thing. But he was a little gun-shy, since he said the same thing last year, and the old mark was barely missed by about $200,000.

Now Lohr, feeling a little more confident, says the 1969 total could reach $70 million, beating the old record by more than $6.5 million. He bases that on a number of apartment projects and at least one motel permit still pending.

by Councilman Lawrence Marshall was not acceptable. Therefore it was decided simply and without any fanfare at Monday's informal meeting of Council. By a lottery it was decided that Councilmen from Bayside, Lynnhaven, Kempsville and Princess Anne will get four-year terms next year, while those of Pungo, Blackwater and Virginia Beach will get two-year terms. It was considered ironic that three of the city's largest boroughs would get four year

The permit that put the city over the top last week was for a six-story $1,021,500 expansion of the Washington Club Inn at 8th Street and oceanfront. That brought the total permits for the year to $64,238,848, eclipsing the old record set in 1965 of $63,522,332.

It was in that year when much of the construction permits were issued for Pembroke Mall Shopping Center.

The year 1969 has been one of high interest rates and tight money, but apartment and townhouse construction, as opposed to the drop in single-family housing has made this a record year in construction in the city. In addition a great deal of commercial construction including shopping centers and motels has swelled the total.

So now Lohr can relax.

17-Year-Old Kills Self

A 17-year-old Virginia Beach girl shot and killed herself Wednesday afternoon at her home on Paris Street.

Police said Becky Heffner, a First Colonial High School Student, was alone in her room at the time. They said death came as the result of a .22 caliber pistol shot.

Detective William Bailey of the juvenile division, was dispatched to the home shortly after 1 p.m. Police said they knew of no suicide note, but there was no evidence of any foul play. A police spokesman said he was told the girl had been depressed for some time. School officials at First Colonial could not be contacted concerning the girl.

A fellow student described her as "a pleasant girl with lots of friends."

One school official said her mother had had several conferences with the principal lately but declined to say what they concerned.

Council May Be Sued

A decision is still to be made on whether or not Designated Living Inc. will file suit against City Council on a use permit denial.

A use permit to build 276 townhouses in the Huntington-Ridglea-Point O' View area was denied by City Council Monday although the 30 acres had already been zoned multi-family in 1965. James M. Pickrell, attorney representing the corporation, said there is little precedence for taking such a case to court.

Residents of the area, representing several civic leagues, had said that the townhouses would overcrowd schools, create traffic problems and reduce property values.

The six civic leagues representing Carolanne Farms, Point O' View, Ridglea, Huntington, Plantation Cove and Arrowhead, also asked a temporary freeze and further zoning and use permits in the area until the Planning Department prepares a land use study of Kempsville next spring.

Among other zoning matters before City Council was one for a use permit to construct a vocational-technical center (Virginia Beach's long-awaited Vo-Tech School) on North Landing Road near West Neck Road. It was approved. Bids for construction of the school were opened yesterday afternoon.

An application of Virginia Beach Medical Center, Inc. for a use permit to build a professional building to house 15 doctor's offices on First Colonial Road near the General Hospital was approved.

Merger Opponent Is 3rd Committee Member

Bayside Councilman Lawrence Marshall Monday became the third man of the Virginia Beach triumvirate that will talk with Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin about possible merger of the two cities or the possible merger of all four south Tidewater cities.

Marshall, who has long been a vocal opponent of merger, was appointed by Mayor Frank Dusch. No date has been set for such a meeting, but when it is, the city's three representatives will be Dusch, Marshall and City Manager Roger Scott.

Previously the consensus of Council was that the city is not interested in merger, but is willing to talk anyway, with the hope that better areawide cooperation can come from the talks. Marshall expressed this view when the matter was first brought to the attention of Council.

Shot Fired for Start Of City Council Race

With the 1969 gubernatorial election barely over the 1970 Virginia Beach City Council race is already gaining attention and coming into sharp focus.

Pungo Borough Councilman Kenneth Whitehurst, Sr., a veteran of 18 years on the old Princess Anne County Board of Supervisors and the combined city's City Council, becomes the first member of that body to make an official announcement concerning next year's election.

Whitehurst, senior man in experience, will not run again. His announcement came Wednesday in a formal statement which read:

"I wish to announce to the people of Pungo Borough and Virginia Beach that I will not seek re-election to the seat on the Virginia Beach City Council which I have held for the past 18 years.

"Although I feel that it is too early to make such an announcement, I have been approached by many friends urging me to stand for re-election, and I do not wish to deceive anyone by not clearly indicating my intentions. I simply feel that I have held this office long enough and it is time for someone else to take over my position.

"I wish to make it perfectly clear that I am not declining to run again under any pressure from any individual or political group, and I hold no malice or ill will toward any man on Council, or in public office in Virginia Beach.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed my many years on the Council and I want to thank the people of Virginia Beach, especially those in Pungo Borough, for their loyal support, and for the assistance and cooperation which I have received, for which I am deeply grateful."

Whitehurst follows the lead of his son, Kenneth, Jr., who was a one-term member of the Virginia House of Delegates, but chose not to run again this year. His seat was won by Richard Guy.

Following the announcement a number of possible candidates for the Borough seat were mentioned privately by several sources, but none publicly.

The only other member of City Council who has said he will not run again is Mayor Dusch, but he has not said so publicly. He all but closed the door in recent statements concerning his candidacy, but has held it open just a bit. A formal announcement concerning his non-candidacy is expected shortly.

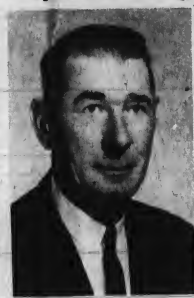

Bayside Councilman Lawrence Marshall has said privately he will be a candidate but no formal statement has been made so far.

Blackwater Councilman Earl Tebault, Kempsville Councilman Al Bonney, at large-Councilmen Murry Malbon and George Ferrell, Lynnhaven Councilmen Dewey Simmons and Princess Anne Councilman Curtis Payne have all indicated they will again be candidates, but have not said so formally.

The only man who has made no indication, publicly or privately, is Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell. Many of his friends and associates expect him to run, but others say he will not. Cromwell has said it is too early to say.

Virginia Beach Borough

Whitehurst

Councilman John McCombs has made no statement one way or the other, but he is not expected to run again in 1970, as he has indicated privately.

The field is hardly expected to be limited to incumbents and those who will take the place of those who do not decide to seek re-election. Several groups are reportedly forming tickets or trying to do so at present. A number of announcements are expected in the near future. Talk of a possible Simmons, Cromwell, Tebault, Malbon, Payne ticket has been discussed.

The Democratic primary election will be held in April, with the general election to be in June. In 1966 there were 21 candidates for the 11 seats. This time there are expected to be more.

But the ice is now broken with the Whitehurst announcement, and suddenly it's 1970, and the City Council election is only a short time away.

All That's Left Is Walls

A Virginia Beach landmark, Hurd's Restaurant, was gutted by fire Tuesday night. The outside walls of the building were left standing, but the interior was destroyed.

An employee, Robert Hammond of Robin Lane, inhaled smoke when he tried to put the fire out in the early stages. He was treated at the scene by men of the Plaza Volunteer Fire Department, then taken to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach, where he was reported in good condition.

Miss Patricia Hurd, one of the owners of the restaurant, her brother Harry, and Hammond were inside when the fire broke out shortly before 10 p.m.

"The last customer had just left about five minutes before," said Miss Hurd. "I had just checked all the switches in the kitchen as I always do, and everything was all right."

She said they were standing in the bar area and headed for the front door to leave when they saw the kitchen was in flames. Miss Hurd said she sprayed herself with part of the contents of a fire extinguisher and she and Hammond tried without success to extinguish the fire which was spreading rapidly, apparently fed by grease.

By the time fire units of London Bridge Volunteer Fire Department arrived the entire interior was in flames. Plaza units helped control the blaze within a very short time. One fireman said it was one of the hottest fires he had ever seen when he arrived on the scene.

Miss Hurd, president of the corporation, was joined by several members of the restaurant family at the scene. She cried often as she surveyed the ruins.

"We just finished about $20,000 worth of renovations recently," she said, "including about $6,500 in wiring."

She added that a fireman told her it appeared that a short circuit may have been the cause of the fire. The white stucco, one-story building was insured for $50,000 she said, reportedly far less than the damage of the fire.

Miss Hurd pointed with pride at the exterior walls, however, and said, "My Daddy built this place with his own hands, and it held up tonight."

The restaurant has been in

"We won't give up," said Miss Hurd. "The Hurd's never do, no matter what. We'll be back in business."

She said the operation was to be closed in about two weeks anyway for extensive renovation, including a 300-seat dining room. The appraiser was due to arrive Wednesday morning as part of the paperwork necessary for securing a loan for the new part of the building.

"And this is all we have left to show him," said Miss Hurd.

Miss Hurd walks away from the fire. Other members of her family can be seen on steps at the gutted entrance.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell spoke to a full house at the dedication of Plaza Junior High School. Sen. Spong, city and school officials joined Brickell on the platform.

Plaza School Opens - Officially

Plaza Junior High School officially became part of the Virginia Beach school system Sunday during dedicatory ceremonies held at the school. The ultra-modern, new concept school has been open for students since September.

U. S. Senator William B. Spong, Jr. was the principal speaker for the dedication.

He told the capacity crowd that filled the auditorium that local and state aid to schools had improved greatly in recent years, but that the Nixon Administration's school aid bills are "entirely inadequate."

He pointed out that school Council park (Atlantic) on the south side of the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway and east of Birdneck Road was approved.

An application by Gustava Corporation for a use permit to construct 184 apartments south of Northampton Blvd., north of Shell Road and across from Cullen Road was approved.

An application, at first opposed by Larkspur residents, for a use permit to construct 568 townhouses along Holland Road near Larkspur was approved after differences between residents and Kemperville Meadows, Inc. were worked out.

In Wednesday's Planning Commission meeting, denial of an application by Walker Realty Co. for a use permit in the Kings Grant-Kingston area to build 322 townhouses was recommended. The application earlier deferred for 60 days, was opposed by both the Kings Grant and the Lynnhaven-Little Neck Civic Leagues because of school overcrowding and traffic congestion on Little Neck Road. A recommendation that the application be approved subject to improvement of the road was voted down 8-4.

superintendents never know just how much aid they will actually receive during current years until long after they have had to budget themselves. He called for increased federal aid immediately, instead of the possibility of doing away with such programs as impact funds, as is under consideration.

Formal presentation of the building was made by architect Louis A. Oliver of Oliver and Smith, AIA, to school board chairman, J. W. Buffington. Spong was introduced by school Supt. E. E. Brickell, who along with principal J. J. Owens, Jr. discussed the concept of stress on individual education being employed at the school.

The school's band and chorus provided entertainment. A tour of the building, including the planetarium was held following the ceremonies. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

Boys Sentenced

Judge Mary Speight Weiss has found two 16-year-old juvenile boys within the purview of the Juvenile Court on charges resulting from the burglarizing of 12 Virginia Beach homes. Judge Weiss placed one of the juveniles, charged in two of the burglaries, on an indeterminate period of probation. The other, charged in 10 burglaries, was committed to care of the State Department of Welfare and Institutions. Two other juvenile boys, both 17 years of age, charged in connection with the burglaries have been bound over to a Circuit Court grand jury. One of these was charged with six of the burglaries, the other charged in four of the burglaries. Police officials said jewelry, guns, stereo sets, liquor, tape recorders and television sets representing a combined value of some $20,000 were taken during the burglaries. A number of rings valued at nearly $16,000 were reportedly taken from one of the burglarized homes.

Several City Councilmen, the City Manager, a number of city officials, all school Board members and members of the school administration were also on hand.

Toll Road Too Popular

The Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway is not quite two years old, and is already suffering rather severe growing pains. Relief may come before the road's fourth birthday, however.

Consulting engineers say portions of the connecting road from Norfolk to the oceanfront will likely be widened by 1971. Interstate 264 from Norfolk to Newtown Road and the Virginia Beach City limits is three lanes wide in either direction, but the expressway is only two lanes from that point to the oceanfront.

Widening the road an additional lane all the way is not yet under discussion, but traffic volume is being watched closely as this possibility takes shape. The major widening under consideration at present concerns the westbound ramp at Independence Boulevard. That will probably take place in the spring of next year.

In addition the main toll plaza will probably be widened from ten to 12 lanes if present growth continues. And E. H. Orange, director of the State Highway Commission toll facilities says the road will definitely have to be widened an additional lane from Newtown Road to Independence Boulevard within the next two or three years. At peak periods last summer traffic reached 90 per cent of design capacity in that area.

The eastbound ramp at Independence Boulevard has already been widened this year. The road is the fastest growing toll road in traffic volume in the United States.

Traffic is up one-third in 1969, 30 per cent in October alone. The $34 million road is also healthy financially, and is more than meeting the necessary funds for paying of construction bonds, interest and other expenses.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Case Set Dec. 5

Frederick A. (Fritz) Marks of Virginia Beach is scheduled to enter court at Dare County District Court at Manteo, N.C., on Dec. 5 on attempted abortion charges. Authorities said 52-year-old Marks was arrested this past week at his S. Gum Avenue home and charged with an attempted abortion on a 19-year-old girl who lives in Virginia Beach. Authorities said the alleged attempted abortion took place during September at the Pebble Beach Motel at Nags Head, N.C. Mark's arrest resulted from a joint investigation conducted by members of the Virginia Beach Police Department, the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation and the Dare County Sheriff's Department.

E. Miller guilty of a charge of illegal possession of narcotics. Miller, 19, of Hannibal Street, was arrested last May 13 when, according to police, a quantity of drugs was found in the trunk of a car in which Miller was a passenger. Wahab has delayed sentencing of Miller pending the outcome of a presentencing report.

Robbery Conviction

Elmer Hines, 19, of Daniel Smith Road, has been sentenced to 12 years in prison following his conviction of a charge of armed robbery. Hines was found guilty by a Chesapeake Circuit Court jury of the March 8 robbery of a 7-Eleven store at Providence Road and Sparrow Road. Officials said an estimated $1,100 was taken from the store safe in the robbery.

Burns Bring Charges

Officials of the police department Juvenile Division said they have charged a Virginia Beach couple with cruel and inhuman treatment of a child. Authorities identified the accused as 22-year-old Ronald J. Gail, and his 19-year-old wife Jane, both of Delaware Avenue. Investigators said the couple was charged after their 10-month-old daughter was hospitalized with first degree burns over 20 per cent of her body and second degree burns over 10 per cent of her body.

Contest Sanction May Be Withdrawn

At a time of the year when there is less surfing activity in Virginia Beach than during the peak summer months, the sport of surfing has again caused problems for city officials.

The East Coast Surfing Championships, held for the past seven years in Virginia Beach may be moved elsewhere or at least lose official sanction, if the city does not remove some of the rigid restrictions on surfers and surfing, according to a representative of the Eastern Surfing Association, which sanctions the event.

R. Robert Huber of Westport, Conn., wrote City Manager Roger Scott and the president of the Virginia Beach Jaycees, which sponsors the championships, saying that sanction will be withdrawn unless consideration is given to the surfers, new or enlarged surfing areas are opened and less stringent regulations are enacted.

Huber called mostly for enlargement of the Steel Pier area and the possibility of utilizing Croatan Beach. No deadline was given for meeting the prerequisites, but it was assumed by city officials that Huber referred to next summer.

Jaycees president Bill Sheppard said his organization is quite upset over the possibility of losing the event sanction and is hopeful of working out some equitable compromise. Scott said the entire surfing situation will be looked into again, with the hope of coming up with new recommendations by spring.

Last spring a city committee recommended enlarging the Sandbridge surfing area, using Croatan Beach area and extension of legal surfing hours. But a storm of protest from Croatan residents and the threat of court cases kept anything from being done at all. Surfing is allowed at all sections of the beach during different hours, according to the use, more or less, by bathers.

Huber said the loss of the sanction would mean a loss of much media coverage in publicity to the city and the loss of top surfers if the event were held anyway. Scott said he has not been able to decide what effect this would have on the city or its eventual decisions regarding surfers.

Surfers and surfing have caused considerable headaches for city officials in recent years, as the city has tried to meet increased demands for space on a crowded oceanfront. While mindful of the popularity of the sport the city has been hard put to find an equitable solution.

Police officials say that during the championships the rise in crime is apparent. They add that it is not necessarily due to the surfers themselves, but to crowded conditions in limited space and to an unsavory crowd that follows similar events.

Like Huber, who says he and his association take surfing quite seriously, a number of Virginia Beach surfing interests are extremely concerned about the present situation. They do not wish to lose the event or sanction, and are quite vocal in their opinion.

Thus once again the matter of surfing has reached a boiling point, and little hope is seen in finding all the answers necessary.

Downing Upholds Patriotism

First District Representative Thomas N. Downing praised American veterans of world conflicts during special Veterans' Day services at Rosewood Memorial Park.

He praised those veterans of America's military services who are no longer living as "so many who served and sacrificed that the great heritage of American citizenship might be ours".....and for their serving "their country with the deepest measure of devotion."

In praising those living veterans of world conflicts, Downing also expressed his concern for them. He said "I am deeply concerned because the views of many of our veterans are considered 'old hat'."

Downing added, "and I am proud to include myself as a veteran of U. S. Army service during World War II, because the President is our commander-in-chief, it makes no difference to us what his name is or to which political party he belongs. He is the chosen leader of our country, elected by the people and he is our commander-in-chief."

Downing also warned of the possible consequences of criticism of the Nixon Administration's stand regarding the Vietnam War. He said "President Nixon knows far more about what is going on in Vietnam--and the rest of the world, too, for that matter--than you and I know. That is the way it has to be. "For any one of us to offer gross criticism to our President's policies concerning the conflict in Southeast Asia when we do not have the benefit of all he knows, can do nothing but undermine the world position of the United States."

The treatment of Americans who have been taken prisoner by the North Vietnamese came under harsh attack from Downing. He said, "No one knows what happens to American servicemen when they are taken prisoner. No one even knows who is in prison and who is dead. Even though the North Vietnamese have signed the Geneva accord concerning the treatment of prisoners in wartime, they deny the protection of the Geneva convention to all Americans whom they have captured."

"They do not release a list of names. They will not repatriate the sick and wounded. They will not allow inspection by a neutral team of observers. They will not even allow the men to correspond with their families."

Those who apparently attempt to shirk their military service responsibility also drew comments from Downing when he said, "The veteran is a man who saw his duty and did it, not always because it was his choice but because it was his obligation. And quite openly and honestly those of us who have accepted this obligation in the past have extreme difficulty in understanding why others not only deny it today but criticize those who accept it."

Guests who attended the service included Mayor Frank A. Dusch, Circuit Court Clerk John Fentress and Virginia Beach recently elected Delegates, Richard Guy and B. R. Middleton.

Color guards which took part in the service included those from the Virginia Beach police department, the U. S. Marine Barracks, American Legion-Virginia Unit Three, the Navy's FAAWTC at Dam Neck, the 79th Army Battalion at Fort Story, the Naval Air Station Oceana, the Langley Air Force Base 4500 Air Base Wing, the 5th Coast Guard District and the U. S. Marines, Atlantic Force Training Command.

Special music for the memorial services was provided by the ComPhibLant Band from the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

At the conclusion of the memorial service everyone stood at attention or bowed their heads as Downing placed a wreath to honor those American servicemen who gave their lives in protection of their country, at the foot of a cross and the sounds of the traditional memorial "volley of shots" filled the air, performed by the Langley Air Force Base rifle team.

First District Congressman Thomas Downing was the principal speaker at Veterans' Day ceremonies at the memorial park.

Zodiac Featured

This Sunday will mark the beginning of public showings at the recently completed planetarium at Plaza Junior High School, according to Herbert D. Tiescher, planetarium director.

Programs at the planetarium during November will center around the zodiac, an imaginary region which contains 12 constellations of stars, as well as the paths travelled by the moon, the sun, and the major planets.

Sunday's program will include an address by Tiescher during which he will give an explanation of the zodiac, prominent myths attached to the constellations and the relationship of the constellations to astrology.

A number of Boy Scout troops are taking advantage of the planetarium for completing necessary work in the earning of troop merit badges.

Public showings at the planetarium during the remainder of November are presently scheduled for 2 p.m. on each Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday.

Dredging Bids Asked

Bids have been asked by the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission for a commercial dredge to clear the sand-filled sand trap and channel of Rudee Inlet. Bids will be opened at 3 p.m. Monday, November 17, at the office of the commission's consulting engineer, Langley, McDonald & Overman.

The cost of the operation has been estimated at about $100,000 and six dredging firms were invited to bid on the project, terms, when the method was by chance alone.

The public hearing, with Delegates Richard Guy and B. R. Middleton and Sen. Edward T. Cason III present, is expected to be held on Dec. 15, Council must then pass resolutions asking the Virginia General Assembly to make changes in the City Charter on an emergency basis (requiring an affirmative vote of four-fifths of

The commission, meeting in closed session, declined to hire a dredging firm without open bidding. The funds for the project will come from the commission at the strong request of City Manager Roger Scott.

The dredge operation will clear the sand trap to the planned depth of 18 feet and the channel to ten feet. E. H. Church, chairman of the commission, said he is confident the commission's own sand-sucker dredge can then maintain the channel and the trap.

The difficulty has come in opening both completely at the same time, and sand has often built up in the channel due to storms. About two weeks ago charter boat owners and captains protested to City Council and asked for relief, saying at least three boats had gone aground. A meeting by all concerned prompted the bidding. The work is expected to take about four months to clear 100,000 cubic yards of sand.

The dredged sand will be deposited on the beach between Rudee Inlet and 48th Street. Meanwhile charter boats have taken refuge at other marinas until the operation makes it possible for them to return there. Initial clearing of the sand trap and maintaining the channel are considered absolutely necessary before the Rudee Inlet area can be developed as planned as a sportsman's paradise and motel mecca. The city's permanent marina there is expected to be partly ready by next spring.

the membership of each house) so that the new plan can take effect in time for the June 9 election. On an emergency basis the law goes into effect with the Governor's signature.

Other expected changes in the charter are expected to raise the pay of Councilmen and the Mayor. Another would possibly combine the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission with the Rudee Inlet Authority, as suggested by Vice Mayor Robert Cromwell.

Long Awaited Clash to Be Friday

In this final weekend of high school football involving all Virginia Beach schools, the featured event is the long-awaited clash between First Colonial and Kellam.

Both last weekend. The Knights of Kellam lost a close one to the Wildcats of Great Bridge, second seeded in the state. And the Patriots of First Colonial lost in an upset to the Lake Taylor Titans, losers just the week before to Princess Anne.

Kellam squared off against Great Bridge after four consecutive wins and after amassing 130 points in those four games. And the Knights held the lead at halftime, 8-7. But Great Bridge rallied in the second half for two touchdowns, one in each quarter, to win it, 21-8.

Lora Hinton, Wildcat stand-out, had been injured the week before and did not play until the third quarter. He saw little action, was held to 35 yards and scored only two points. Neither team scored in the first quarter and Knight quarterback Carl Summerell passed for the Kellam score and conversion. The game gave Kellam its second consecutive 6-3 record, but the Knights are favored to make that 7-3 this weekend.

First Colonial lost the ball on three interceptions to Lake Taylor, and all three became Titan touchdowns. The Patriots tallied a disappointing 127 yards in the air and on the ground. The Titans gained 246 yards on the ground and none in the air.

The Kellam-First Colonial tilt is for the Virginia Beach championship, which the Pats won last year. But then the Pats had never lost a homecoming game until last Friday night. Kellam appears the favorite in all departments if FC's passing can be contained.

In the other two games involving Virginia Beach teams, Bayside is at Kempville and Cox is at Princess Anne.

Cox, once highly favored, has been in a tailspin recently, following the loss to Kellam. Favored to beat Granby last weekend after Kellam smashed the Comets the week before, Granby clobbered the Falcons to the tune of 51-0.

Granby's much-heralded defense moved into high gear, containing the Falcons completely. The Comets scored easily in each quarter in the easy romp.

Princess Anne made it two in a row last weekend, with a convincing 38-28 victory over Bayside. Bayside managed to score in all quarters, but could not keep up with the surging Cavaliers. Fullback Jerry McGrath scored three TD's for the Cavaliers and three two-point conversions. He proved to be the difference in the game.

Cox, however, still has plenty of razzle dazzle left and some fine, precision passing. It may be close, but the Falcons take a slight nod over the Cavaliers this weekend.

The other game is a battle of the losers. Bayside scored an upset over Kellam earlier this season in its only win in three years. Kempville has won only two, and Norfolk Catholic.

Kempville was beaten 49-20 by Larry Stepany and the rest of the Norview team last weekend. Kempville kept the score close until the fourth quarter, when Norview exploded for 29 points, to the Chief's eight. In fact it was 21-20 early in the fourth quarter, when the Pilots really went to work.

This Bayside - Kempville game is one that is difficult to predict, but the young chiefs should have a very slight edge. Only one game involving a Virginia Beach team will be played next week. That one finds First Colonial against Granby next Saturday at Foreman Field, and that will end the season.

Shots Fired; Few Hit On 1st Day

State Game Warden

It was 5:15 a.m. when we parked the car and started into the field. Inside the car was warm but as I stepped out into the morning air I was glad I brought my coat and boots. We had about a mile to walk to the fields we wanted to watch. There were reports last year that the bag limits were exceeded.

We crossed three drainage ditches in the dark and stumbled across the fields. The hunters were already coming into the fields, so we took to the briar infested woods to avoid being detected.

We were in position shortly before sunrise. A few moments later the sound of geese honking filled the skies.

They were on their usual flight from water to field where they would feed.

Three geese set their wings and started to land directly in front of us before they could, two guns barked. Fire flew out of the barrels but missed its mark and the geese rose upward out of range.

As they flew off another flock was coming in but shots in another field made them also rise out of gun range.

In the next three hours we would see 250 to 300 geese pass over the three fields and five blinds filled with hunters. Many geese would prepare to land, but only five would be killed.

No violations were noted, so we never left our presence known.

November 17 marks the opening of small game season in Virginia. Rabbit, squirrel and quail will be legal, and from appearances there should be plenty for all.

Also deer season will open state wide the same day. Check your game pamphlet for bag limits and restrictions in the area you intend to hunt.

Public Can Buy Tickets

For the first time, there will be a sale of season tickets, to the general public, for the home games of the ODU basketball Monarchs for the forthcoming season.

These tickets will be sold by sorority and fraternity members of the college and by the ODCIF. All proceeds will be used in support of the Basketball Scholarship Program.

The price of a season ticket is $30 and the purchaser will realize the following benefits with his purchase:

1-Seat in a reserved section for 14 home games

2-First consideration for tickets for future tournaments as well as season ticket sales.

With the two "Christmas Tournaments" already featuring such teams as Brigham Young, Rice, Xavier, Auburn, Tulane and the University of Indiana, this is important. There will be a limited number of these tickets sold. In addition to the above sources, they may also be purchased at the ticket office, Norfolk Municipal Auditorium.

The Basketball Scholarship Program in recent years has been underwritten by the ODCIF through contributions and various fund raising projects. Contributions to the foundation are tax deductible.

The 1969-70 Monarch basketball team, last year's Mason-Dixon and Fort Eustis Christmas Tournament winners, is composed of ten Varsity and seven Freshmen members. All receive financial aid. A scholarship requirement is that they maintain at least a C average. The basketball team has consistently carried a higher average.

Drug Program Set by League

A film on narcotics and a talk by a narcotics squad member will be featured at the Monday, Nov. 17 meeting of the Aragona Civic League.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Aragona Recreation Center at the end of DeLaura Lane. Parents are invited to bring teenagers to the meeting.

Striped Bass Derby Opens Nov. 15

Don't put away that fishing gear! In the Chesapeake Bay area where fish are king-sized and winters are mild, the Second Annual International Striped Bass Derby is about to get underway.

Objective of the contest, which runs from Nov. 15 through Dec. 31, 1969, is to catch the biggest striped bass in the Virginia section of the Chesapeake Bay. Boundaries within which fish must be caught are between these points: the Maryland line on the North, Virginia-North

National Group Meets

Members of the Shrine of North America's national committee on benefit football and athletic contests will hold a business meeting in Norfolk Sunday, Nov. 16, as one of the post-game activities of the annual Oyster Bowl.

Under the chairmanship of Noble Walter H. Vartan of Medinah Temple, Chicago, the group will include representatives of the Islam Shrine East-West game in San Francisco, the North-South All-Star Mahi Shrine game in Miami's Orange Bowl, the annual Khedive Oyster Bowl of Norfolk, Shrine Bowl of Nebraska in Lincoln, the Al Malaikah Temple's North-South all-star high school game in San Diego, the Pretzel Bowl sponsored by Rajah Temple of Reading, Pa., and New England's lone Shrine football game, the Maple Sugar Bowl at Hanover, N. H., sponsored by Bektash, Cairo and Mt. Sinai Temples.

Attending the Sunday meeting will be Imperial Potentate J. Worth Baker of Murat Temple in Indianapolis, one of the founders of the famous 500 Festival preceding the 500-mile speedway classic. Accompanying him will be Deputy Imperial Potentate Aubrey C. Graham of Khedive Temple, Norfolk, one of the founders of the Oyster Bowl, and Imperial Shrine Recorder George M. Saunders of Chicago.

Representatives of several other Temples from around the United States, who are interested in starting football and other athletic contests as benefits for Shriners Crippled Children's Hospitals, will attend.

Carolina line on the South and the Virginia portion of the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries.

Trophies will be awarded for the largest fish in each of three divisions: men, women and junior (boys and girls 14 years of age and younger). The tournament sponsored by WTAR-TV is free to all entrants.

Biggest fish caught in the 1968 tournament was a 54-pounder, taken by John Harlow of Richmond. Naomi Thomson of Norfolk, came in with a 33-pound striper. Winner in the Junior Division was Alesia Lozito of Virginia Beach whose fish weighed 28 1/2 pounds.

The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel which goes over and under the Bay at the tip of the Delmarva Peninsula and Virginia Beach is the prime reason for the International Striped Bass Derby is held, according to Tournament Director Jeff Dane.

"The wintertime fishery that has developed in the Virginia Beach area for lunker stripers came about more by accident than design. In April, 1964, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel opened to the public, thus affording the traveler a quick route to and from the Eastern Shore of Virginia and the mainland. It also provided a sort of high-rise apartment dwelling for the big striped bass. They moved in in numbers and set up housekeeping, much to the delight of the local fishermen. The International Striped Bass Derby, a free tournament for all, was dreamed up as a way to publicize this fishery and to interest people in visiting the Virginia Beach area."

Entry blanks and rules for the International Striped Bass Derby can be obtained from the Tournament Director, WTAR-TV, Norfolk, Va., 23510.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

Men of the Oceana Volunteer Fire Department were called upon to render an unusual rescue service last Saturday. We understand a resident of Windwood Shore Drive reported he had been hearing sounds similar to a dog's barking or howling coming from marshes in that area. Men of the Oceana unit were dispatched to the scene and, after donning hip boots, moved into the swampy area to investigate and rescued a large bird dog which apparently became tangled in the thick underbrush and bogged down in the marsh.

Next Monday, Nov. 17, marks the official opening of the small game hunting season in Virginia. Those sportsmen who are planning on "taking to the woods" in quest of their limit included police Lt. F. S. Krahenbill and Sgt. N. C. Morse, both attached to the 2nd Police Precinct. The last time we spoke with them they were engrossed in a discussion of comparing marksmanship, game finding abilities, and enjoying the "fruits of their hunting trips".

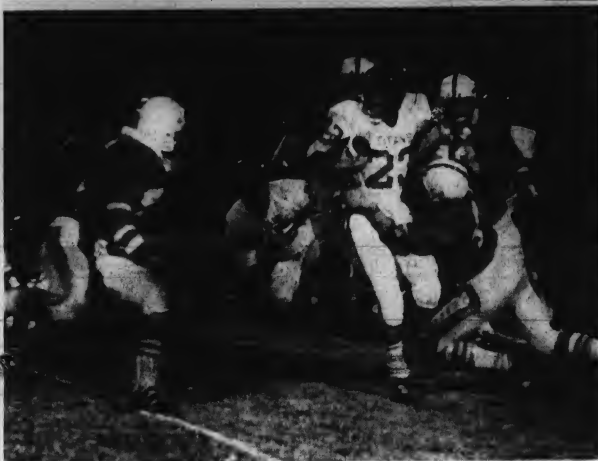

The volunteer firemen of the city requested us to express their sincere appreciation to all residents of the city who responded to their annual drive for toys to be distributed to needy children at Christmas. However, we understand they have received all of the repairable toys they will be able to handle. Those who wish to donate new toys for the drive may still do so by phoning 464-4274 and arrangements will be made to pick-up the items.

Another new officer was added to the duty roster of the Virginia Beach police department. Officer Steve W. Summerlin has joined the 3rd Police Precinct, and his fellow officers report he is coming along just fine.

Veteran's Day was a special day in many ways for R. T. Munford of the city's Animal Control Bureau. We understand Tuesday was his birthday. A few of his friends at the 2nd Police Precinct invited "Dick" to celebrate the occasion by joining in a round of "toasts of well wishes" with cups of coffee. As we left the friendly gathering Dick was still searching his pockets for a dime.

For Staggered Terms

City Council will make another positive move forward after a public hearing and Virginia General Assembly action on the matter.

The terms of Councilmen will be staggered for the eleven members, six elected at one time and five at another, pending approval of the proposed legislation. In next year's election however, all 11 members will again be elected on the proven seven-four borough and at-large representation.

But five terms will be only for two years to set the new plan in action. Three borough representatives have been chosen by lot to serve two years, and the two winning at-large candidates receiving the smaller votes will also serve two years.

In the last election there were only four newcomers, with seven incumbents winning easily. This may not always be the case. It is, therefore, imperative, that this new legislation is passed. Then no matter who wins or loses there will always be experienced Councilmen to carry on after each election. This is highly important to the continuity of good government.

This same type of staggered term election is held in other large cities of Virginia, and has always proved highly successful for a responsible efficient city government.

This requires a Virginia Beach City Charter change through the state legislature, but should not cause any problem. This is a good move, and one that has been needed for some time. And it is another sign of progress in the governing of the city soon destined to be the state's largest and most progressive.

Stadium Cooperation

We congratulate the Tidewater Recreation and Stadium Authority, of which Virginia Beach is an important member, for its quick action, following approval of all four south Tidewater cities in preliminary matters concerning an area football stadium.

All four City Councils appropriated $1,000 each for a preliminary site study. Even Norfolk, with its own site ready, agreed to the study to find the best site. This kind of cooperation is pleasing and progressive.

But without fanfare, the Authority moved immediately thereafter and hired a consultant to pick the best site. That's the kind of action we like, decisive and fast.

Surfing Impasse- Again

The loss of sanction of the East Coast Surfing Championships held in Virginia Beach each summer would be a blow to the large surfing population here and to the serious surfers who participate.

The possibility of that loss lies firmly in the hands of City Council and City officials. City Manager Roger Scott has promised a thorough study of the entire surfing matter with recommendations to be forthcoming by spring.

A sanctioning association official has threatened the withdrawal of sanction because of the small surfing areas and tight controls on the hours of surfing. He points out the loss of sanction will mean a loss of prestige to the contest and a loss of valuable national publicity. The Virginia Beach Jaycees, sponsors of the event, are understandably upset.

But it is all a situation that is highly complex and especially difficult. City officials are trying to please surfers, bathers, hotel and motel guests, business interests and homeowners. All of those use the limited amount of oceanfront not taken up by the military, as well as state federal governments. All feel their interests should come first.

Extension of surfing hours and enlarged surfing areas have created a swell of protest each time they have been brought up, and the final result is an unresolved mess. Now city officials must make a choice. Clearly the matter has come to a head.

There are pros and cons. The crime rate goes up during the contest, mostly due to the surfing contest followers. But surfers grow up, marry and have families who will vacation in Virginia Beach. 'Tis a real puzzle, and it cannot be resolved to the satisfaction of everyone. But this time it must be resolved.

The Empty Protest

What a shame some of this country's and this area's finest minds, of young and old alike, must channel so much of their energy into organizing and carrying out protests, moratoriums, marches and the like.

No one wants the Vietnam war. No one ever really did. But such protests and dramatic shenanigans are becoming almost ludicrous. Public sentiment on the war is well-known, but could it be that the powers that be have more information than we do and are doing the best job possible?

What has become of old-fashioned patriotism and pride in flag and country? Thankfully there are some counter-protest too. Otherwise we would have to turn away entirely... in shame.

'HEY! HALLOWE'EN IS OVER!'

Letters to the Editor

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question. Mail each to: Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, Post Office Box 657, Virginia Beach, Virginia 23451.

Emphatic 'No'

Editor: VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I for one say emphatically no to any consideration being given to any idea of a merger of the City of Virginia Beach with any of the Tidewater communities. What Norfolk has to offer, I can sum it up in a few words, no future and a sorry past, for the business man higher taxes and higher business license and for the home owner higher taxes.

Parking meters all over town, parking and traffic tickets and the famous Hittchings traffic court, where you are never right and wrong for just being there, they can spend all the millions they want on beautification and modernization, but they can never revive the goose that laid the golden egg, that has been killed forever and the business in Norfolk know it.

Virginia Beach has the greatest potential of any city in the state or the nation for that matter. We took the first step in the right direction of developing that potential recently when we legalized whiskey by the drink, now let us all concentrate our efforts on the second step, and that is by legalizing pari-mutuel betting, and then on the third step by legal gambling. Why should we have to fly to Nevada, or to some island to be taken in by the gangster run mitt joints and that is what they are?

It is indeed quite an experience to stand before a black jack table and watch an expert with a deck of cards dealing from the top, bottom and seconds before your very eyes and not be able to detect it, it is also amazing to watch a hustler man on a crap table change dice before the eyes of every one around the table and not be able to see him do it, it is also something to see the wheel going around and around and the little ball falling into a number, not yours, and the readers they use in poker games. Yes, all of this and more you run dollars in these gangster owned joints, and we travel thousands of miles to get to them.

I am reaching out for the 76th mile stone on lifes highway. I was born and raised in Virginia, up in Lynchburg in 1894. I know the politics of the state, and know that for nearly a century the state has been run by a bunch of straitlaced hide bound hypocrites, and it has been time for a change for a long time; and since after all these years we have succeeded in breaking the ice, I say let us carry the change on to a logical conclusion by putting a Republican ticket for every city office in Virginia Beach in the next elections and get out of the rut we are in. It is time for a complete change.

I well remember when Las Vegas was a flag stop on the Union Pacific Railroad, and Reno was the gambling capital and divorce mecca of Nevada, population about 25,000, I've stood on the bridge over the Truckee River on Virginia Street looking down into the crystal clear water for the things they used to say the divorcees would throw in the river when they came out of the nearby court house. I've seen many amazing changes in my life time, and hope to see many more before I leave this old world, and what I would like to see most of all is a more liberal attitude in our way of thinking and actions. I've seen cities spring up on the desert, where no one ever dreamed a city would ever be, as a result of broad minded and liberal thinking, while other cities would dry up and die on the vine as the result of the thinking of a few fanatics.

Need I say more than this to convince any one that reads this letter about the potential we have here in Virginia Beach, if we will only realize it and go to work in earnest to develop it. Why should we keep such as Monte Carlo, or any other two bit county in luxury on good old American dollars? I am sure we would all be better off if we would keep our dollars at home, and I am sure we could entice a few of the outsiders to drop a little of their wealth with us instead of ours going to them.

Raymond C. Purvis

Exit One G.P.

Editor's Note: The following letter was received concerning last week's SUN SURVEY question. See p. 1.
Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: Glad you asked! If Virginia Beach merger goes thru - this area will be minus one G.P. (general practitioner) for numerous reasons.

1. I do not want my tax dollar to pay for Norfolk Redevelopment.

2. Norfolk needs schools to bus children to - in order to fulfill the government requirements. I am certain that children from the fringe areas of Virginia Beach will be bused to schools in Norfolk.

3. They (Norfolk) need our land for dumping their garbage.

4. Norfolk needs tax dollars, and I'll give you two guesses who will have to pay more taxes.

5. If we merged, I can think of no advantage to Virginia Beach residents except complete take over of Norfolk as the ruling body.

I think that to even consider merger is treason - and if it goes through without popular vote I will be convinced of extreme graft and bribery as the only reason for merger.

I took a survey of 80-100 persons in my office from all steps of life - and each is 100 per cent against merger. It is my personal belief that if we merged with Norfolk our school system will degenerate; our taxes will triple; improvements in Virginia Beach roads will cease. We will be nothing but blood donors to a sick and dying city.

You cannot and must not merge or even consider it. D.D. Conkright, Jr., M.D.

Another Merger

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN:

On Dec. 9th, we will be faced with a decision of voting for or against a merger of Frederick County with the City of Winchester. Our local politicians have been publicizing the merits of merger. However, some of us feel that there must be at least some problems and arguments against it that aren't being brought to our attention.

I would appreciate it if some of your readers who have already experienced merger would enlighten us on their feelings toward merger and what the effects have been. Any reply will be greatly appreciated and will be used by the citizens in their efforts to make an intelligent choice on Dec. 9th. Please direct comments to Box 185, Stephens City, Va. 22655.

Thanks for any information which we receive.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Would you please open the door to the dishwasher and let your son out?" he asked.

"What is he doing in the dishwasher?" she asked calmly, as she opened it and let him out.

"He was pulling all the dishes out and he crawled up on the door to get at some of the back ones. It closed," he said.

"Oh, I thought he was trying to take a bath again, like a little while ago," she said.

"Again?" he asked. "He's been in the dishwasher before?"

"Yes, of course he has, several times," she said. "But that's not what I mean. I mean when he put 16 bath towels from the linen closet in the bathtub, then got in and tried to turn the water on. I caught him just before he turned it on full force. It was just dribbling."

"Did he leave all his clothes on?" he asked.

"Of course," she said. "They were dirty as he was."

"You know, after two girls who did little things like writing on walls and jumping up and down on beds and eating soap, I just wasn't prepared for his being like this as soon as he was mobile," he said.

"Boys really are different," she sighed.

"Did you ever doubt it?" he asked innocently.

"Now I think I know what you must have been like when you were a little monster. I mean little boy," she said, ignoring his earlier remark.

"I was a sweet little guy. I never did anything wrong," he said. "At least not so I'd get caught."

"Well, I hope he makes it through boyhood, but the way he's going I'm not so sure he will," she said. "Did you know he fell all the way down the steps again this afternoon?"

"What? After three times last night?" he asked. "I caught him on the first bounce on his head the third time, so I guess you can't count that one."

"Yes," she said. "He just walked right off the top again, following the girls. He seems to think he's as big as they are."

"And the way they manhandle him, they think he's some sort of toy," he said. "No wonder he gave the little one a bloody nose and the big one a puffy cheek."

"I can't imagine how the maid says he's such a good little kid when we're not here," she said. "Do you suppose it has something to do with us?"

"No, I don't," he said. "I think she keeps him in a cage all day and lets him out when we get home. Incidentally I see the big ash tray in the den got broken, and the one in the guest bedroom, May I guess who did it?"

"Don't bother," she said. "Just remember both tasted through two girls and a cat before he started to walk."

"And the bits of toilet paper I found torn to shreds all over our room?" he wanted to know.

"He got tired of just pulling it off the roll and running all over the upstairs with it, I guess," she said. "There just wasn't anything else to do at the moment."

"Why is his mouth green?" he asked.

"Now that's a silly question," she said. "He ate a green crayon. Supper is a little late."

"And the wad of fur in his fist. Is it from a toy?" he asked.

"Haven't you seen the cat's bald spot?" she asked. "Now she avoids him like the plague."

"You'd better grab him quickly. He just took all the silverware off the table and is preparing to get the plates," he said.

"Don't worry," she said. "They won't break. They're plastic."

"Can't you discipline him somehow?" he asked.

"I try and he laughs out loud with a belly laugh," she said.

"Well, he said, 'I guess he'll grow up someday. Let me get him off the top shelf of the bookcase.'"

By W. A. Leavell, Ph.D.

Recently, one of my columns covered what I called the "Cultural Gap." It was my thought that rather than a generation gap, our society is suffering a tragic situation where a non-culture cult is growing among a small part of our young people. The concern that this could become a real movement and affect the future of our country and the world prompted the column.

As you might expect, my mail from throughout the country has been heavy from the column. To my surprise, a good part of the letters from young people have been favorable. They agree with my thought about a cultural gap and they want no part of the non-culture cult. My faith in the majority of our young people is confirmed. All is not lost.

A number of publishers and editors wrote me regarding the column and the subject. Most of these fine people view the cultural gap with concern. Some of these letters brought up ideas that are valid and deserve mention.

One such letter from a prominent publisher of a well known daily newspaper stated: "...the point you make about 'the infatuation with equality' is well taken. One of the signs of approaching normalcy among mental patients is when the individual becomes interested in his personal appearance and wants to look pretty or handsome and neat. There is something abnormal about the way these people welcome filth."

He went on to say: "...I would have to disagree with you on the fact that this trend started just a few years ago with a few hippies. On the contrary, it started with the so-called modern art and modern music and came last into modern literature after which these confused kids took over. They did not create this but they are the products of the non-art, non-music, non-literature philosophy."

The "Instant Society" and the philosophy of "NOW" no waiting for anything. They can have food instantly by simply placing a frozen meal in a hot oven. They can have instant entertainment by turning on the TV. Drugs can bring instant hallucinations and distort the problems of the user. Now that sex is a spectator sport it has become instant animal type gratification. You name it and some of our misdirected young people will reduce it to "Instantly." It might not be the real thing but it will be instantly.

Someone sent me the remarks of Prof. Frederic A. Harris, University of Washington (Drugs: Escape To A Dead End: Sunday, Nov. 3, 1968; Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Northwest Today). He said: "I admit that it must be intimidating to be young nowadays, to look at almost unbelievable accomplishments of the establishment - heart transplants, rockets to the moon, sewing machines that wind their own bobbins, etc. - and then realize that before you can make your dent... you will have to go through years and years of apprenticeship. You will have to work, study, and learn before you can do anything, and you'll be put in your time, you learn aren't worth much in comparison to the others who have already achieved something, who already have contributed something of obvious value. How much simpler it is to deny the worth of these achievements, to denounce the complexity as inhuman, artificial, undesirable and to advocate regression to a world where everything is simple - where we sit on the grass and love each other in our drug-induced stupor regardless of any personal merit or demerits we might have..."

On the subject of drugs the Professor said: "How can artificially altering the functions of the brain possibly improve one's relation

Clean Up Efforts Earn Prizes

The Wilbert Lewis family of Old Virginia Beach Road has won first prize in a house-hold "Clean-up and Fix-Up" campaign just completed in the Seatack area of Virginia Beach. Approximately 100 households were involved in the month long campaign designed to encourage residents of the area to improve their homes by making repairs of improving the appearance of their yards.

Judging was based on a points system.

The Lewis family earned the first prize of a Holly tree by earning 285 points. This was accomplished through the painting of the entire exterior of their home, the painting of five rooms of the home and cutting grass in the yard. Second prize of a three piece party set of glassware went to the Floyd Allen family on Owls Creek Lane. They earned a total of 225 points by painting their entire home, making plaster repairs to one room of their home. Two families tied for third place prizes of camellia plants by each earning 200 points. One of the prizes went to Sarah Gregory on Owls Creek Lane who earned her points for painting the exterior of two homes, while the Corneliuss Galloway family of Washington Avenue earned their points for the painting of the exterior of their home and the interior of four rooms of their home.

The campaign was carried out by dividing the Seatack area into a number of sections and the appointing of "block captains" who were responsible for assisting families in their particular neighborhood to carry out the clean-up campaign and report on progress being made.

Mrs. Walter Johnson of Washington Avenue won the "Block Captain's Award" for having the most winners in any Block Captain's neighborhood. Prizes were awarded to nearly 20 homes in the area for their efforts to beautify their residences.

Aaron Parsons, who served as chairman of the campaign, which incidentally was a separate project from the beautification project being conducted by the City in Seatack, expressed his personal thanks to all the residents for the work they have done. Parsons said "To me this has been a great success, and it was only possible through the cooperation of everybody".

Wilson to Make 3 Talks

E. Raymond Wilson, executive secretary emeritus of the Friends Committee on National Legislation, will give three talks in Virginia Beach next week to which the public is invited.

The talks all at the Friends Meeting House on Laskin Road, will be "Economics of Disarmament" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 18, "Guaranteed Annual Income" at 8 p.m. before the Human Relations Council, and "A Message of Hope to Church Women" and "The Washington Scene" at 11:30 a.m. Thursday.

Wilson was the executive secretary of the FNCL in Washington, D.C. from the time the office was established in 1943 until January 1962 when he became executive secretary emeritus. He still devoted full time to the work of the FNCL. The FNCL concentrates mainly on legislation affecting foreign policy, peace, civil liberties, disarmament, opposition to militarism, conscription and to the Vietnam War. Prior to his work in Washington, he was educational secretary of the Peace Section of the American Friends Service

Wilson Committee and served as Dean of Faculties for the educational programs in 11 Institutes of International Relations in various parts of the U.S. His experience includes almost 26 years of work in Washington, two years in Japan, six extended trips to Europe including two visits to Russia.

Reincarnation Reflects Life

According to Webster, reincarnation is the rebirth of the soul into another body.

The Edgar Cayce theory of reincarnation differs from the Hindu belief in that the Hindu's believe one can be reincarnated into animals; Cayce followers do not. The entire object of this rebirth is to return in possession of a better form than the previous one. This progression occurs simply by helping others. It is the only way one may advance to better reincarnated forms.

To exemplify reincarnation, consider the entity (or soul) as he may have been in a previous life. Perhaps his soul was gluttonous and enjoyed indulging the body in an abundance of food. When this entity returned as another life, the body may have a disease afflicted with over eating.

The reason one must be reincarnated is to advance, step by step, toward God, The Creator; and the only way to advance is, to learn in this life and progress through helplessness to others. All previous lives are retained deep in the subconscious and one may recall these lives while asleep or in a trance. The old adage of "live and learn" applies to the theory of reincarnation.

During a recent European study tour to meet with several people who claim they remember their previous lives, Hugh Lynn Cayce, Edgar Cayce's son, met a Hindu man. As a boy, this individual was so different and exact in what he said, that his older sister began taking notes. According to her notes and his recollection, this Hindu, in World War II (while possessing the body of a German officer) was wounded in the neck by a bullet. He died on a battlefield by bleeding to death, very slowly and painfully.

When the Hindu was reincarnated, he was born low-headed (completely white blond hair) and he had a birth mark resembling an old bullet wound on his neck. Also, some of the first words he spoke were, "I want a knife and fork." Hindu's seldom know what these objects are because they are brought up to eat with their fingers. Pictures were taken to substantiate this.

The theory of reincarnation is accepted by some, rejected by many.

To quote Nathaniel Hawthorne, "Our Creator would never have made such lovely days and have given us the deep hearts to enjoy them, above and beyond all thought, unless we were meant to be eternal."

Play to Provide Shoes

The comedy, "A Mad Breakfast," will be performed at First United Church on Indian River Road near Barret's Corner tonight, Thursday; at Chesterfield Heights Elementary School in Norfolk on Friday and at First Presbyterian Church, 36th and Pacific, on Tuesday, Nov. 18. All performances begin at 7:30 p.m. It has already been performed twice at St. Alden's Episcopal Church.

Donations received for the performances will buy shoes for five-year-olds who would otherwise stay home from South-eastern Tidewater Opportunity Project day care centers.

These were only a few of those who gathered at the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Fire Department station on Pleasure House Road last Saturday night for a family spaghetti dinner. Over 200 persons were served during the evening.

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

to the world and to other people? Don't tell me to take drugs to find out; I don't have to hold a stick of dynamite in my hand to find out what will happen to me when it goes off. One can learn from the experiences of others...

In the opinion of many, the small part of our young people that have "turned off" or "out" as the case may be, are allowing their talents to wither, their minds to cloud and their bodies to deteriorate and their paranoia to grow. They are becoming noncontributing individuals - doing nothing for themselves - nothing for society. They just take up space, absorb drugs and stand still.

It might help the vast majority of our fine young people if our Glorious Leaders, that dedicated "flock" in Washington, would use a little political surgery and cut out the non-culture cult from our society. Our young people deserve more from our colleges than open warfare with and contamination from the polluted dregs of the drug-sex-rock dirty word-peace-folk-squalor culture! If some of our politicians would stop talking long enough to hear what the people are saying, they might get the message before the next election.

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Question: My son is mentally retarded and will soon be released from a mental hospital. His doctor has recommended that he receive further treatment to help him make the adjustment from life in the mental hospital to life in our community. The doctor has selected a certain home for this purpose. Will the expense in the home for the adjustment treatment be deductible?

Answer: If you itemize your deductions on your income tax return you may include in your medical expenses amounts paid to maintain your mentally retarded son in the specially selected home, as recommended by the physician, to help him adjust from life in the mental hospital to life in a community.

Question: You sent my son a letter about his failure to file a 1968 tax return. Can he wait until he gets back from his military duty in Vietnam before filing it?

Answer: Yes, if he was on active duty there when the return was due, he may postpone filing his income tax return until 180 days after leaving Vietnam. Notify the IRS office which sent the letter to your son about this combat duty.

Question: Our local fire department had a raffle on a new car recently. Can I deduct the tickets I bought on the car as a charitable contribution? I didn't win it.

Answer: No, the cost of the raffle tickets you bought are not deductible as contributions. The cost of such tickets is only deductible to the extent of your winnings. If you had won the car, you could deduct the cost of your tickets, but the fair market value of the car would have to be included in income.

Investors Can Buy Mountain

Every so often, there seems to be an investment opportunity that's a bit more intriguing than most.

Bryce Mountain fits that category. Prospective landowners on that Virginia mountaintop are offered the promise of year-round recreation. Everything from skiing to golfing, and all of it within virtual commuting distance of Tidewater.

Colonial To Consider Acquisition

Directors of Colonial Stores Incorporated, 425-store southeast and midwestern supermarket chain, have set Dec. 12 as the date for a meeting of common stockholders to consider the proposed acquisition of substantially all the assets of National Food Products Corporation by Colonial.

Proxy solicitations are scheduled to be mailed Nov. 14 to holders of record on Nov. 6. National Food currently owns 945,794 shares (approximately 33.8%) of Colonial's outstanding common stock, and in addition has approximately $671,000 in cash and short term government securities.

Under the proposed transaction, National shareholders will receive approximately 1.27 shares of Colonial's common stock in exchange for each National share.

National directors have set Nov. 13 as the record date for those shareholders entitled to vote at the special shareholders meeting to be held Dec. 12.

Drive in the travel lane and observe posted signs. Lane hopping can be a dangerous game with tragic results. Road signs are posted to help save your life and ignoring them is quite literally taking your life into your own hands.

Bryce Mountain has a 60-year history, first as a mineral springs health spa and more recently as a winter ski resort. Now it is being developed into Virginia's first complete year-round vacation area.

Joseph W. Luter, III, President of Smithfield Packing Company, heads the development corporation. He and Orville Freeman, former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, were among the first to build vacation homes.

Located near Bayside, Va., one hour's flying time from Tidewater, Bryce Mountain is nestled in the spectacular setting of the Allegheny Mountains country just west of Virginia's Blue Ridge. Here 2,000 acres have been set aside for approximately 1,500 property sites where investors can build a second home on large (15,000 to 35,000 square feet) lots surrounded by woods, hills, streams and valleys.

By 1972, Bryce Mountain is planned to be a private country club, with Bryce property ownership providing the investors a special membership in the club to take full advantage of all resort facilities.

Property ownership at Bryce Mountain also entitles investors to the use of Ski Bryce Resort, the ski resort with the longest ski season south of New York.

The year-round resort offers residents and guests an even wider array of activities in the summer. Bryce Mountain already has an Olympic-size outdoor pool and tennis court. Riding horses, showing ring, stables, and miles of trails are available for horseback riding enthusiasts.

The first nine holes of an 18-hole Championship golf course designed by famed golf architect Edward Ault is completed and play will start in June.

Between now and Dec. 15, Bryce's Mountain Resort, Inc., will arrange a free weekend, including room and meals, for interested persons who wish to inspect the property.

Kalman To Handle Franchise

Merwin Kalman, president, Merwin Kalman Assoc., Inc., 205 Pennsylvania Ave., has been appointed an exclusive franchise dealer for Radiant Educational Corporation, producer of multi-media teaching programs and related audiovisual equipment.

He is one of 50 dealers who have been appointed throughout the country since July, when Radiant launched its new marketing concept of selling to schools through local dealerships.

"Today, most producers of educational software -- teaching programs, books, film strips, films, maps, tape cassettes, etc. -- sell directly to the multitude of school districts throughout the country," he said. "But Radiant believes educators and school administrators prefer to deal with local dealers who can service the software and equipment they sell."

Whole Show to Be Different

He refuses to divulge his age, but the youthful-looking director of the "Age of Aquarius" does claim to be old enough to legally order a drink.

The "Age of Aquarius" is the name of the production to be put together by Thom Allen by Nov. 21 and 22. He arrived in town after producing a show in Franklin, Ind. and began rehearsing his cast on Monday. The production is for the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club annual Cabaret Follies. This year's will be the 19th.

Allen is with Jerome H. Car-gill Productions, Inc. of New York, and it is his job to whip the show into a show.

"It will all be up to date," said Allen. "All the music will be current." As examples of some of the music already picked for the show, there will be "Age of Aquarius" at the opening and closing, "When I Die," "Son of a Preacher Man," "Promises, Promises," "Gentle on My Mind," "People Gotta Be Free" and "Alice's Restaurant." Allen said there would also be new costumes--bell bottoms, mini dresses covered with mirrors, leotards, head bands.

"The show will be entirely new," said Allen. "It's not even remotely like any other we've done anywhere else."

He added that the staging of the show will also be "an entirely new concept." There will be no people on stage. He said it would be "thrust-style" theater where the audience is seated on three sides.

Despite his youthful looks, Allen says he has been in show business for 10 years. He spent 18 weeks this past summer working in summer stock. Before that he worked in educational films and in night clubs.

Allen said that the show will be built around the signs of the zodiac. He added that there will be some audience participation numbers.

The Cabaret Follies will be different for the two nights they are held. Nov. 21 will be theatrical night, when the audience will be just that--an audience. Tickets will be available at the door. It will begin at 8 p.m.

On Saturday night, however, tables will be reserved. There will be two bands--one for dancing before and after the show and one for the show. There will be more of a night-club atmosphere. Dancing will begin at 9 p.m.

Decorations will include zodiac discs in fluorescent colors hanging from the ceiling, plus black and strobe lighting for effect.

Proceeds from the Follies will go toward club projects, one of which is the kindergarten for retarded children at Galilee Episcopal Church.

Dream Is Not Impossible

By spring the entrance to Redwing Park should have a new look. Hopefully it will become a Virginia Beach show place.

Plans call for nature trails through a wooded area just inside the gate with under-plantings of flowering trees and shrubs to be added. Separating the area, which will cover about seven acres, from youngsters will be a rustic fence.

Adding to the beauty of the area will be a wildflower garden which the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. plans to establish there as a conservation project. Garden clubs will be asked to contribute plants to the project, and they will be planted in a natural setting. Other wild flowers will be "rescued" from areas where land is being cleared and planted there.

The Council will be working in cooperation with the Parks and Recreation Department at the garden.

"Bulldozers rip into about

2,000 acres of land daily for expanding industry and new home sites throughout our land," said Mrs. C. L. Hershberger, Sr., Council conservation chairman. "Everywhere wildflowers are being sacrificed to the inevitable progress."

"We cannot stop progress, but we can help conserve wildflowers by rescuing them before they are destroyed. We can dig them out before the 'dozer' does and relocate them in a safe place for all to enjoy."

Working Mothers Maintain FULL Schedule

By Shirley Newton

In today's world, women are becoming more and more "career minded."

It isn't just enough to get married, raise kids and be a housewife; women today are seeking more. With a society that allows us more free time than ever before, more opportunities to "do our own thing," women are beginning to take advantage of this and reach to activities outside the home. They join clubs, or enjoy an exciting hobby, or get a job.

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN wondered how working mothers managed and what problems they encountered with their families because they worked; so we asked several of these mothers.

Mrs. Stanton Sizemore: one child, teacher: "I don't have too many problems. I teach school so I have the same hours as my child, Kathy. I have been teaching for 14 years. My husband helps tremendously and he does approve and Kathy does not object at all because I am home when she is. The only outside activity I have is the church."

Mrs. R. M. Nase, three children, clerical job: "I encounter a lot of problems. I'm divorced and have been working since 1958. Now, my children are older so they can take care of themselves, but before that it certainly would have been a lot easier if I didn't have to work. I have a Civil Service job and no outside activities than this job."

Mrs. Charles Cartwright, two children, babysitter: "I have been babysitting for six and a half years. My children don't mind at all. In fact the oldest one heard the question asked about if he minded me baby-sitting and he said, 'No, we love it, I just love babies.' My husband doesn't mind at all and he does whatever is necessary when he's home. If the kids get on his nerves, he just takes a walk."

"My only problem is that I sometimes do not have enough room for all those who want to come. I kind of adopt them, and I hate to say 'no' when someone asks me to babysit because I worry that someone else may not take care of them as well."

Mrs. Robert Triplett, two children, coordinator for ladies' ready to wear department at Kings Department Store; really don't have any problems except once in a while with babysitters. I've been working since 1961, and I find that I really didn't have enough time for my family. My husband doesn't mind my working; in fact, he would mind if I quit.

"I do have outside activities of bowling two nights a week and on Wednesday night I have church activities. In fact, I don't have much free time, but I am home every night but three nights a week."

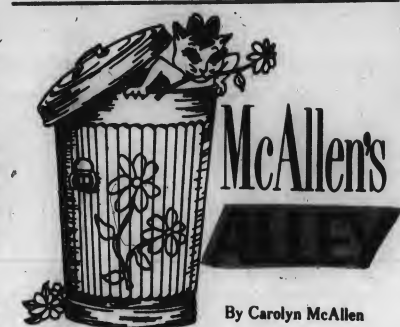

Mrs. J. H. Costenbader, one child with one due in January, works at Cheyenne, Britt, Hog-gard, Lamm and Gresham architectural firm: I try to schedule my activities so I have no problems. The only thing don't like is having to go to the grocery store at night. I have worked for six months since my boy was born two and a half years ago. At first my husband didn't like the idea too well, but now he does not mind and he tries to help. Once in a while I am able to get a maid which really helps, but today that's hard to do.

"One real problem is to try to find proper attention for my child while I'm working. We need more facilities for babysitting in this area. I try to find someone who will take as good of care of my child as I would if I was home. I thought about a nursery school, but they are just so crowded that they don't seem to have room for one more. I do have other activities, the garden club and the bridge club. I'm on the board of the garden club, so I stay pretty busy. My husband works at night so that's one reason I am so busy."

In speaking with other mothers, it seems the major problem in working is the lack of babysitters whom they feel are qualified to watch their children. With women, even though they have a job outside, their home still comes first. This is their 24 hour job that they even have to take to bed with them. They're their own boss, maintenance crew, dietician, clean up committee, activity coordinator, teacher, Chinese laundryman, etc. They have no sick leave, no paid vacation, no coffee breaks, no lunch hours and no 9 to 5. So, to all you women who are holding two jobs...then keep up the good work...constantly.

The One That Didn't Get Away

There was a huge display in the store. If you bought two packages of gingerbread mix, you would get a free gingerbread man pan to bake it in. There was no way I could escape--I had the eight-year-old with me.

"Please, Mommy."
"You don't even know if you like gingerbread."
"I will."
"You'd better."
The other two were equally enthused.
"Make it now."
"I've got to fix supper. Let's wait until tomorrow."
"Why not after supper?"
"Because it won't get done before you go to bed. We'll do it tomorrow."
"Do we have to go to school tomorrow?"
"Tomorrow is Sunday. There's no school."

Peace was restored. The only thing I forgot was to specify tomorrow afternoon. At 7 a.m. they wanted to bake gingerbread. I finally put them off until after lunch, but it wasn't easy. It's hard being a minority of one in a herd of midgelets.

"I want to crack the eggs," volunteered the eight-year-old.
"No, I want to," said the six-year-old.
"There are no eggs in it," I said. "All we add is water."
"Can I pour in the water?" asked the five-year-old.
"No, I want to," said the eight-year-old.
"I'd rather do it myself," said the tired mother.
"Why is it brown?" asked the six-year-old.
"What color do you expect it to be? Gingerbread is always brown."
"Let's put raisins in for eyes," suggested the eight-year-old.
"We don't have any raisins."

After a fight over who was going to lick the beaters and who was to get the spoon, the gingerbread finally made it as far as the oven.

"Will he jump out? asked the five-year-old, reflecting the kindergarten story time.

"Of course not, stupid. That's just a story," replied the first grader.

By the time the gingerbread was done there wasn't a child in sight. When they did come in I asked them if they wanted a piece.

"Not now, I just had some cake at Allen's," answered the eight-year-old.

"I don't like gingerbread," replied the six-year-old.

"I don't feel good," said the five-year-old.

Anybody for a gingerbread man that didn't run away?

Miss Ailstock

Helping of Others Recognized

"A life spent for others is a life not in vain, you know."

That is Harriet Ailstock's belief and her way of life. Today, Nov. 13, she is in Arlington, Va. to receive the Virginia Hospital Association's Distinguished Service Award. It is one of several such awards she has received in recognition of her service to others.

"I've been a registered nurse all my life," said Miss Ailstock with a laugh.

What she doesn't mention is that she was the first superintendent of the 25th Street Virginia Beach Hospital when it opened in 1948 as well as serving as superintendent of nurses. She served in that capacity until the new hospital was completed.

"I really considered myself a pioneer in Virginia Beach Hospital administration." "It really was a challenge."

Before she came to Virginia Beach she was a nurse in Portsmouth for 25 years. During World War II she was an instructor for the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps in Portsmouth.

Miss Ailstock is an organizer. When she left Portsmouth, where she had been a member of the Business and Professional Woman's Club, she was instrumental in forming the Princess Anne County Chapter here and is still a member.

She was a charter member and first president of the Tidewater Hospitals Council, charter member and board member of the Princess Anne County Cancer Society, charter member of the Virginia Nurse-Anesthetist Association, charter member and president of the Virginia's-Carolina's Assembly of Nurse Anesthetists, member of the American College of Hospital Administrators and became vice president of the Easter Seal Society when it was founded in 1956. She is now president and a member of the state board of directors.

Country Christmas Will Be Just That

The Cape Henry Woman's Club will present their Annual "Christmas in the Country" on Wednesday, Dec. 3, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cashman on Enrada Road in LagoMar.

The home will be decorated by members of the Cape Henry Woman's Club and will be open for tour from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and also from 7 to 9 p.m.

Mrs. Santa's Country Store will be held at the Nimmo Church, on the way to the Cashman home. The church is located at the fork of Rts. 629 and 615, Oceana Blvd. and Sandbridge Road.

Articles for sale in the store will include baked goods, jellies and preserves, wooden kitchen utensils, recipe boxes, log cabin incense burners, Busy Bee books, stuffed toys, old tin, balsam bags, Christmas decorations, salad dressing and old blue Mason jars. The Country Store will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A donation of $1 will include a tour of the home and a visit to the Country Store.

The ladies of Nimmo Church will serve lunch from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for $1.50.

LagoMar is a new development on Sandbridge Road, and Enrada Road is the road through which one enters the main gate. There will be signs to the Cashman home.

HERE COMES OLGA!

By Cassandra

A visit to the spacious home of Mrs. R. D. Adams on Thalia Point is a distinct treat. At night the lights from the surrounding homes and from here in particular flicker like jewels on the water which surrounds the house on three sides.

The Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club of Virginia Beach boasting approximately 60 members, was asked by Mrs. Adams' for its November Dutch buffet dinner. Last week the group honored Mrs. William Dulin, who is the former Delta Province president and now the Gamma Province president. During the evening she spoke on the national convention held last summer in California.

The table was almost weighted down with such delectables as turkey, potatoes au gratin, molded cranberry salad, string beans almondine, baked oysters and angel food cake. Each member had prepared a dish, and each could have won a prize on her creation. The centerpiece of wine dahlias carried out the colors, wine and silver blue, of the fraternity.

Mrs. Dulin congratulated the group on its activities and mentioned the fact that the Old Dominion University chapter, Delta Beta, had the highest scholastic standing of all the fraternities (sororities) on campus. Also attending as a guest was Trina Steere, president of the ODU chapter, who went to the convention with Mrs. Dulin.

In December Mrs. Sally Glass will entertain the Pi Phi Alumnae at a cocktail party for husbands and friends of the chapter at her home in Thoronughood.

Among those attending the buffet were Mrs. Mary Browne, Mrs. Susie Forehand, Mrs. Glass, Mrs. Becky Keister, Mrs. Carol Terry, Mrs. Lou McAfee, Mrs. Lisa Metcalf, Mrs. Rivers Schweitzer, Mrs. Douglas Barnes, Mrs. Henrietta Steere and Mrs. Jean Davis Maxwell.

"We're going to try something that's never been tried before," said Dick Branch of the Parks and Recreation Department. Paths through the area will be about 10 feet wide. One area will be set aside as a semi-formal garden. The garden will be designed for adults and particularly senior citizens.

The design was drawn up by Roper Davis, who was trained at the Norfolk Botanical Gardens and is now with the Parks and Recreation Department. The Department also has established a green house at its headquarters near Kempsville which will furnish not only blooming plants, but can be used to start new shrubs from cuttings.

"We hope to place markers beside each plant with its name on it," added Mrs. Hershberger. "We have visions, when we are advanced enough, of teachers taking their pupils on guided tours, of garden clubs studying species of wildflowers."

The area is already being cleared of underbrush. By spring planting should be under way.

"As our forefathers did before us," concluded Mrs. Hershberger, "let us leave a rich heritage for our children and our children's children."

Winter type squash and pumpkins may be stored successfully in a moderately dry basement at about 60 degrees. Place on a shelf or counter. Do not store on a damp concrete floor.

IT'S A SECRET--As Mr. and Mrs. George Keene, right, confer, Scott Taylor, host for the party, and Mrs. William Gaspar look on.

Charles Gilliam Heads Club

Members of the Carolina June German Club of Virginia Beach mixed business with pleasure as they held their annual meeting Friday night at the Golf Ranch Motel.

HE WENT THATAWAY--It looks like somebody got away from Charlie Gilliam, Dot Snow and John Tucker.

The evening, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Scott Taylor, included a cocktail party and buffet and election of officers. William J. Vaughan, outgoing president, was presented with a set of duck bookends inscribed with the dates of his presidency.

New officers are: Charles Gilliam, president; Andre Evans, vice president; Mrs. Marion D. Joyner, treasurer; Mrs. J. D. W. Cassada, corresponding secretary; and Mr. and Mrs. George Langley and Mr. and Mrs. William Overman, Board of Governors.

all that," she commented, looking over the list. "You have to enjoy it to be able to do so many things."

"I'm also a member of the Princess Anne Historical Society," she added, "I like to collect old books too."

Her home has quite a history, itself. It is Kenstock on Old Great Neck Road and was originally part of the "Wolfe" plantation. The red shingled house has Georgian pine flooring throughout.

Last summer Miss Allstock received the Easter Seal Award for Meritorious Service. "I've always been interested in children," she said. "It's one charity I've given more interest to than any other."

Obviously, she enjoys helping others.

Tailgating Means Barbecue

In the long, long history of barbecuing, it has grown from a stone age necessity to a contemporary leisure pastime. But through it all, cooking over hot coals has been confined largely to a specific location, whether it was the stone-ringed fire pit of our cave-dwelling ancestry or the backyard patio of modern man.

More recently, however, Americans have discovered the fun and satisfaction of barbecuing wherever their activities take them. It's proven convenient and, at times, economical.

Two things have made this possible. One is the automobile, particularly the station wagon. The other is the portability of today's barbecue equipment.

We specifically mention the station wagon not because of its storage space, but because of its tailgate. This fold down deck provides a convenient shelf that converts to an outdoor kitchen with the addition of a small, portable covered barbecue kettle.

It has inspired a whole new concept in outdoor barbecuing appropriately called, "tailgating." And more and more Americans who take to the highways and byways for special reasons are becoming tailgate chefs, thereby spreading the barbecue season throughout the year.

The occasions for tailgating are numerous, dependent for the most part on the mood of the participants. Often, tailgating is planned because it is convenient and adds a high note to the fun.

Take for example the Saturday afternoon football game. You want to arrive at the stadium early enough to find a convenient parking place, but you don't want to sit in the stands for a long period awaiting the start of play. Besides, there's lunch to consider. Obviously, the two desires are at opposite ends of the spectrum. The logical solution is to plan a tailgate barbecue.

All that is involved is a barbecue kettle, the food, and an appropriate beverage. A small covered barbecue kettle like the Smokey Joe, made by Weber-Stephen Products Company, is ideal for tailgating. It resists firmly on the tailgate at a convenient height. Its cover keeps ashes and hot sparks from blowing into the interior of the auto. In addition, when the air vents on the kettle are closed, the coals are quickly extinguished. That's important, because it avoids having to dump hot coals on the ground where they could be hazardous.

Obviously, something out of the ordinary should be selected for the menu at a tailgate cookout. Otherwise, it might be better to park the car, then walk around looking for a sandwich shop to while away the time, if you can afford it.

Another wonderful occasion for tailgating is at Christmas time. More and more families are discovering the fun of going out into the country to farms which permit you to select and cut your own Christmas tree. The kids, especially, get a thrill out of this family adventure and they, too, will be delighted with a piping hot barbecue snack when they return with the tree.

Here's a sandwich that the whole family will like to eat:

SPICY CHEESE 'HOT DOGS'
4 weiners
4 slices of American cheese cut into strips
4 slices of Italian salami cut into strips

Prepare the charcoal, confining the heat to one side of your covered kettle. Make a lengthwise slice in each weiner so that it will tend to open during the cooking. Brown the weiners over the coals, then place each in a hot dog bun. Place strips of salami and then strips of cheese atop the weiners and put the buns on the grill at the far side away from the coals. Place the cover on and allow a few minutes for the cheese to melt. Then remove the sandwiches and serve. The cheese will mingle with the salami, adding a spiciness tang to the hot dog treat. Serves 4.

Here's a time when it will be especially welcome -- not only for the satisfaction of appetites sharpened by hillside activity, but also for the warmth provided by the glowing charcoal.

A great appetite pleasure for a toboggan is this one, Marinade overnight a sufficient number of sandwich steaks in a blend of the following:

1 cup muscatel wine
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. paprika

On the hill, cook the steaks in a covered kettle over a hot fire for one or two minutes per side. Turn the center and retain the flavor of the marinade. Plan on at least two steaks for each member of the party, because they'll come around for seconds. And keep the fire going afterwards as a warming center.

Tailgating parties like these are limited only by imagination. In each instance, they provide an added pleasure to an event and help to make it a memorable one. And better still, there's no messy kitchen to clean up after the party is over!

Here's a barbecue suggestion that offers a hearty meal with a touch of Autumn in its flavor:

Mrs. Garrison tells the Juniors about her class.

Her Ph.D Is in Love

The sounds ranged from guttural noises to clear "here's", and the audience sat entranced.

The class made up of members of the Virginia Beach-Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club. What they were hearing was a tape recording of the roll call of the pre-school kindergarten for retarded children which the club was instrumental in starting and supporting just over a year ago.

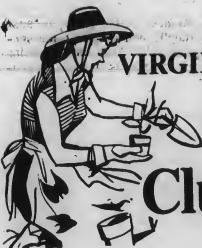

Mrs. Jane Garrison, teacher of the class of 11, brought the tape along with color slides to introduce this, the second class, to the club members.

Mrs. Garrison, who taught kindergarten for three years and was a librarian five years before taking the class, said that there are more brain damaged than Mongoloid children in the class, and that many are without speech. "Most are aware enough to know what's going on. Those that can't Activities in the class are varied. They range from finger painting to rhythm band, exercises, play and dancing once a week. The children are also learning the alphabet and to recognize numbers.

The Juniors plan special treats for the children for birthdays and holidays.

A very fitting remark was included in the introduction of Mrs. Garrison at the club meeting. "She has a Ph.D. in love and affection."

Calendars Outnumber TV Sets

A consumer survey found that 98 per cent of U.S. homes had at least one calendar (only 94 per cent had a TV set).

These homes had 2.5 calendars on hand and 21 per cent wanted and could use more! In a room by room search, calendars were found in living rooms, dining rooms, and bedrooms, with the greatest number, 86 per cent, in kitchens.

Hydrangeas Are Interesting

(Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

Hydrangeas are very interesting and useful plants. Only a half dozen types are commonly grown, but within this small number we have fine specimen shrubs, a magnificent vine, the beautiful florists hydrangea, and its close relative the blue hydrangea for outdoor planting.

The shrub type hydrangeas have large leaves and conspicuous flower clusters. They grow best on moist, fertile soil and may be located in full sun or partial shade. Because of their coarse texture and somewhat gaudy appearance, they must be used with care in landscaping. They are most effective as specimen plants where an accent feature is needed.

The Hills of Snow or Snowball hydrangea is a compact shrub which grows to a height of four feet. It blooms from July to late summer and becomes a mass of showy white flowers.

The hydrangea paniculata grandiflora or P G hydrangea is considerably larger than the Snowball. It may reach a height of 25 feet but by regular pruning can be maintained at about six feet tall. The white flowers are produced in August and turn pink in cooler fall weather. The dried flowers are useful in arrangements.

The Oakleaf hydrangea is another interesting shrub form. As the name implies, the leaves are large and indented similar to those of oak trees. This hydrangea grows to a height of about six feet, and has snowy white flowers in July.

Are you familiar with the Climbing hydrangea? This splendid vine grows to a height of 60 feet. It supports itself on stone or brick walls by rootlets which develop along the stem. With its fine foliage and white circular flower clusters, it deserves much more attention than it has received in the past.

The florists hydrangea, and its close relative the blue hydrangea, are possibly the most interesting members of this family. They have the unique capacity of changing the color of the flower, depending on the acid condition of the soil in which they are growing.

The florists hydrangea will grow to a height of 12 feet in mild climates. It is not hardy under severe winter conditions and is widely grown as a potted plant. The blue hydrangea is a small type which grows to a height of about five feet, and is somewhat more hardy than the parent type.

The flowers of the florists and blue hydrangeas are pink when grown on relatively alkaline soils with a pH of 6.5 to 7.0. They become blue when the soil is acid with pH of 5.0 to 5.5. This unique characteristic is not found in other types of hydrangeas.

If you want your hydrangea flowers to have a pronounced blue color you should have your soil tested to determine the pH level. The extension agent in your county can arrange for this test.

To make the soil more acid, use iron sulfate or aluminum sulfate. Apply two pounds of either material per 100 square feet to reduce a good loam soil about one pH value. Use only one pound on sandy soil and three pounds on a heavy clay soil. Work the iron or aluminum sulfate into the top inch or two of soil and water thoroughly.

Barbecue

1 1/2 lbs. ground round
1/2 lb. thin-sliced bacon
14-oz. can mushrooms
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce salt & pepper to taste

In preparation for the tailgate barbecue, fry the bacon until crisp and chop fine. Also, chop mushrooms fine, then blend all ingredients with the ground round. Form into patties three quarters of an inch thick. Make the patties long and narrow so they fit pieces of French bread sliced lengthwise. These will be robust sandwiches for added enjoyment. Serves 4.

At the stadium, get the coals hot and then allow five minutes per side on patties. If you choose, the French bread can be preheated over the coals by wrapping it in heavy duty aluminum foil.

Here's a tip for starting the fire more quickly. Collect coals that have been extinguished from earlier barbecuing events and use them for the tailgate cookout. They'll ignite in less than half the time it takes to bring fresh coals to cooking temperatures.

Taste Is Important

Learning to cook with wine makes a novice feel like an expert.

Flavoring with wine is easy. It is literally a matter of taste. The real accomplishment is to present the food in the best possible way, and that means serving wine with it at the table. California wine doubles the enjoyment of even the simplest wine-cooked dishes.

Favorite standard recipes can quickly become wine-flavored specialties by substituting wine for part of the liquid called for in the recipe. For instance, California Burgundy or Claret adds prestige to a beef or lamb stew or Swiss steak if substituted for half the liquid called for in the recipe.

A dash of California Sherry in a basic white sauce does wonders for creamed seafood or vegetables. A basting sauce made of California white dinner wine and an equal amount of melted butter seasons chicken deliciously as it bakes or broils.

Cotton losses due to insects can run as high as one out of every eight bales.

Navy Wife Wins Prize From Army

A Navy wife has been awarded an Army prize at Fort Eustis.

Mrs. Joseph B. Drachnik, wife of Commander Amphibious Force, U.S. Atlantic Fleet Chief of Staff, Capt. Joseph B. Drachnik, of Virginia Beach won 2nd Place Purchase Prize in the 6th Annual Ft. Eustis Art Show.

The winning entry, "The Hat," portrays a woman trying on a hat. Mrs. Drachnik used a flat stroke technique for her award-winning acrylic water color.

Open to all military and civilian personnel, the show drew over 444 entries by 125 artists from throughout Virginia, and from as far away as Tacoma, Wash. The exhibit ends Nov. 15.

The craft division of special services at the Army base bought the painting for $75 after awarding Mrs. Drachnik second prize. This type of award is a purchase prize.

Continually expanding her artistic ability, Mrs. Drachnik is currently studying painting and craft techniques at Old Dominion University. She has also conducted private painting classes for Navy wives in the Washington, D.C. area.

Other works of Mrs. Drachnik may be found at the Studio Gallery in Virginia Beach.

Complete Story: So you think only Beef rhymes with Stroganoff! Welcome to satisfying Chicken Stroganoff, now joining the 4 Lipton main dishes. With enriched egg noodles, vegetables and sour cream sauce, Chicken Stroganoff cooks in 15 minutes on stove or in oven, yielding 2 adult-size servings. Handy package needs no refrigeration.

Sarasota Cocktail: It's gala and golden, and simply made for any size group. Store strained orange juice and Champagne (separately) in refrigerator until guests arrive. Then serve the two ingredients, 50/50, in champagne glasses. For a larger party: Freeze a fluted mold of orange juice, making sure mold fits the punch bowl. Pour cold orange juice and bubbling Champagne over mold at serving time.

Notice the new Shell gas station at Pembroke Mall. It is large, well landscaped and spotlessly clean. This station is an example of how a needed business service can be designed to add to the aesthetic of the neighborhood. The Shell Oil Co. was indeed wise to build a station that conforms with the whole Pembroke Mall complex. The standard set should be a guide to other companies.

The era of the ugly, dirty gas station and the greasy overalls is gone. The motorist has come to expect a well designed, well landscaped service center free from litter and junk. And why not? Smart operators will start making improvements for the next season's tourists. Look at the Pembroke Mall Shell station for ideas. "Beauty is good business."

Name Fits, Sort of...

A Navy ship recommended by Duncan-Heinz? Well, yes and no. Yes, it was recommended by Duncan-Heinz. No, it wasn't recommended by Duncan-Hines.

The Duncan and Heinz in this case were Vice Admirals Charles K. Duncan, Chief of Naval Personnel and Luther C. Heinz, commander of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force who visited the amphibious transport dock USS Raleigh at Virginia Beach.

Shortly afterward, the ship's Master-at-Arms was heard to quip, "This must be a pretty good ship, it's been recommended by Duncan and Heinz." The idea snowballed. After all, a ship that sports a hull number "1" could hardly be number 2, could it?

Larry Douglas Christian has been promoted to grade E-2 on graduation from basic combat training. The promotion was awarded two months earlier than usual, under an Army policy providing incentive for outstanding trainees.

Pvt. Christian is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest T. Christian of Rt. 4.

Oceana Chief Is One of 10

An Oceana man was honored in Washington, D. C. Chief Aviation Equipment Tech. Donald C. Roberts of the Aircraft Maintenance Department at Naval Air Station Oceana was one of ten individuals who received recognition for their share in supporting the Department of Defense's cost reduction effort.

Chief Roberts' story began with a broken down GTC compressor inverter which furnished 115 volt single phase alternating current electricity for the A-4 Skyhawk starting system. Without this item it would be most difficult to start an A-4 aircraft, Chief Roberts was ready to pitch the unit which was marked "C" indicating that it was a consumable piece of equipment. "C" units are like light bulbs - when these units quit working they are thrown away and replaced by new units.

At this point, Chief Roberts discovered that a replacement unit was not available. The chief began to inquire into the possibility of repairing the only unit he had to work with. He carried the unit to a local radio repair shop and found that it could be repaired. Rather than be junked, the units could be repaired and much money could be saved for the Navy.

Chief Roberts' suggestion to convert the GTC compressor inverter to a "R" or repairable unit will result in an estimated savings of $12,000 in three years at Naval Air Station Oceana alone. The idea was such a good one for cost reduction that it was sent to Washington for consideration in the DOD Cost Reduction Program. Through Navy-wide adoption, by FY 72 this one item will save an estimated $144,000.

At the local level, Chief Roberts had already received congratulations from the Oceana Commanding Officer, Captain William A. Schroeder, Jr., the Commander Fleet Air Norfolk, Commander Naval Air Force Atlantic Fleet, Vice Admiral Robert L. Townsend,

V.F.W. Names Wells

Ray Gallagher, Redfield, S. D., Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, has announced the appointment of Frank L. Wells, of Delaware Avenue, as National Aide-de-Camp, V.F.W.

"The ever-lengthening record of V.F.W. accomplishments will continue to grow as long as we have men of the caliber of Wells helping to write it," said Gallagher in making the announcement. "It has long been the practice of the national organization to select men for this appointment who are dedicated to serving their communities and to furthering the ideals of the nation and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Wells has proved over the years to be such a person and I am proud to publicly commend him for his efforts."

Don't Kid 'Rangers'

"Being a member of the 'Captain Marvel' Fan Club doesn't make it. Being a member of the 'Ranger Rick' Nature Club makes it," so say the members of Navy SEAL Team Two.

In a rather informal ceremony held at the Naval Special Warfare Group Atlantic Headquarters at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base in Virginia Beach, some 35 members of Navy SEAL Team Two, including the Team's executive officer Lieutenant Stanley S. Meston, were presented with "Ranger Rick" car stickers, shoulder patches and pocket pins, and were made members of the nature club. "Ranger Rick's Nature Club," sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, is interested in conservation and wildlife preservation. The club's motto is "Learn to Live with Nature."

Self-Defense Is Subject

Sgt. Milton E. Beane, Personnel and Training Officer of the Virginia Beach Police Department, will speak and show a film on Self Defense and Attack at the November meeting of the Virginia Beach Chapter #974 of NARCE.

The meeting will be held at 2 p.m., Nov. 20, in the St. Francis Episcopal Church, 509 Rosemont Rd. in Princess Anne Plaza.

A discussion period will follow Sgt. Beane's talk. Refreshments will be served.

Boatswain's Mate 1 C. James P. Lowery, USN, husband of the former Miss Nancy P. Kirby of Silina Drive, is serving aboard the USS York County.

Cadet Curtis D. Johnson, son of U. S. Navy Captain and Mrs. Dean R. Johnson of Frizzell Drive is one of more than 960 cadets who have entered their sophomore year at the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Commissaryman 2.C. James M. Allen, USN, son of Mrs. Leo Y. West of Red Tide Road, is serving aboard the USS Kitty Hawk, an attack aircraft carrier, which just completed an eight month deployment to Vietnam.

Carl T. Bush, son of Mrs. Virginia E. Bush, Green Kemp Road, recently participated in an Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps (AFROTC) field training encampment at Myrtle Beach AFB, S. C.

Cadet Bush is a member of the AFROTC unit at the University of Oklahoma. He is working toward his Ph. D. degree in computer science.

IF THERE'S DIRT IN YOUR ELECTRICALLY-HEATED HOUSE, YOU BROUGHT IT IN.

Electric heat never creates any dirt. Or grime. Or soot. Or anything else but gentle, draft free heat.

Your floors, walls, ceilings, draperies and furniture stay clean longer. General housecleaning is easier and can be done less often.

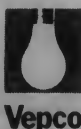

If your old heating system is giving you trouble this winter, call your nearest Vepco Authorized Comfort Conditioning Contractor and let him give you an estimate on converting your house to modern electric heat. (He's in the Yellow Pages under "Heating Contractors.")

Remember, if you decide to convert, it'll take less than four days. And you can leave your old heating system on throughout the conversion.

Modern electric heat. It'll keep your house completely clean. As long as you remember to wipe your feet.

If your home has electricity, you already have the better part of a new heating system.

Job Hunting Is Next

The Navy's second-ranking warrant boatswain retired in Virginia Beach recently.

CWO Clarence Sheets, a W-4 Boatswain since June 1957, ended his 33-year naval career in a retirement ceremony held by Amphibious Construction Battalion Two of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force. The event took place at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

Between the time he left New Lexington, Ohio to join the Navy and his retirement today are enough episodes for a book.

And, in fact, he was the prototype for a character in a best seller.

Recorded in his career are two wars, a dozen military campaigns and millions of miles.

His service record reads like an American military odyssey. After duty in the Pacific Ocean just prior to World War II, his travels entailed the Japanese invasion of China, the Allied invasion of Normandy, the American landings in southern France, and the Korean conflict.

As second-ranking warrant boatswain, and one of the Navy's top ten warrant officers of all specialties, Bos'n Sheets left the Navy amid appropriate ceremonies here, serving as honorary inspector in a review of his unit.

Standing before the battalion, CWO Sheets expressed his last wish: "... have liberty call commence immediately!"

"Piped over" then by eight of his fellow warrant officers, he ended his naval career by retiring to his home at Pecan Grove Road.

His plans for the future? "I'm going out like I came in," he says, "looking for a job."

Sheets made a final inspection of his men during retirement ceremonies.

Tri-Hi-Y Group Visits Mayor

As part of the observance of Hi-Y, Tri-Hi-Y week last week 14 of the 18 members of the Cox High School Tri-Hi-Y visited Virginia Beach Mayor Frank Dusch in his office where they discussed city government with him. The Mayor signed a proclamation calling attention to the observance.

The sponsor of the group, Miss Jo Ann Belda, said other activities included visiting the Fort Story Catholic Church, collecting for UNICEF at last Friday's football game and collecting magazines on Saturday for patients in the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

The president of the Cox club is Debbie Boykin.

Miss Belda and Mayor Dusch pose with members of the Cox Tri-Hi-Y.

Spirits Low after Homecoming

competition, the excitement of the crowning of the queen, the sorrow of losing the Homecoming football game, and the colorful decoration of the Homecoming dance are all only memories. But Rebecca Martin has the title of Homecoming Queen, the Senior class the honor of first place for their float "I Dream of Queenie," the Senior and Sophomore classes the satisfaction of trying for the most spirited classes and everyone the sore feet from dancing to the Zion Crossroads, to remember the occasion.

Monday was college night at First Colonial. Representatives from a number of colleges spoke to interested students, encouraging them to consider their colleges as a choice for furthering their education.

Many of the old spirited signs and posters have been torn down from the walls, but student enthusiasm and interest still remain as new signs are being tacked up encouraging support for the football team when they meet Kellam High School this Friday night. A trophy will be given to the winner of the contest.

Faculty Backs Document

Thirteen Virginia Wesleyan College faculty and staff members have signed a declaration supporting the Vietnam War Moratorium movement and condemning United States involvement in the Vietnam conflict.

The declaration was sponsored by the Campus Americans for Democratic Action and was offered to the individuals of the faculty, administration, and staff of the college. The declaration was announced at a faculty meeting on Oct. 23 and has been available to be signed since that date. This declaration was not circulated for student signatures. There are 51 members of the Virginia Wesleyan faculty and staff.

A notice which accompanied the declaration stated: "This declaration is sponsored by the C.A.D.A. at Virginia Wesleyan College and represents what we think is a reasonable compromise of the points of view and positions expressed by and held by our organization. We offer it to you to sign so that there are members of the faculty, administration and staff who are in favor of the Moratorium Movement."

The C.A.D.A. was organized at Virginia Wesleyan in October 1969 and the group sponsored discussion sessions on Vietnam and a one-hour silent vigil during the Oct. 15 Moratorium. There are five members of the steering committee of the C.A.D.A. They have had about four meetings since their organization. A spokesman for the steering committee, composed of students and faculty, indicated that attendance at the meetings ranged from 10 - 25.

Plans are now being made as to what part this group will have in the November Moratorium Movement. In other action related to the Vietnam Moratorium, the faculty of Virginia Wesleyan College responded to a petition this week from 154 members of the campus community which requested a suspension of VPI Alumni

To See Films

Virginia Polytechnic Institute Alumni will view films of the William and Mary and Florida State game at the Alumni Association meeting planned tonight, Thursday, at the Black Angus Restaurant.

No reservations are needed and guests are invited. A social hour from 6 to 8 p.m. will precede dinner and the films.

classes on Nov. 14 "in order to support the Vietnam Moratorium for peace." The faculty response to the petition came in the form of a resolution and a memo to students.

The present college policy at Wesleyan regarding class attendance is that each individual instructor is responsible for establishing policies on attendance in his or her classes.

Parents Replace Offspring

Last Tuesday the Cox SCA sponsored an open house. Parents spent 15 minutes in each of their students' classes, and during study hall, attended a reception in the cafeteria. All Cox clubs had displays in the cafeteria, showing their scrapbooks and explanations of their activities. Following the classes, the senior class presented an excerpt of their play, "Dark of the Moon," which will be performed next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. in the Cox Auditorium.

The school took on a formal atmosphere yesterday, with coats and ties everywhere, since the photographers came to take pictures for the class and club sections of the yearbook.

In sports, the Cox Falcons were defeated last Friday in a game with Granby, but are looking forward to victory against PA tomorrow night at PA. Preceding the game will be a pep-rally bonfire at Cox, and a caravan to the game from there. This will be the Falcons' last game of the season, with a present record of 4-4-1. Wrestling and basketball practices are well under way now, and everyone is anxiously awaiting the openers on Dec. 5 and 6.

Alumni to Meet Mon.

The Tidewater, Virginia area alumni of Randolph-Macon College will hold a dinner meeting at 6 p.m. Monday, Nov. 17, at the Pine Tree Inn, 2932 Virginia Beach Blvd. in Virginia Beach.

Dr. W. Schuyler Miller, professor of chemistry, will speak on the potential of the $4 million science facility now under construction on the college campus.

Football Anniversary Celebrated

The big news this week at Floyd E. Kellam High School is "Centennial" - the Centennial football game and pageantry, that is, marking 100 years of scholastic football.

To start off the celebration on Monday, Mayor Frank Dusch came to the school to sign a proclamation declaring this "Football Centennial Week".

On Friday, to climax the week, there will be a commemorative football game between the Knights of Kellam and the Patriots of First Colonial High School. This game, to be held at Kellam, will be highlighted by the crowning of a Centennial Queen. After the game, there will be a dance with music provided by Distant Light.

During the week, there will be various activities such as a pep rally and class competition.

A ceremony for the crowning of the Centennial queen will take place pre-game. The girls are Debbie Pickard, Patsy Sheets, Shell Purvis, Louise Futrell, Candy Moore, and Margie Gibson. Their escorts will be alumni football players from the class of 1965, Joe Byrtus, the football captain of 1965 will crown the queen.

Spirit helmets will be set up in the front lawn of the school in which students will pay to sign in order to promote school spirit and class rivalry. The Centennial game is sponsored by the Kellam Booster Club and presented by the Senior class.

Thanksgiving Dinner Set

The Blackwater Golden Age Club will hold its next meeting at the Oakgrove Baptist Church with Mrs. Elenora Winston presiding.

All Golden Age Clubs in Virginia Beach are preparing for the Thanksgiving Fellowship dinner held each November at the Seatack Elementary School.

The Baby Contest held by the Nimmo Club under the direction of Mrs. Sara P. Cason is under way, ending Dec. 9. The proceeds will be used to distribute baskets to needy families.

New PTA Group Has Open House

The newly organized Pembroke Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association held a short business meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 11, at 7:30 p.m. At the conclusion of this meeting, parents had the opportunity of visiting the teachers and classroom to take part in an "Open House".

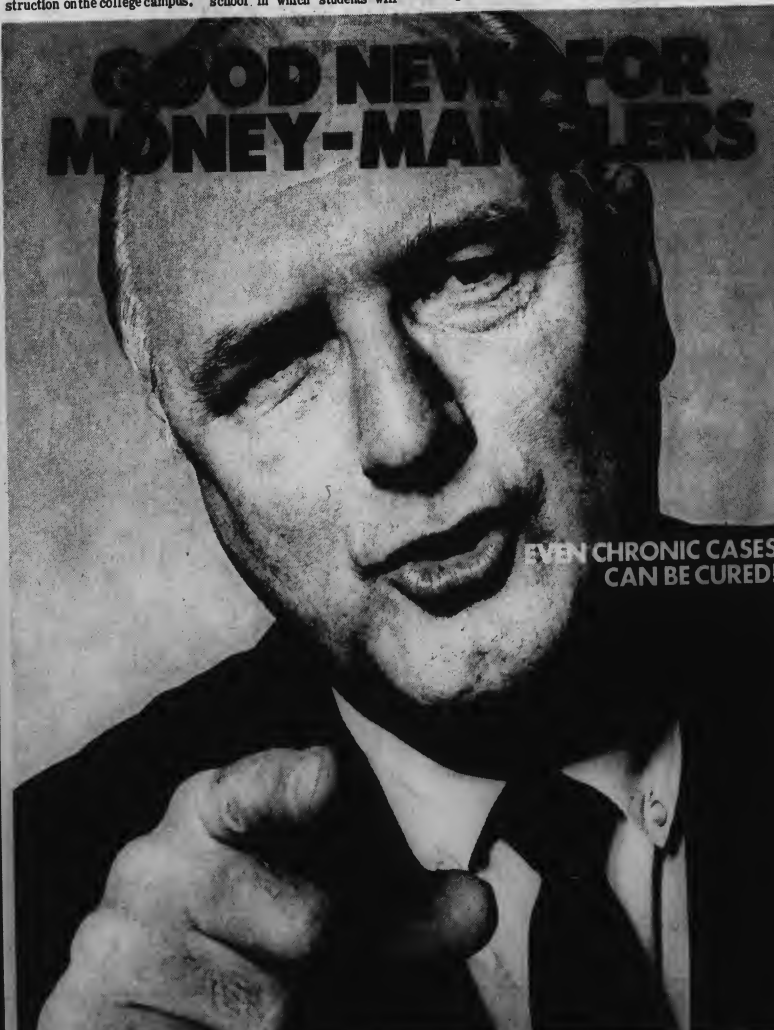

An award was given to the winning class based on the attendance of parents at this meeting.

School Visits Set by College

Jeanne Ashton, Asst. Director of Admission for Green Mountain College in Poultney, Vt., will visit secondary schools in this area Nov. 17-21.

She will meet with guidance counselors and talk with students at Princess Anne, First Colonial, Kellam and Cox High Schools on Friday, Nov. 21. Students interested in discussing Green Mountain, a two-year college for women, should contact their guidance counselor for further information concerning the visit.

Parents might do well to take a tip from their children while driving. A survey recently taken by Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies indicate that approximately twice as many teenagers use seat belts as their parents.

Check Given to Help Others

Rado Annette Harris, who was severely burned over 85 per cent of her body when a Navy jet crashed into the yard of her Prosperity Road home in February of 1967, has given a $1,000 donation to the Shriners to show her appreciation for the medical treatment given her at the Shrine's Burns Institute at Galveston, Texas. Rado, now 14 years old, remained at DePaul Hospital in Norfolk, under intensive medical care, from the day of the accident until April of '67 when she was transferred to the Burns Institute. She remained there, undergoing highly specialized treatment, until August when she was released from the hospital.

The $1,000 donation which Rado gave to the Shriners and which she specified should go to the Galveston Institute to assist others, represented a portion of an out of court settlement of $715,000 which her family received in a compensatory damage suit filed last year in connection with the accident.

Those on hand to witness the donation, which was made at the Khedive Temple on Freemason Street in Norfolk, included Rado's mother, Mrs. Catherine Basnight; Temple Potentate George H. Gordon; and Past Potentate S. S. Edward Coggin, who held the office of potentate at the time of Rado's injury; and J. Ronald McLean, chairman of the Oyster Bowl Committee.

Veterans Go or Degrees

A national study of the veterans who entered college during the first three years of the current GI Bill indicates that while almost half enrolled as freshmen, about one in five enrolled for a master's or Ph.D. degree.

E. P. Brosnan, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Roanoke, said that more than half of the GI college students indicates their specific fields of study to VA. Of this group 31 per cent chose business and commerce, 14.5 per cent education, and 11 per cent engineering.

Next in order are the life sciences (agriculture, biological, medical, and health), under nine per cent; technical courses, less than eight per cent; and social sciences, under eight per cent.

Business is also popular among veterans who trained in schools below the college level. Electrical and electronic training is another popular subject among this group.

In apprentice and other non-job training under the GI Bill, structural courses are the most popular.

There are 200 approved job training establishments in the state.

Brosnan invited veterans in or out of school to contact the VA Regional Office if they have any questions about veterans benefits.

Campaign Meeting Held

Edward Brogan, Virginia Beach campaign chairman of the March of Dimes, and Mrs. Philip J. Terveer, Mother's March chairman, recently attended a National Foundation orientation program in Washington, D. C.

The National Foundation, financed by the January March of Dimes campaign, is the largest single national source of private support for basic clinical research, patient care and community service in the field of birth defects.

While attending the conference Brogan and Mrs. Terveer met the 1970 March of Dimes National Poster Boy, Marty Mim Mack, 8, of Santa Clara, Calif.

The child is a victim of birth defects. He was born without arms and a hip defect that makes his left leg shorter than his right.

This week it's a group, but not just another group. This quartet has delighted audiences and record buyers for many, many years. They go by the name of the Four Freshmen, and as the joke goes, they don't want to graduate because they're making so much money.

Which leads me around to the question: Why should I spend money on their new album "Different Strokes?" You might say "Different Strokes" is a gift of love from the Four Freshmen, Bob Flanigan, Ross Barbour, Ken Albers, and Bill Comstock.

Sly and the Family Stone said it... "Different Strokes for different folks." That's what describes this album. From the gentle "A Man and a Woman" and "I Will Wait For You," to "Ob-La-Di Ob-La-Da" and "Hey Jude" the Freshmen do what they do best, exchange strokes... between performer and audience, and bring it all together in one basic unit of artistic communication.

The Freshmen have been doing it for years as evidenced by the critics, a loyal audience, and a host of imitators. The album is good-darn good. The Four Freshmen do their thing, and stroke for stroke, it's their best yet, and that's no joke. (Liberty Records LST 7630)

2 Questions to Be Asked

A survey to provide current information on the national background as well as the literacy of the U. S. population will be conducted by the Bureau of the Census in November.

Interviewing in this area will take place during the week of Nov. 16, according to Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's regional office in Charlotte. The information is needed to improve the efficiency of a variety of government programs. Facts on literacy and national origin of the population have not been collected for a decade.

This special survey will be conducted as a part of the monthly national survey of employment for the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor which furnishes a basic measure of the Nation's economic health.

Information collected in Census Bureau surveys can be used only to determine statistical totals, and facts about each person and family are kept confidential by LAW.

The Census interviewer who will visit households in this area is Mrs. Audrey L. Hayden of Virginia Beach.

College Has New President

The Rev. Frank W. Pisani, educator, author and minister, will be inaugurated as president of St. Mary's College in Raleigh, N. C. on Friday, Nov. 14.

The ceremonies will begin at 2 p.m. at the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium. A number of alumnae from the junior college for women live in Virginia Beach.

Rev. Pisani has been serving as associate dean of Virginia Theological Seminary. Dr. Richard Stone, former president, has retired.

Control Is Up to People

"Cancer control is people -- men and women in research laboratories, distributing literature to the public, presenting film showings, ringing doorbells, attending meetings, and driving patients to treatment centers."

So reads the introduction to the 1968-69 Annual Report of the American Cancer Society's Virginia Division now being distributed. The report goes on to say that "their efforts combined with those of thousands of other volunteers throughout the country mean progress in the control of cancer."

The report includes a summary of the year's accomplishments such as the state's first Skin Cancer Detection Clinic in Loudoun County, Oral Cancer Detection Clinics in Fauquier County, Harrisonburg, and the Berkeley area of Norfolk; and cancer nursing seminars held in several areas of the state. Also mentioned were cooperative educational efforts with such organizations as the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, Pythian Sisters and Pilot Clubs on the "Conquer Uterine Cancer" program; with the Virginia State AFL-CIO on the importance of annual physical check-ups; and with the PTA, heart and tuberculosis associations on smoking and health programs in the schools.

The report noted that the Virginia Division provided a grant for $3,000 to the University of Virginia School of Medicine, Charlottesville, for the development of a project relating to leukemia in children.

Handbook Compiled For City

For the first time in the city's history Virginia Beach city employees have been supplied with an "Employee Handbook," designed as a guide to what benefits are derived from being an employee of the city and the responsibilities such employment entails.

City Personnel Director E. A. Culverhouse said the handbook is designed foremost with impressing city employees of the importance of good public relations, not only with fellow employees and between city departments but with the general public. For, as is pointed out in the handbook, any city employee at any given time may be placed in a situation that he, or she, at that given moment represents the City of Virginia Beach to residents.

The handbook was prepared through the joint efforts of Culverhouse and Ronald Dorchester, a senior majoring in industrial and labor relations at the University of North Carolina, who was employed as a summer intern in Culverhouse's office. It has been distributed to all employees presently on the city's payroll and will be distributed to future city employees at the time of their employment. The handbook's illustrations were drawn by Capt. R. C. Davis, director of the Virginia Beach detective division.

Culverhouse points out the handbook is intended for use only by those persons who are "classified employees" of the city, and excepts such persons such as those employed by constitutional officers and the Health and Welfare Department which are governed by the State. Departmental policies for these employees are established under regulations governing the operation of their departments, and by various department directors.

Perhaps one of the most important achievements of the handbook, according to Culverhouse, is the assurance that employees of all city departments are now assured of equal treatment. Culverhouse pointed out this was accomplished through very minor changes in operations between city departments.

The importance of the handbook is contained in a portion of a foreword by Culverhouse designed as a message of welcome, in which he says "As in any career but especially in public service, good personal attitudes towards the people with whom you come in contact, are watchwords for success."

Planning Director Patrick Standing gave City Council part of the 90-minute briefing on the Beach Borough Development Plan which comes before Council next Monday for consideration.

Secret to Be Public

One of the best kept secrets at City Hall will receive public airing Monday before City Council members.

City Manager Roger Scott's long-expected reorganization of the city departments and divisions will be unveiled at a closed session of Council following the regular meeting Monday morning.

Scott began talking about the reorganization plan shortly after being made City Manager, and at the end of his first year in office noted his disappointment at not being finished with it. He then promised its completion in October. He said the plan had been set back by higher priority items and by lack of time and personnel to work on it.

But last Monday he announced it was ready for an initial look. Most of the contents have not leaked out to individual Councilmen, although certain portions of the reorganization have come to light.

One recommendation will be to merge the Rudee Inlet Authority with the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, giving

Brickell to Request Funds for Schools

School Supt. E. E. Brickell has bad news for City Council in the form of a $130,000 request for funds to begin three new schools.

Council, which recently has trimmed expenditures to a minimum and delayed further public works projects until the bond market is more favorable for the sale of municipal bonds, will hear Brickell's request at its meeting Monday morning.

The funds are sought for two elementary and one secondary school, $12,500 is needed to hire architects. A large chunk, $50,000, is needed for the purchase of 15 acres at Green Run Farm for an elementary school that will be needed by 1971. Another $40,000 for an architect to draw up preliminary plans for a new high school in the Bayside-Lynnhaven area, $27,500 for engineering studies and preliminary site work on a proposed elementary school in North Virginia Beach.

The School Board, however, has not gotten final word on the North Virginia Beach site yet. It is part of Seashore State Park, and School Board officials are confident of arranging a 99-year lease on the land, it is separated from the rest of the park by Shore Drive on one side and Fort Story on the other.

The three schools were included in a State Department of Education survey of school building needs for Virginia Beach presented last month which said all three would be needed by 1973.

Architects have already been approved for the schools. They are Cheving, Britt, Haggard, Lamm & Gresham for Green Run school, Oliver & Smith, who designed Plaza Junior High, for the secondary school, and McClurg & Wall for the North Virginia Beach school.

Another delay is holding up the beginning of construction of the vocational-technical high school--the latest in a long series of delays over several years. A low bid of $2,113,000 by Conrad Brothers, Inc. was accepted last week for construction of the school which was to be completed by August 1971. However, funds to construct the school are tied up in an omnibus education bill now before the U. S. Senate. Brickell said he has talked to Senator Spong who said it should pass the Senate within the next three weeks. Contracts on the school were let for 60 days, and if the money is not appropriated, the School Administration will have to default.

The City will gain about six acres of land free of charge after a marsh behind Princess Anne High School is used for their wives, along with City Council members, PTA presidents and military commanders and their wives will be invited to a special show at the Plaza Junior High planetarium on Dec. 11, Herbert D. Teuscher, planetarium director, reported that more than 4,000 persons have viewed programs there since it opened in September. He added that world wide interest should be centered in this area in March when there will be a solar eclipse visible from land only on the East Coast.

In other action the School Board heard a report on the proposed evaluation of the schools' foreign language program. Milton Hahn described a method of emphasizing listening, reading and writing of foreign languages which should help students in learning. The evaluation will consist of testing language students and comparing the results with national norms. He also described an aptitude test for students to take before embarking on a foreign language course and perhaps eliminate some failures.

The board approved Newtown Elementary School for the new elementary school under construction on Newtown Road.

M.P. Strickler, assistant superintendent of transportation and non-instructional personnel, said the Virginia Beach has the lowest price per pupil transportation system in the state, operating at a cost of about $18 per pupil a year or about 10 cents a day per pupil. Norfolk parents pay $45 a year for bus service.

Strickler also announced the replacement of the transportation building and an addition to the bus garage. The old transportation building was originally a fire station. The total cost of the project, including the demolition of the old building, was $27,900 and was covered in this year's school budget.

Brickell

a spoil area for the dredging of Thalia Creek. The School Board Tuesday voted approval. The marsh is now useless because it is under water. According to Ernest Stone, construction superintendent for schools, the area will have settled five or six years after dredging is completed.

School board members and

Drug Course Set

A door to door campaign will launch the drug education curriculum for Virginia Beach students in grades six through 10. The information campaign, prepared by the Virginia Beach City Schools, will be for parents and will be distributed on a Sunday by members of the Virginia Beach Federation of Women's Clubs before the curriculum for students begins on Monday next semester. The information on drugs is to better prepare parents in advising the students.

"We're all aware of the problem," said William E. Garrison, assistant coordinator of physical education for the public schools. "We feel it should not only be dealt with by the schools but also by the homes and churches." He added that the schools had been working for almost a year in devising the curriculum and had consulted police, ministers, doctors, all civic and social groups and had visited cities in the state and out to see what they are doing with the drug problem.

Garrison said that in 1965 there was one person arrested for having drugs. So far there have been 110 in 1969, of which 43 have been 18 or younger.

"We're trying to present different information on different aspects of drug abuse at appropriate grade levels," said Garrison, adding that all materials would be housed in the Media Center at Princess Anne Courthouse.

Garrison said that the curriculum is designed to point out

We Need It; They Have It

In somewhat of a surprise move Monday City Manager Roger Scott asked for and received authorization from City Council in informal session to begin preliminary talks with the city of Chesapeake on the subject of water.

Scott then informed Chesapeake Manager Robert House of the city's position so he could get the Chesapeake Council reaction. Scott told Council members that he wished to discuss the possibility of a two-city water system and authority with House, or possibly Virginia Beach purchase of water from the new Chesapeake system just approved.

Chesapeake approved a $16.5 million bond issue earlier this month to finance a system, expected to be in operation within three years. The bonds are being financed by the system itself.

Scott noted that if Virginia Beach wished to get in the program with Chesapeake the resort city would have to move fast. Councilmen gave him approval of initial talks with little discussion.

At present both Virginia Beach and Chesapeake purchase water from Norfolk at double the cost to Norfolk residents. Neither city has been entirely pleased with the arrangement, although Virginia Beach was thought until recently near agreement with Norfolk on a new contract based on a reciprocal garbage-water contract. Virginia Beach now handles Norfolk's garbage at double the cost of handling garbage of Virginia Beach citizens.

Scott said he had already held informal talks with House, who had noted interest in the two cities cooperating.

The newly-created South-eastern Virginia Planning District commission has begun efforts to get all four south Tidewater cities to cooperate on water development recently. Both Norfolk and Portsmouth now own their own systems.

The commission is interested in the creation of a long-range plan for the entire area. Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin has already noted his interest in the regional water systems of the future, and Scott did not rule out Virginia Beach participation in talks concerning the contract for the resort city. He said that no matter what he felt the current plan should be discussed. Council agreed.

W. Russell Hatchett six years ago tried to realize a four-city system but was rebuffed by the other cities. Now, however times seem to have changed in this new age of arewide cooperation talk.

In other action Monday Council discussed the Terry Corporation's objection to a new subdivision ordinance that requires developers to give the city all sewer lines installed under streets. The corporation signed an agreement with Hatchett some time ago noting protest when subdividing part of Pembroke Meadows. Principals sought the same agreement for a new section.

Council took the matter under advisement, although Scott said he felt it could prejudice the city if the matter ever came to court. City Attorney Harry Marshall was told to examine the matter.

Council also received the resignation of Frank W. Cox, retired school superintendent, from the Community College Board. Cox is reported to be in ill health. A $5,000 appropriation for that board was also discussed and is expected to be passed Monday.

Plan Decision Due

The Beach Borough Development Plan, several months in research and planning, comes before City Council Monday for final consideration.

The plan, a lengthy and complicated document has received numerous public hearings in the spring, summer and fall before residents of the areas to be affected and finally before the City Planning Commission last week. Generally it is acceptable to most in its final form, although there is still expected to be some opposition to some points.

On a question concerning representatives of Virginia Beach citizens and city government fewer answers were received than is usual to SUN SURVEY questions. But those who replied overwhelmingly favor the proposed city charter change.

A total of 94 per cent of those who replied to last week's question, "Should terms of Virginia Beach City Councilmen be staggered in the future as has been proposed as a change to the City Charter?", favored the proposal. Only six per cent said "No."

A number who favor the change hailed the move as another step in the progress of our city government, and many said it should have been done before.

A large number of those who opposed the move noted they were not against the change as such, but were disturbed about the way the initial two and four-year terms would be set up. They said they favored a choice of terms by popular vote and not by lot, as has been accomplished. (See editorial, p.4)

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called also to this week's SUN SURVEY question, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

Council received a 90-minute briefing on the plan Monday and praised planning director Patrick Standing and his long-range planning assistant Timothy Barrow for their presentation and for the long hours and hard work that have gone into it. Several, however, reserved the right to disagree with some points.

Probably the most controversial point in the entire plan calls for the pairing of Atlantic and Pacific Avenue as one-way streets. Pacific would move south, while Atlantic would carry northbound traffic, as part of a full-scale traffic development plan for the area.

The Virginia Beach Innkeepers have noted their opposition and will appear Monday to say that they feel it would hurt the tourist related business as along the oceanfront.

Several Councilmen said they believe it would help the resort. Standing pointed out that the plan could be tried at little or no cost and could be changed back or modified if it did not work.

The plan is expected to be passed as drawn, even with the one way streets, since the objections are largely based on tradition and speculation.

The plan encompasses all of the resort area, as well as North Virginia Beach, the area (See 'Plan,' p. 2)

Maneuvering Begins Again

Even before the furor of the recent election died down in Virginia, politics in Virginia Beach were looking ahead to the future, and the 1970 Council election specifically.

City Treasurer, V. A. (Jack) Etheridge, recognized in the past as the leader of one faction of Democrats in Virginia Beach, had comments on the forthcoming race.

He was answered by the leader of the other faction, Sidney Kellam.

And the newly elected member of the House of Delegates, Richard Guy, had some strong comments aimed at reminding and strengthening the Democratic party in Virginia Beach and statewide.

Etheridge said he was adopting a "hands off policy" in the Council race. He urged others to do the same. He said the machine in Virginia Beach had too long dominated politics. Without naming the leader of the organization he called the "machine," it was obvious he was referring to Kellam.

Kellam answered by saying the reason Etheridge was adopting such a policy was that Etheridge has "learned by now that the people of Virginia Beach will not be dictated to by him or anyone else."

He added that Etheridge is now admitting he cannot control the voters of the city. Kellam denied charges of political control by any machine.

The United Party of 1966, headed at that time by Etheridge reportedly recently solicited funds through Etheridge to conduct a poll to determine the future of their faction. The poll, with numerous questions was conducted during October, at the height of the gubernatorial campaign, according to reliable sources who were interviewed.

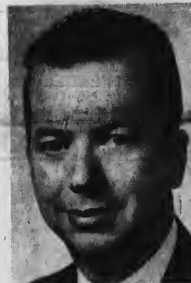

Etheridge and his supporters had been closely tied to the Battle candidacy. But there had been recurring reports that even the United Ticket supporters were no longer interested in having Etheridge lead.

The results of the poll may have backed off. Allegedly they showed trouble ahead for the Etheridge faction. There is strong speculation that the hands off policy came about as the result of this.

Meanwhile Guy sent a letter to all members of the city Democratic Executive Committee calling attention to the problems in the Democratic party and suggesting "this may be the time for the Committee to consider the extent of its responsibilities under the Party Plan."

Guy said that first and foremost the bringing of more young people into the party activities was important. He also suggested closer cooperation of

Bid Decision Expected

Inlet project engineer L. Dean Curtis of about $100,000, of $1 per cubic yard for dredging the approximately 100,000 cubic yards of sand.

The bids were not so drawn. The Higginson-Buchanan bid was for $30,000 for setting up and taking down equipment plus $1 per cubic yard, or $250 per hour in the sandtrap.

The Cottrell bid was not as specific. It called for $7,500 per month for a floating dredge and $5,000 per month for a booster station. This did not include labor, supplies or pipeline for the job that is expected to take about three to four months.

While it will not be known exactly until McDonald's analysis is complete, it appears that the original estimate is lower than the bids, and just what can be worked out is not known.

Funds for the job will come from the bank account of the Erosion Commission, which has taken on the responsibility of dredging the channel and maintaining the sand trap.

The problem arose when storms and other circumstances prevented the commission's equipment from getting the trap open and keeping the channel clear at the same time. When sharp criticism came to the attention of City Council from charter boats operating out of the marina at Rudee Inlet, a meeting of interested parties was set up and the commission made the decision to use its funds to hire the commercial dredge.

The city considers the showing that the trap will work and the channel can be kept open once the initial dredging is complete is most important to future development of the area. City authorities hope the dredging can be completed by next spring when the first phase of a permanent marina is expected to be completed, if problems in that area can also be worked out.

work on the additional floor of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach is progressing well, according to hospital authorities.

Dispatcher W.V. Brew feeds information into the control terminal at Virginia Beach police headquarters during an informational inquiry of the NCIC headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Instant System Helps Police

The Virginia Beach police department has become the first law enforcement agency in the Tidewater area to be placed on full operation status with the National Crime Information Center enabling the department to determine within seconds if anyone arrested in the resort city is being sought for any other crime, or has any criminal record in 49 States, the District of Columbia, or Canada.

This is accomplished through a direct electronic hook-up from police headquarters at Princess Anne Courthouse with an NCIC computer terminal in Norfolk, which serves as a direct relay point to the NCIC headquarters in Washington, D. C.

According to the NCIC "Newsletter" just published, the NCIC headquarters contains 1,369,443 records of information which could be vital to the nation's law enforcement agencies.

The Virginia Beach hook-up with the system is by means of a "control terminal" in the main police communications room, and resembles a teletype machine. In its physical appearance, information to be checked is fed into the terminal, along with a series of codes which will identify the inquiry as coming from Virginia Beach, which is then fed to the NCIC central computer in Washington by means of an instantaneous relay through the Norfolk computer terminal. Within seconds a response to the query is received. This response may be negative, showing there is no crime related information on file at NCIC headquarters, or may be a positive response, referred to as "a hit" and contains enough information to identify the individual in question as being wanted for a specific crime or an item in question as having been reported stolen.

The system has already proved valuable to Virginia Beach police in identifying a number of recovered autos and other items as being reported stolen at an earlier date.

The rapidity of the system is well illustrated in two inquiries referred to the NCIC headquarters. An inquiry on an auto as possibly being a stolen vehicle brought an affirmative "hit" response within eight seconds. Another example of the system's rapid operation was

Holton To Address Jaycees

Governor Elect Linwood Holton will be the keynote speaker at the Virginia Jaycee Board Meeting, banquet on Nov. 22, 1969 at the Lake Wright motor hotel in Norfolk.

The meeting will be attended by Jaycees and their wives from all over the state, and attendance should be enhanced by the presence of the Governor Elect fresh from his election victory.

The banquet commences at 7 p.m. with a cocktail hour preceding it.

The Virginia Beach Jaycees will be the Host Chapter for the weekend activities.

Power Fails

Fire of undetermined origin resulted in a power failure of nearly six hours duration in the area around Cardinal Estates late Sunday night. The hot fire was centered in the abandoned structure which formerly housed Peele's Market near the intersection of Holland Road and South Lynnhaven Road. The power failure occurred when flames burned through high-powered VEPCO lines before being extinguished. Men from the Princess Anne Courthouse and Plaza Volunteer Fire Departments were on scene for nearly four hours.

Shed Burns

An investigation is underway into the cause of a fire which destroyed a packing shed owned by the Brock Farms last Sunday night. The shed, located near the intersection of Princess Anne and Newtown Roads, contained an assortment of machinery and empty packing cases which were destroyed. Men from the Kempsville and Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Departments had the fire under control within 40 minutes from the time the alarm was sounded, and managed to keep the fire from spreading to a second packing shed located some 30 feet away.

Escapes Fire

The lone occupant of a small Virginia Beach cottage escaped injury when fire caused extensive damage to the interior of the building, early Monday morning. Investigators said the fire was apparently caused by careless smoking. The structure was a unit of the Collins' bungalow apartments in the 4500 block of Virginia Beach Boulevard. Members of the Thalia and Davis Corner Volunteer Fire Departments spent about 45 minutes at the scene of the alarm.

Zoning May Delay Rebuilding

Doubt still surrounds the future Hurd's Seafood Restaurant, off Little Neck Road, which was virtually destroyed by fire a week ago.

The restaurant was gutted by fire on November 12 and has since become the center of a zoning ordinance controversy which has a bearing on the rebuilding of the facility.

When the restaurant was first opened in 1936 the present day zoning ordinances did not exist. However when that region was zoned for single-family residences the restaurant was allowed to operate under a non-conforming permit.

Under present regulations, if such a business structure, which does not conform to zoning requirements of the section in which it is located, is destroyed beyond 50 per cent of its original cost the business must be discontinued, or if rebuilt, must conform to the zoning requirements.

John E. Gibbs, city building inspections division superintendent, told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, he has inspected the building and in his opinion the structure has been destroyed to a degree of "over 50 per cent of its original cost". Gibbs also said, "I'm of the opinion that the area must be rezoned to commercial classification before it (the restaurant) can be rebuilt."

Miss Patricia Hurd, a part owner of the restaurant, indicated after the fire she had intended to have the restaurant rebuilt. Gibbs indicates he has informed the contracting firm retained by the owners of his opinion requiring rezoning of the area before rebuilding would be permitted.

Last Monday was the deadline for the filing of a rezoning application on the part of the contractor in order to be considered in the Planning Commission's public hearing scheduled for Monday, Dec. 8.

Richard K. Stell, an assistant planning director, told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN on Tuesday that thus far his office had no record of any application having been made requesting rezoning of the property.

Reaction from residents of the region is also varied over the future of Hurd's Seafood Restaurant. Indication are a number of residents have begun circulation of a petition favoring rezoning of that portion of land on which the restaurant is located, while other nearby residents have voiced opposition to allowing any spot zoning, which would involve the land on which the restaurant is located.

They Graduated to Homework

Two plus two is not necessarily four anymore as any parent of elementary school child has learned, probably the hard way, since September.

New mathematics text books were adopted this year and with them came an introduction to "new math," which most parents had heard of but never seen.

Parents at Aragona Elementary School decided to do something about it. Night classes in new math for parents were organized. They met for an hour, one night a week for six weeks.

Tuesday they "graduated." Each parent that had completed the course received a certificate in a special program attended by School Supt. E. E. Brickell, Garland Jackson, assistant to the superintendent, and Bruce McGuire, director of elementary education.

Commented Brickell, "I think

I'm going to hunt up a class and enroll too. I have a third grader who will be bringing this work home soon."

McGuire called the classes "a splendid effort on the part of the PTA and the school. Of the 107 parents who registered 96 finished the course which covered everything from "sets," introduced in first grade, through geometry. The classes were taught by William Bowling and Miss Nancy Renegar, Aragona teachers.

School Supt. E. E. Brickell speaks to "graduates" at Aragona Elementary School as Bowling and Miss Renegar await their turns.

Police Chiefs Compare Notes

Police Chief Col. W. W. Davis, Lt. W. L. Grant, executive aide to Col. Davis, and Reeves Johnson, the city's traffic safety chief represented Virginia Beach at the 44th annual convention of the Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police which was held last Thursday and Friday at Natural Bridge.

The two-day convention was highlighted by panel discussions on subjects which play important roles in the rapidly changing field of law enforcement today, and featured addresses by many highly respected police officials from a large number of cities throughout Virginia.

Widow Receives Medal

The Distinguished Flying Cross was awarded posthumously to Navy Lt. (j.g.) David T. Wadsworth, in a special service Tuesday at the Norfolk Naval Air Station for his actions of last July 18 in guiding his crippled jet fighter plane away from homes in the region of Garcia Road and Virginia Beach Blvd.

Wadsworth lost his life when his crippled plane crashed into woods as he attempted to fly the aircraft back to the Oceana Naval Air Station.

Officials said the plane developed engine trouble during a routine aerial training flight, and in accordance with regulations he attempted to return to the airfield. When it became apparent however Wadsworth, according to the citation accompanying his award, "voluntarily elected to remain with his stricken aircraft to insure the safety of the lives and property of others."

The citation continued "Only when all control of the aircraft was lost did he attempt to save his own life, by ejecting at tree top level. Although the ejection seat functioned properly he was unable to benefit from its use because of the extremely low altitude of his plane. By his outstanding courage and selflessness in sacrificing his own life in order to protect the lives of others he upheld the highest tradition of the U. S. Naval Service."

Atlantic Fleet Naval Air Force Commander V. Adm. Robert L. Townsend personally presented Wadsworth's widow Mrs. Paulette Wadsworth with the Distinguished Flying Cross in honor of her husband's actions.

Shortly after the incident the Virginia Beach City Council adopted a resolution commending the 25-year-old Wadsworth for his selfless courage.

Other topics which received considerable attention included the commission of sex crimes progress which has been made in the modern day training of law enforcement officers and recent developments in the field of regional communications and data processing by law enforcement agencies.

the commission new duties and broader powers, while eliminating some duplication of effort.

Another will be the reorganization of the High Constable's office, changing the duties and responsibilities somewhat.

Scott earlier indicated that he will recommend a new department of industry and tourism promotion in the reorganization also. This new department will handle most city departmental public relations and publicity.

A plan to hire some paid firemen to work with the volunteers during the day is also expected to be included.

Scott said earlier that the reorganization was not a "witch hunt", and that there would be no great change in job structures. He said it was merely intended to give the city the most efficient operation at the most economical price.

Plan

around Camp Pendleton, Seaback and Brownie Park. It was an outgrowth of this plan that prompted the immediate action plan now underway in Seaback to upgrade that area.

Discussed in the study are zoning needs for the future, transportation problems, recreational areas, both municipal and private, and traffic.

One other objection to the plan is expected to come in the recommendation that some streets be closed from Atlantic Avenue to the boardwalk and a green wall be put there instead, with service units, to include telephones, mailboxes and rest rooms. There has been opposition to public rest rooms in the past, but also many favor them.

Standing said if they were closed at night, they could perhaps overcome some of the opposition.

Author To Discuss Pornography

Retired Navy Captain Robert A. Winston, author of four books on Communist propaganda and Subversion, will speak on "Your Child - Target of Pornography" at Princess Anne High School on November 22, at 7 p.m. His speech is sponsored by the local committee of the national Movement To Restore Decency (MOTOREDE), and is open to the public.

Captain Winston's naval aviator career began before Pearl Harbor and continued through the Korean War.

While on active duty in Washington, Captain Winston discovered an intricate, well-organized plot to destroy the morale of our Nation's military men. Using the pen name of "Colonel Victor J. Fox," he wrote his first book, "The Pentagon Case." This book exposes the calculated attempt to flood our military posts with pornography. Other books under his pen name include "The Welfare Staters" and "The White House Case."

In civilian life, Captain Winston has been press relations manager for General Foods Corporation and manager of the Reader Information Bureau of the country's largest-circulation newspaper, the New York Daily News. His by-lined articles have appeared in fifteen magazines, including Reader's Digest, This Week Magazine and The Saturday Evening Post.

Winston's speech here is part of a three-week tour sponsored by various MOTOREDE Committees. The Tidewater Virginia MOTOREDE Committee is chaired by Mr. K. W. Howlett, who has invited all interested persons, and especially parents, to attend the meeting. Local sponsors of the MOTOREDE Committee include Rev. Ted Bashford, Rev. John Carraway, Dr. M. H. Whitmore, Rev. H. E. Richards, Rev. Paul D. Moore, Rev. A. E. Vester, Rev. Lamar-Sentell, Dr. H. S. Riley, Rev. Rodney L. Bell, Rev. F. W. Bowman, Rev. Dale Burden, Rev. E. C. Cooley, Rev. J. J. Ramirez and Dr. William A. Dunn.

A donation of $1.00 in advance or $1.50 at the door is requested. Tickets may be obtained by calling 627-8761, by writing the Committee or at the auditorium on the night of the speech.

Ski Club Has First Meeting

The first meeting of the Mogul Ski Club of Norfolk this season was held Wednesday night at the Ramada Inn, just off the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway at Newtown Road.

A representative of Mt. Snow, Vt., spoke to those in attendance. In addition there were ski films and information on ski trips.

Anyone interested in further information on skiing or about the club may contact John Haley at 627-7954.

State Game
Warden

Saturday, November 22, will be the opening day of duck season in Virginia. The Back Bay area should have the best season it has seen in some time. Last week Jack Fentress "the flying game warden" and I flew over the bay and found ducks, coot and geese in abundance.

Some of the ponds in the marsh looked like there was no room for a single duck to set down without hitting his fellow ducks. Last year there were two tracts of coot in the Virginia side of Back Bay. This year I would guess at about fifty tracts.

Jack said he has flown both the Carolina and Virginia sides of the area and it appears that Virginia has as many birds as Carolina, which is quite an improvement in the last few years.

If you plan to hunt Back Bay remember you must be hunting from a blind and you have to hunt over decoys. Geese will also be legal on the water at Back Bay this Saturday. They were legal in the fields the 10th of this month, but had a restriction on the Bay. The bag limits will be three ducks and one goose on the bay compared to three geese killed in the fields.

The duck limit can be no more than two black ducks or two wood ducks and one head or canvasback, but not one of each.

Be sure you have a Duck Stamp for your hunting license. One has to be obtained from the federal government before you can hunt waterfowl.

Game May Decide Standings

There is only one game this weekend involving a Virginia Beach high school team. But that tilt is of extreme importance to the Eastern District standings. The game between Granby and First Colonial will be played Saturday at Foreman Field in Norfolk.

Going into the clash Granby, with a 5-1 district record, has only one loss to Kellam and a 6-2 overall record, the other loss coming in the southeastern district.

First Colonial has a 5-2-2 overall record and a 4-2-1 district record. Granby is ranked second in the district and First Colonial third. Norview has already clinched the district title and has climbed to ninth in the statewide standings, with an 8-1 record. The Pilot's only loss is to Wilson in inter-district play. Wilson is ranked sixth statewide, with an identical record. The Presidents lost only to second-ranked Great Bridge.

The Great Bridge-Norview clash on Thanksgiving Day could very well decide the state title, since Great Bridge is ranked so close to leader Hopewell. The winner of the Turkey Day classic will play the Peninsula winner for a regional title. Great Bridge is favored to win, but Norview has continued to play strong football all season.

Only three teams in the state however, Great Bridge, Hampton and Hopewell, remain undefeated on the season.

Granby, after the loss to Kellam, has come back in fine fashion, massacring Cox and playing a good losing game against Wilson. The Comets look like the favorite in the Saturday clash, although the Patriots won a close one against Kellam last weekend.

In that game, Kellam had the lead 22-8 in mid-third quarter, only to watch the lead evaporate as the Pats scored two touchdowns and successfully made a two-point conversion to take the lead for good and win it 24-22.

Kellam had several scoring opportunities in the fourth quarter and appeared to have control both in the air and on the ground, but lost the ball to fumbles and on an intercepted pass on the 10 yard line with only a few seconds left to go. Kellam thus ended the season with a 6-4 record.

If the season had been any longer Princess Anne might well have proved a threat, and could pose one next year. The Cavaliers held Cox to one TD last weekend, although the Falcons won it 8-6. Cox was unable to score after the first quarter, after marching upfield from the opening kickoff. Cox, as a result of the game, ended the season 5-4-1, the best record ever for the school. The Cavaliers had a disappointing 3-7 season.

The also much improved Kempsville Chiefs won easily over Bayside 34-8 last weekend, and could prove to be the giant-killer next year, as much of the team will be returning. Kempsville ended with a 3-7 record, and Bayside had only one win in ten tries, that an upset one touchdown affair over Kellam.

As predicted earlier no Virginia Beach team posed a great threat in the district this year, especially when First Colonial's team failed to live up to expectations. Norview was just too much for the district to overcome. And so the call goes out after the final game this weekend for a Virginia Beach team. "Wait until next year."

Choice By Lottery

Choice by lottery is at best risky business, although it seems to be a good answer for the draft. But choosing length of terms for the next City Council by lot would appear almost deadly.

We have no quarrel with staggering of Council terms. In fact we favor this strongly. And we realize that setting this up initially requires that some Councilmen serve only two years instead of four after the next election in June. While this is unfortunate, it must be done. But to choose which ones ahead of the June election arbitrarily by lot does not seem right.

First it would seem that the high cost of campaigning twice in four years might drive some of the best candidates out of the field. At least if they knew there was a chance of winning a four-year seat in the first place, there would be more incentive.

We merely feel that the people, not a lottery, should decide. And the only way the people can decide is by popular vote. Already it is proposed that the two at-large candidates receiving the most votes would serve four years, and the other two, only two years. This is fair and equitable.

But in the boroughs it was decided by lot. Why could not the same concept apply in the boroughs as originally suggested?

The matter is not settled yet, and can still be changed. Council must adopt a resolution on the matter. Then the General Assembly must change the City Charter. There is still time to handle this fairly and let the people decide. We are committed to nothing yet, and it would be a shame to commit us without letting us decide.

To a Watering Place

With increased emphasis lately on areawide cooperation it is particularly pleasing to find Virginia Beach and Chesapeake opening preliminary talks about the possibility of establishing a two-city water system.

At present only Norfolk and Portsmouth own water systems. Chesapeake, ready to move toward its own unilaterally, now buys from Portsmouth. Virginia Beach, the victim of Norfolk water woes in the past, now buys from that city at double the rate paid by Norfolk customers. A new contract between the resort city and Norfolk was reportedly reaching near settlement months ago, but warning signals are now up by all indications.

There has been no further announcement from either City Manager, and neither will comment. Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott asked permission of his City Council to open talks with a willing Chesapeake. Approval was given to talk and to explore all the possibilities.

Scott said the talks would not preclude the possibility of a regional water system and authority, as suggest by the new planning district commission. This will most likely be the best answer for the future, and we favor more real areawide cooperation anyway. But the move to talk seriously with Chesapeake now to show our seriousness of purpose would seem to be a good one.

Hopefully the talks will bear fruit and will entice the other cities to join in for some true planning ahead for a future four-city complex unrivaled on the east coast.

A Real Disservice

The BEACON, the Virginia Beach supplement to the Norfolk newspapers, has done Virginia Beach citizens a real disservice with a front-page article last Sunday.

The article retold the plight of the various fire and rescue departments in the city, and the difficulty of manning fully some of them during the day. It also cast serious doubts on the ability of reaching six of the departments by phone and the inability of reaching some chiefs.

The reporter failed to recognize that the departments are not reached individually in an emergency, but through a central dispatcher, as those who live here have been educated to know. Also the chiefs certainly so not stay at the stations 24 hours a day. They, after all, are volunteers, and have other jobs.

This article was brought to the attention of City Council and was also criticized there. We are all aware of the problems faced by the excellent volunteers in our city, but we do not feel they deserve this kind of treatment without the whole story.

To cast doubts on the volunteers is a poor thing to do, especially when we are so fortunate to be so well served in this city by dedicated men.

The solution will probably come in the hiring of some full-time men to man the stations during the day very soon, but the BEACON article notwithstanding, nowhere in the city has an emergency ever gone unintended correctly. The men deserve praise, not criticism and doubts.

Letters to the Editor

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters. They will be published when possible. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer. Letters are invited on any question.

Two Parties

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: With the revival of the two-party political system in Virginia, many citizens feel the shackles have been removed. Now, let's make the 1970 Virginia Beach City Council a truly representative body of the people by helping to field and elect eligible civic-minded candidates regardless of party affiliation, race or sex. New faces in the Virginia Beach political scenery would be healthy and desirable. Also limit the tenure to a one four-year term, on a staggered basis for continuity, in an effort to control and reduce partisan politics, complacency, patronage, factionalism and self interest.

In 1970, Tidewater residents can assist Virginia achieve other breakthroughs by stimulation action and supporting consolidation of cities with full time professional administration, a consistent and realistic approach to zoning in pockets of established residential areas, sales and real estate tax reforms to benefit the senior citizen faced with limited or fixed retirement income and other low-income groups, and enforceable standard of ethics and disclosure of outside income law applicable to all.

I hope the people are not fooled by the politicians into thinking that merger will help Virginia Beach, because it won't. Many of us moved from Norfolk to get away from the problems there. Why bring them back to us? Clarence Mosely P.S. Look out for a lot of propaganda from Norfolk Newspapers! Editor's Note: This was received in answer to the SUN SURVEY Question two weeks ago.

No matter how divided they were and are. No matter that their candidate was not a strong one. And no matter that they were lulled into overconfidence. It couldn't happen. A Republican in the state executive mansion, impossible, but oh so true. His name is GOVERNOR Linwood Holton.

cable to all elected and appointed city and state officials, reduced bridge and tunnel tolls, a Supreme Court Justice promotion for U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman, increased understanding and acceptance by all of the Norfolk long-range mixing plan and a major league football franchise. Football, or any other sport, is an essential part of our environment and is an excellent vehicle for doing things for people.

No Merger

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I do not have my (SUN SURVEY) form to mail in on the proposed merger of Norfolk and Virginia Beach but I do have an opinion. It would be the worst mistake Virginia Beach could make, believe me. Look at other mergers, the biggest partner rules, and that is a fact of life. No matter what is written in the agreement, the biggest partner rules, and that is Norfolk in this case.

I have lived in four states in this country, and Virginia Beach is by far the best place. We fuss and complain about taxes but ours are still lower than anywhere I have lived, and our services are better. I have lived in Norfolk, and I know about things there. We have a fine school system in Virginia Beach, new buildings and good schools. Look at Norfolk, old dirty buildings and poor schools. Why trade that? Busses alone cost $45 per child in Norfolk for schools.

Why take on Norfolk's slums? Look at Berkeley and other places. What does Norfolk have to offer? Nothing except higher taxes, a bad racial problem, poor schools, etc. I hope the people are not fooled by the politicians into thinking that merger will help Virginia Beach, because it won't. Many of us moved from Norfolk to get away from the problems there. Why bring them back to us?

Clarence Mosely P.S. Look out for a lot of propaganda from Norfolk Newspapers! Editor's Note: This was received in answer to the SUN SURVEY Question two weeks ago.

The shock of the recent gubernatorial election in Virginia has about worn off now, and Democrats everywhere are beginning to recognize just what happened.

Cooperation, Yes

Editor's Note: The following letter was received in response to the SUN SURVEY question two weeks ago concerning the possibility of merger between Virginia Beach and other south Tidewater cities. It was received too late to be included in the results published last week.
Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: This matter was discussed in several government classes at Bayside High School. Although no vote was taken, the consensus of the students was very much against any merger of Virginia Beach.

Cooperation with other cities, yes; but the general feeling was pride in OUR CITY. We want to keep it that way.

We need decentralization of government. A community is better off when the people identify with and work for their own community.

Special Report

Coming-Another Election

The shock of the recent gubernatorial election in Virginia has about worn off now, and Democrats everywhere are beginning to recognize just what happened.

No matter how divided they were and are. No matter that their candidate was not a strong one. And no matter that they were lulled into overconfidence. It couldn't happen. A Republican in the state executive mansion, impossible, but oh so true. His name is GOVERNOR Linwood Holton.

Thus the Democrats must regroup, if they can, and bring together all factions. This will take a strong hand of leadership, which has not yet emerged, and may not for some time. Obviously the forces behind Spong, Byrd, Abbit, Howell, et al, are not strong enough. Coalition, revamping or a whole new faction could be the answer. But so far, there just isn't one. This obviously has had a tremendous effect on the Council race next June in Virginia Beach. The Jack Etheridge forces, so closely aligned with Battle, are apparently dissipating, if not dissolving, on the heels of the election and a poll they took to determine their next moves.

The Sidney Kellam forces have been and are still quiet. But there are already strong indications there won't be a primary for Council anyway. The Democrats seem to be ready to call that off and make the race a non-partisan one. The first shots have already been fired in the Council race. And more are sure to come soon. After Christmas, look out.

SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"I don't care what you say," he said. "The tooth fairy has had a lot of expense this month, what with Christmas presents to buy for all the little fairies and the rest of the cousin fairies." "But I got fifteen cents for one tooth last time," she protested. "All I want you to know is how much I think three teeth at once are worth."

"A dollar is just too much," he said. "Would you want the tooth fairy to go broke?" "No," she said. "But think of all the pain I had getting these three pulled by the dentist this afternoon."

"You told me it didn't hurt a bit," he said. When did it start hurting you? When the cost of living for the tooth fairy started to go up?"

"Well, it really didn't hurt," she admitted. "But I had to get that shot and then my whole chin was asleep for a long time, and my mouth kept bleeding, and I couldn't eat, and I couldn't talk."

"You'd better watch out, or you'll get another shot. It was nice when you couldn't talk," he pointed out. "Besides why do you have to be different anyway? Most kids' teeth fall out eating candy bars or something like that."

"I like being different," she said. "It gives me something to talk about in school to all my boyfriends."

"I'll just bet it does," he said. "All right, I'll make a deal with you. You get the tooth fairy to pay part of the dentist bill for this, and I'll see what I can do."

"But I never cried a bit," she said. "Isn't that worth something extra?"

"You get more like your Mother every day," he said. "She can wear me down too, by arguing long enough."

"Besides, you're just being silly anyway," she said. "I know there's no such thing as a tooth fairy. I know it's you."

"Do I look like a tooth fairy to you?" he asked. "Please don't tell anyone your Daddy is a tooth fairy. I may have difficulty living that down."

"Yes, you look like a tooth fairy," she said. "Because you're the only one that has any money in the house."

"Do you have to be so logical?" he asked. Why couldn't the shot have put all of you to sleep for a while?"

"All I'm trying to do is get this settled now, so when my sister and brother start to lose their teeth too, you'll know how much money to leave under their pillows too."

"You better take this up with the tooth fairy," he said. "Before you bankrupt him or her, as the case may be."

"I am," she said and went on. "So I think three teeth pulled by a dentist are worth a dollar."

"Maybe we ought to set up a pay scale for one tooth pulled by a dentist, one tooth pulled at home, two teeth...."

"That's a good idea," she interrupted. "Then we'd all know what to expect."

"Are you sure your Mother didn't put you up to this?" he asked.

"No," she said. "All Mother said was to bug you for awhile to find out how much you, I mean, the tooth fairy will leave under my pillow."

"I should have known," he said. "Oh, by the way," she said. "I'm going to put the teeth in a box so they won't get lost. They'll be under my pillow though. Have the tooth fairy put the money in the box, please."

"Yes, he said, 'I'll make a note of that.'"

"And Daddy," she said. "Please don't wake me up when you do it."

By W. A. Leavell, Ph. D.

Three of my friends paid me a visit yesterday. It was coffee time and they dropped by. They were Tom, Dick and Harry. You have heard of them I am sure. Everyone has heard of Tom, Dick and Harry.

Just as soon as they had their coffee saucer and blowed they started in on me. Tom said: "Look Doc, you are always giving our politicians a hard time, I heard our Congressman leaves town every time your column comes out. One of our Senators has said, so the story goes, that the only time he will come near you will be at your funeral so he can be sure you have departed. Even the Governor, so I heard, said he would be happy to convene a sanity hearing anytime someone wants to put you away. The rumor is out that the President has offered you the Ambassadorship to one of the new emerging countries if you will just leave the country."

Next Dick added his two cents: "We've been thinking and we feel you should run for public office. Since you don't like the way our elected officials are doing things, we think you should try your hand."

Not to be left out Harry chimed in with: "We think you should run for something. We are willing to back you all the way."

Well, these were my friends, so I thought, and they were guests in my home so I didn't want to be rude. I just put down my coffee and said: "Get out! Put your saucer down, get up and get out of my house and don't ever come back. Furthermore, don't ever speak to me again or even wave when you see me."

If they hadn't been my guests I think I would have said something nasty.

This didn't phase them. Tom said: "Look, we are all willing to kick in hard cash to start your campaign fund. We will each put up five dollars to start you off."

It didn't take me long to see through this trick. They were trying to get rid of me by having me run for office. When I was elected I would have to be out of town a lot and they would have me out of the neighborhood.

Dick added: "You are a natural Doc. You could win in a walk." Harry said: "Just think of all the fun you could have."

I could see that they were not going to put down their saucer and leave so I said: "You have the wrong person. The woods are full of people who want to run for something but I am not one of them. Just go away and leave me alone."

I went on: "I don't doubt I could win in a walk. I would make an ideal candidate. The voters sure would love me. Yes sir! I am as poor as any church mouse you could dig up. I am conservative, I still love my country and get a thrill when I see the flag, I believe in a balanced budget, lower taxes, law and order and in taking care of our own citizens before we try to solve the problems of the world. Yes sir, that makes me a perfect candidate!"

My friends looked hurt but I added: "Let's face it, as good as I might be as an elected official, you can see that anyone with my beliefs and looks couldn't win an election for anything today. I am a real square, I am not 'with it' or one of the 'now' people. The young people and the super liberals would throw rocks at my posters."

My good friend Tom put his saucer down and said: "I didn't know you were that bad. Couldn't you change and be like other politicians?"

Polizos Fills Vacancy

Arthur Polizos, newly-elected president of the Advertising Club of Tidewater, has been appointed an advisory director of the Tidewater Better Business Bureau. He fills the vacancy left by the resignation of George Pleasants, former Ad. Club president, who has left the area.

The new TBBE board member was announced by Charles A. Martak, Bureau Manager, following a meeting of the Board Thursday.

Martak briefed the Board on progress being made in setting up the Tidewater Consumers Affairs Council and other activities, including the recent supermarket survey which put to rout reports that chain stores were charging more for certain grocery and other items in ghetto areas than were charged in more affluent neighborhoods.

Waltz Joins Larasan

Larasan Realty Corporation has announced the appointment of John B. Waltz, Jr. to the Commercial Department.

Waltz has been active in the appraisal and financing of Commercial real estate since 1945, except for a period during the Korean Conflict in which he served in Korea and Japan.

Prior to moving to the Tidewater area in 1961 he was Assistant Regional Supervisor of the Washington Office of Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company and helped supervise all of the company's mortgage lending and real estate activities in a nine state area (including Tidewater, Va.)

He was actively involved in the appraisal and financing of many of the major shopping center, office building and apartment developments in Tidewater Virginia and the Peninsula during the past 15 years.

According to Thomas C. Kyros, Vice President, Waltz will be primarily involved in the sales and appraisal of commercial real estate.

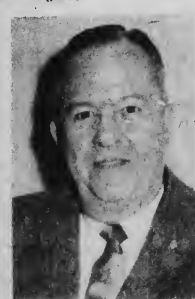

Thompson To Head Association

William G. Thompson, Jr., president of Thompson-Royal Dodge, Inc. of Virginia Beach, was elected president of the Automotive Trade Association of Virginia by its directors at a quarterly meeting held recently in Richmond.

Thompson associated with the retail automobile business shortly after his graduation from William and Mary and has been in it ever since except for the period of World War II during which time he served as an officer in the U. S. Naval Reserve retiring with the rank of captain.

Harold Heischberger of Hilltop Volkswagen in Virginia Beach was elected to the Board.

The Automotive Trade Association of Virginia was established in 1943 having among its principal objectives that of promoting confidence, respect and good fellowship, and sound business policies and ethics. Its membership is presently comprised of 672 franchised new car dealers and this number represents more than 81 per cent of all such dealers in Virginia.

Thompson

Martha White is a rapidly growing producer of convenience foods and other flour and corn based products. Among the Company's most successful products are its pouch line mixes, which includes Blix Mix, Flapstax, Corn Muffin Mix, etc. In 1968 the Company acquired Kitchen Arts Foods, a producer of 24 convenience side dishes and dessert items under the Pie-Oh-My label, with sales volume in excess of $7 million. Another highly successful item has been Trailblazer dog food, which has been growing at a rate of 30% since its introduction in 1967. In a diversification move, the Company acquired 50% of the Tennessee Ernie Ford Steak'n Biscuit fast food franchise system. Preliminary plans call for 450-500 outlets within five years.

For the year ended May 31, 1969, sales and earnings amounted to $44 million and $1.30 per share, respectively. For fiscal 1970, we are estimating sales in the $48 to $50 million range with earnings of $1.50 per share. Selling at $18 1/2 per share of 12.6 times this years estimated earnings, we feel the stock is attractive for investors seeking good growth potential.

Strike Affects Earnings

Colonial Stores Inc., 425-store southeast and midwest supermarket chain, had sales of $450,874,051 for the 40 weeks ended Oct. 4, 1969, an increase of 5.4 per cent over the $427,767,755 recorded in the same period of 1968.

Net earnings before extraordinary items were $5,112,776, equal to $1.80 per share of common stock, in the 1969 period, compared with $5,187,945, or $1.84 per share, in the first 40 weeks of 1968.

Sales and earnings were disclosed in a proxy solicitation to shareholders in connection with Colonial's proposed acquisition of the assets of National Food Products Corporation consisting solely of shares of Colonial common stock, cash and government securities. Stockholders of both corporations will vote on the acquisition Dec. 12.

Ernest F. Boyce, Colonial President, noted in a statement that sales and earnings have shown a marked upward trend since mid-year when the company reported that both were below expectations in the first 24 weeks of the year due to a strike in March which affected 98 of the company's stores in Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama.

Now that they saw the light I said: "Why don't we look around and see if we can't find someone we know that would have a chance. I will add five dollars to yours and we could give it to him. We should be able to find a winner. All he needs is to be tall, thin, plenty of hair, take a good photograph, nice big smile, come across strong on TV, have plenty of money, be for deficit spending, lots of foreign aid, more taxes, more welfare, losing wars, losing the peace, BIG government, doing nothing about crime and pollution and placing the party before the country. Say, why don't we just save our money and keep the politicians we have? Most of them fit that description!"

Bank Plans New Office

People's Bank of Virginia Beach will open a new office this month in Kempesville, according to a recent announcement by J. Burton Harrison, Jr., president.

The new office will be located at the intersection of Kempesville and Princess Anne Roads and will be managed by Emmett M. Storey, III.

Harrison reported that the new Kempesville office will be housed in temporary quarters until the middle of next summer. By that time, People's Bank of Virginia Beach hopes to have completed a 3,000-square foot permanent office building on the Kempesville site.

Storey, manager of the new office, is also a member of its Board of Directors. A native

Col. Tazewell Joins MONY

Lt. Col. C. W. Tazewell has joined The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York as a Field Underwriter, according to an announcement by Ray L. Breeden, Jr., Norfolk area Agency Manager.

Tazewell is the immediate past president of the Virginia History Federation, having been one of its founders and the first president of the statewide association of historical organizations. He also founded the Norfolk Historical Society, served as its president for two terms and as executive vice-president for one term.

Col. Tazewell is a retired officer of the United States Air Force, having served on active duty for 22 years. He was raised in Norfolk, attended the Norfolk Academy, and graduated from Maury High School.

Dividends Increase

The Board of Directors of First & Merchants Corporation has announced an increase in its regular quarterly dividend of 40¢ per share. Also announced was an extra dividend of 15¢ per share to be paid this quarter.

The total dividend per share paid in 1969 will be $1.80. Both the regular and extra dividends are payable Dec. 26 to stockholders of record Dec. 9. The dividends will be paid on 1,822,770 shares outstanding.

VNB Adds More Hours

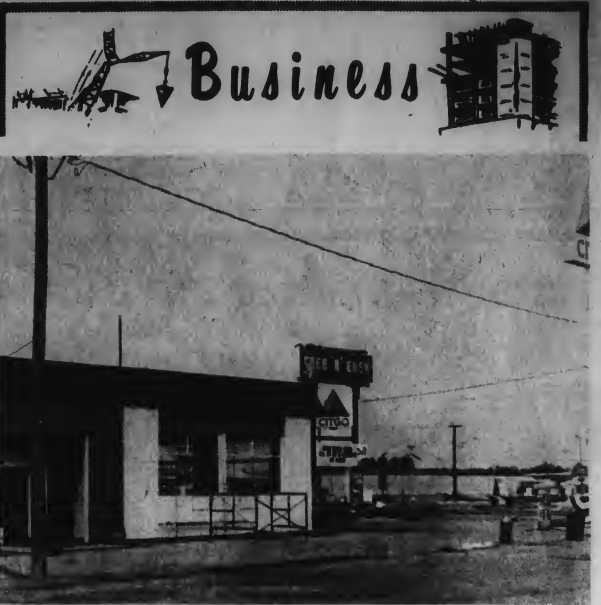

Virginia National Bank has announced plans to extend its customer hours at all drive-in locations in Norfolk, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach.

Beginning Monday, Nov. 17, according to an announcement by C.A. Cutchins, III, president, the hours at all drive-in locations are 8 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, and from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Fridays. This expansion of service will effect 16 locations throughout the Tidewater communities.

The four locations of offices expanding hours in Virginia Beach are: Virginia Beach Office, Atlantic Avenue at 30th Street; the Bayside Office, 2041 Pleasure House Rd.; Princess Anne Plaza Office at 3333 Virginia Beach Blvd.; the new Haygood Office at 1063 Independence Blvd.; and the Pembroke Office at 4640 Virginia Beach Blvd.

Investment Analysts

The three-part programs which will be conducted by Mason and Company account executives are entitled, "Fundamentals of Investing." They will be held on Tuesday evenings, Nov. 18, 25 and Dec. 2 between 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. in the following locations: Princess Anne High School, David J. Sierk; Larchmont Branch Library, Deanna B. Cowper; Janaf Branch Library, F. Edward Harris; Mason and Company, Norfolk office, James H. Slaughter; Woodrow Wilson High School, Donald L. Dixon; Mason and Company Portsmouth office and David Curling, Oscar Smith High School.

This new service station and free car wash at Plaza Trail and Virginia Beach Blvd. was rebuilt at a cost of $200,000. Workmen put on the finishing touches Wednesday, and it opens to the public on Thursday.

Investment Seminars Scheduled

The lectures, which are free to the public, will cover such topics as mutual funds, selecting investments, gearing stocks to investment goals, timing purchases, and the value of professional research analysis. A question and answer period will follow after each class.

There will be no registration charge for the seminars, but persons interested should phone the firms Norfolk (622-8261) or Portsmouth (399-4011) office in order to be assured of reserving a seat.

Bank Group Has Meeting

The Tidewater Chapter of The Bank Administration Institute held its November meeting Tuesday at the Ramada Inn, Virginia Beach.

Dr. Charles P. Blitch, professor of Economics and director of the Master of Arts in Economics program at Old Dominion University, spoke on the economic outlook for 1970. Dr. Blitch has had wide experience in adult economic education having participated in the Carolinas School of Banking, the R. J. Reynolds Program for Economic Education, and the North Carolina Savings and Loan League Institute of Economics and Business.

The Tidewater Chapter of BAI is composed of 21 member banks which serve Tidewater Virginia and Eastern North Carolina.

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Question: Can you deduct anything for a contribution to a political party?

Answer: No, political contributions made by individuals or businesses are not deductible.

Question: My last paycheck was bigger even though I'm being paid the same amount. Have taxes been reduced?

Answer: The explanation for your higher take-home pay may lie in the amount being withheld for Social Security taxes. An employer is required to withhold these taxes just on the first $7,800 of wages paid to each employee in a calendar year. After that, Social Security taxes are no longer withheld so that the net amount of the paycheck will be higher.

Question: My 15-year old son wants to go hunting with me. Is there any Federal law that would stop me from taking him along?

Answer: No, your son may go hunting with you without violating any Federal firearms law. Although the Gun Control Act of 1968 prevents your son from buying a rifle, shotgun or ammunition, until he is 18, you may supply him with what he needs.

BADGES & BANTER

New officers have just been elected to direct operations of the Tidewater Crime Clinic. Those who will be installed in December include C. W. Logan, president; A. B. Roane, Jr., Chief of Chesapeake Police Department, first vice president; V. A. Bonney, of Naval Intelligence, second vice president; Sgt. C. E. Carlson, of Virginia Beach Police Department, third vice president; J. K. Mathias, of Norfolk Police Department, secretary; K. C. Allen, of Portsmouth Police Department, treasurer; Virginia Beach Mayor Frank Dusch, Historian; and FBI Agent Herman Drummond, Chaplain.

A special tribute has been paid to members of the Virginia Beach Police Color Guard for their participation in the Veteran's Day ceremony at Rosewood Memorial Park. Marine Corp Lt. Col. Eugene P. Millette, who served as chairman of the Veteran's Day Committee, has written a letter of commendation to the police department praising members of the Color Guard for its appearance and the manner in which it carried out its part of the program.

We understand a contest begun recently at the second police precinct was rather short-lived. Indications are Sgt. N. C. Morse and Jessie Self entered into a friendly contest as to whom could go the longest without a cigarette, or even kick the habit entirely. According to our source, Self broke down within a matter of hours and went back to his favorite brand. The last time we saw them Self, like most of us, was calmly puffing away on his favorite cigarette, and Sgt. Morse displayed a look of complete contentment. All indications are that Sgt. Morse managed to kick the habit, but no one is able to say what side effects may have resulted from his winning the contest.

Imagine the surprise last Friday afternoon while traveling Landstown Road from Princess Anne Road to Holland Road when confronted by a rather large sow and her four small pigs coming towards me head-on while I attempted to negotiate a curve in the road. Each time I tried to swerve around the wandering livestock the sow darted between my auto and her offspring to protect them. Managing to get safely around the group I reported the incident to the police dispatcher who informed me he would dispatch an Animal Control unit. I will say one thing for the five-strollers. They were observing the rule of pedestrians when traveling a busy thoroughfare. They were moving along the left side of the road, even if right in the middle of it, facing oncoming traffic.

While some mamas rehearsed...

Kids watched entranced...

And others awaited their turns. They will perform in the "Age of Aquarius" put on by the Virginia Beach Princess Anne Junior Woman's Club Friday and Saturday night. For reservations or information call 428-8387.

Holiday House Awaits Visitors

A tour of the home of Mrs. M.F. McAfee is worth the admission price, even without the added bonus of lovely Christmas decorations and arrangements.

The occasion is Thoroughgood Garden Club's Holiday House and Bazaar Boutique, which will be held Saturday, Dec. 6 from noon to 5 p.m. and Dec. 7 from 12:30 to 5 p.m. at Mrs. McAfee's home, 1608 Wakefield Rd. in Thoroughgood. Tickets, at 50 cents each, may be obtained at the door or by calling Mrs. L.J. Humphrey, 464-4465.

Anyone interested in collections of old things, many of which are antiques, will welcome this chance to view (and envy) collections of silver, china, pewter, porcelain figurines and bric-a-brac of every description, all beautifully displayed. As an example a collection of cheese dishes, 37 cheese dishes, in fact.

Mrs. McAfee complained, however, that none of her pieces were family heirlooms (this is a complaint?). She and her late husband bought them at auctions and antique shops, so she cannot validate the age of many of them.

Another unusual feature is her light fixtures. "We replaced the old ones as soon as we moved in." The one in her daughter's room is that of a china shepherdess. "I've been told it is Dresden, but I just don't know." There is an unusual one in the family room that is a combination of metals, mostly pewter and copper. "You should have seen it when we got it. It was covered with horrible gold paint. I remember the Captain cleaning it off."

Some more of the Captain's work is a room for which nobody has a name. The house already has a den, so it is not a den even though it looks like one. It was originally a patio. At one end is a huge, nine-foot wide fireplace.

"I put the barbecue grill in the fireplace in the summertime," said Mrs. McAfee. "That's how this room was started--because I wanted a built-in barbecue and another closet in the bedroom."

Capt. McAfee and his family built the whole room themselves, including putting 300 pound exposed beams in place. "The only thing he didn't do was put in the windows...but he did put in the molding for them."

The highboy in the master bedroom is another example of Capt. McAfee's talent. It was handmade by him and is an exact copy of a highboy dated 1750 in the Cleveland Museum of Arts. In addition there is an elegant grandfather's clock with a ship's bell striker, and a 100-year-old organ and a carved canopy bed and...

The theme of the holiday house is "The Christmas Spirit Awaits You," since this handsome home will be decorated throughout with the holiday season theme, and the bazaar boutique will feature Christmas wreaths and decorations. There will also be handmade articles and dried arrangements and, as a special added attraction, "Treats or Treasures" which will include old silver and china.

Use of Madonnas Demonstrated

Madonnas, always favorites among flower arrangers at Christmas time, came under close study last week as a special program on the history and use of Madonnas was given at the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs meeting.

The program, which included a number of arrangements, was presented by Mrs. M.J. Schwartz, Mrs. Richard C. Dunaj and Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher.

Imagination plays a large part in arranging. Bases and accessories includes spray paint can tops and a sprayed ice cream dish. Backgrounds, they agreed, are not necessary for a successful arrangement. However, the Madonna, other decorations in the room and the accessories to be used with it should be similar in texture and seem to go together.

One of the basic rules is that the figure must not be overpowered by the arrangement. It should stand out so that the features of the face, the hands and the folds of her robe can be seen.

Usually in arranging Madonnas, some circular form is used in the background to represent a halo, and something is used for her to look down upon--an ornament, flowers, greenery, berries or any other object in keeping with the arrangement.

Natural, painted, silvered or frosted evergreens may all be used in making Madonna arrangements.

Several accessories are fitting to use in arrangements. Angels are always appropriate and effective. The angel should be in like feeling with the Madonna, similar in texture and in style, and proportionate in size. When arranging an all white Madonna, use all white angels; a tinted Madonna, use tinted angels.

Another appropriate accessory is candles, used singly or in groups. Any of the symbols associated with Mary, such as books, globe, fruits, flowers, sun, moon, stars, birds and wheat, etc., may also be used.

The symbols have a number of meanings. As an example, a closed book is the mystical symbol of the Virgin herself, and is often placed in her hand to signify the mystical part she played in the Incarnation. An open book in her hands, with her fingers between the pages or with the Baby turning the pages, becomes the Book of

State Is Trying to Catch Up

The state of higher education in Virginia is bad--but improving rapidly according to the new president of the Tidewater Community College, Dr. Douglas M. Montgomery. Tidewater Community College will include a branch in Virginia Beach by 1971.

It is quantity, not quality that is lacking, Dr. Montgomery was quick to point out to Cape Henry Woman's Club members last week. "Virginia has always had quality but just not enough of it."

"Virginia has not done well by its people in the field of higher education," he said. "It stands third to last in the United States in the percentage of high school graduates in college. The average here is 30%. Fifty percent is the national average. Virginia is behind Alabama, Mississippi--and North Carolina."

He pointed out that there is not a school of veterinary medicine or library science in the state as an example. "You can go on and on," he said. "He said that 10,000 more go out of state to college than come in. "We don't dare stop outsiders from coming in," Dr. Montgomery added that advancing Old Dominion University to university status should help considerably.

Dr. Montgomery, who was a fighter pilot for 20 years before he became an educator, became the first president of Blue Ridge Community College in 1966, and has been in Portsmouth three months. He went on to describe the progress of community colleges in the state and what their impact will be.

"Within five or six years we'll have a community college within 40 minutes of every resident. They will enroll about 100,000 students." Locally, the Virginia Beach branch of the Tidewater Community College is due to open in September 1971. "It will not only be open but will enroll about 2,000 students." A site on Green Run Farm has been approved and an architect selected. All that is needed now is for the General Assembly to approve $4 1/2 million for its construction.

Dr. Montgomery

"The entire costs will be from state revenues except for the land and landscaping," said Dr. Montgomery. The community colleges are funded by sales taxes. "It transfers the tuition cost from the family to the tax payer," he said, adding that tuition is $135 a year regardless of the course of study.

He said that the community colleges are three colleges in one. There are the usual freshmen and sophomore liberal arts courses which will include about one third of the enrollment. About a half will enroll in highly sophisticated technical and engineering classes. The rest will be in occupational-type classes such as nursing, cosmetology, auto mechanics.

"This is new in Virginia but not in America," said Dr. Montgomery. "There are more than 1,000 community colleges with over two million students."

Any high school graduate can enroll, but there are different objectives and ability levels. "Each program has its own," Dr. Montgomery pointed out. "We do not enroll students in programs in which they cannot succeed. Almost any high school graduate can find a level in which he is interested and can succeed." He added that graduates can and do transfer to senior institutions with no loss of credit.

When speaking of the development of the community college system, Dr. Montgomery said that the state had to solve the problem of ouliding colleges and reducing the cost of attending. Community colleges were the solution. He said two-thirds of college construction costs

Come Home Hermie, Dear

Ever seen a hermit crab?

Or better yet, ever try to hunt one when you think it's lost?

Hermit crabs are fascinating creatures. However, they differ from other crabs in that they "borrow" the shells of other sea creatures to live in until they outgrow them. Then they hunt a new, and larger, one.

We (I should say the eight-year-old) have a few little monsters. They live happily (we haven't heard of any complaints) in a turtle bowl. The eight-year-old takes them out, holds them on her hand and speaks tenderly to them--they respond by coming out of the shells and staring at us with their beady eyes.

They also have healthy appetites. At least we don't have to go out and hunt worms or insects or such for them. They consume cookie crumbs (any flavor), corn meal and lettuce. How's that for a varied diet?

Anyhow, the eight-year-old wanted to see her class hobby show. That was one thing she had to pack them for the show, and she was nervous.

Can you imagine the trouble she had on their hands and feet? They were so small, they were like hermit crabs. One of them was so small, it was like a little bug. Her name was Hermie. I was so nervous, I might as well as pack them. There are a lot of them. I could hide. And I think we covered them all.

Just when we were about to give up, the eight-year-old spotted the other one clinging to the plastic umbrella. It was the turtle bowl. You have to see it to believe it. The pole is about as big around as a match stick and is just five inches high with a little plastic umbrella on top. Sure enough, when we rescued one crab, the other was on top of the pole hanging on hidden by the umbrella.

The next day the eight-year-old took them to school--I know the school bus driver loved that. Then that night she got up about 11 worrying about the poor crabs. "I'm afraid they're lonesome." I convinced her they had each other for company. Then she wanted to go check to make sure they were alright. I told her that the school was locked up for the night. She finally gave up and went to sleep.

You couldn't have found a prouder third grader (or mother) the next day, though, as she expertly answered questions (and there were plenty) about her crabs.

Now, if they'll just stay put...

Future Homemakers To Be Tested

Senior girls in high schools here will join more than 600,000 others in over 15,000 schools throughout the country Tuesday, Dec. 2, in an only-one-of-its-kind examination. At stake in the written homemaking knowledge and attitude test of the 16th annual, Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow are $110,000 in college scholarships.

Girls achieving the top score in their schools here will receive specially designed silver charms from General Mills, sponsor of the homemaking education program, and their papers will be entered in competition with those of all other school winners in the state. From this, a state winner, who will be awarded a 1,500 scholarship, will be selected as will a state runner-up, who will receive a $500 educational grant.

Next spring, first-place winners from the 50 states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by a school advisor, will gather in Washington, D. C., for an expense-paid education tour of that city and Colonial Williamsburg, Va. Climaxing the tour will be announcement of the 1970 Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow and three runners-up. Chosen from the 51 state winners on the basis of original test score and personal observation and interviews during the tour, they will have their scholarships increased to $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

The Betty Crocker Search, designed to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career, is the only national scholarship program exclusively for high school senior girls. It has been placed on the approved list of national contests and activities of the National Association of Secondary-School Principals during each of its 16 years.

No, the ladies sewing circle is actually Cape Henry Woman's Club members working on "Busy Bee Books" for Christmas in the Country and Mrs. Santa's Country Store set for Dec. 3. The decorated home this year will be that of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cashvan in Lagomar. The Country Store will be at Nimmo Church. Around the table are, left to right, Mrs. Arthur James, Mrs. P. L. Chavelier, Mrs. E. W. Larnard, club president, and Mrs. C. H. Grossman, project chairman.

Mushrooms, Lettuce Join

Mushrooms are an elegant and easy addition to many different vegetables: Green beans, potatoes, peas, celery, cabbage, eggplant, zucchini come to mind. All are enhanced by mushrooms, whether fresh, canned, frozen or dried.

A somewhat unusual and very gourmet teammate for mushrooms is crackly-crisp iceberg lettuce. For variety, serve it in a mushroom-lettuce salad, German style, or a la Parisienne as a well-seasoned casserole of mushrooms, lettuce and peas. Either of these two international dishes is fancy enough for a company dinner or easy and wholesome enough for family meals.

The popularity of both mushrooms and lettuce has been increasing rapidly, doubling and tripling in recent decades.

When using fresh mushrooms, rinse quickly in clear cold water, jiggling them about a bit, then drain. Don't peel modern cultivated mushrooms—it's a waste of time and good mushroom flavor. Canned and frozen mushrooms need even less attention—just heat thoroughly. Cook all mushrooms briefly; four or five minutes is long enough to saute or otherwise cook raw mushrooms.

From the home economics department of the American Mushroom Institute come the following excellent recipes combining mushrooms and iceberg lettuce.

BAKED LETTUCE & MUSHROOMS A LA PARISIENNE

- 1 lb. fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) sliced mushrooms
- 6 tsp. butter or margarine, divided
- 1 cup sliced onion
- 1/16 tsp. salt
- 1/16 tsp. ground black pepper
- 1 head western iceberg lettuce
- 2 pkg. (10 oz. each) frozen green peas, partially thawed
- 2 tsp. flour
- 1 can (10-1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1/2 tsp. basil leaves, crumbled

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 5 cups) or drain canned mushrooms reserving liquid. In a large skillet melt 4 tablespoons of the butter. Add mushrooms and onion; saute 5 minutes. Sprinkle with salt and black pepper; set aside. Cut lettuce into wedges; set aside. Scatter peas in a shallow 2-quart casserole. Spoon half of the sauteed mushrooms over peas. Top with lettuce wedges. In a small saucepan melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add flour and brown slightly. Stir in broth and basil leaves. Cook until thickened. Stir in remaining mushrooms; spoon over lettuce. Cover casserole with foil. Bake in a pre-heated moderate oven (350 F.) 45 minutes. Serve as an appetizer or with main dish. Yield: 4 to 8 portions

MUSHROOM - LETTUCE SALAD, GERMAN STYLE

- 1 head western iceberg lettuce
- 3/4 lb. fresh mushrooms or 3 cans (3 to 4 oz. each) sliced mushrooms
- 6 strips bacon
- 3 tsp. cider vinegar
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 1 small red onion, sliced into rings
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and tear lettuce into bite size pieces. Place in salad bowl; chill. Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms (makes about 3-3/4 cups) or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a large skillet fry bacon until crisp. Remove bacon; drain on paper towels. Saute mushrooms in bacon drippings for 5 minutes. Remove from skillet; set aside. Cool bacon drippings slightly. Stir in vinegar and sugar; heat. Scatter sauteed mushrooms, onion rings, salt and black pepper over lettuce. Pour hot bacon dripping mixture over salad; toss lightly. Crumble bacon over top and serve. Yield: 6 portions.

Wedding To Be Dec. 20

Col. (Ret) and Mrs. John Willis Paddock of Deerfield Beach, Fla. announce the engagement of their daughter, Jacquelynne, to Capt. William Cyrus Lanham Jr., U.S. Army, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cyrus Lanham of Birmingham, Ala.

Miss Paddock's grandparents are the late Col. and Mrs. Paul Henry Herman of Virginia Beach, the late Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Bradley of Portland, Oregon.

She attended Queens' College in Charlotte, N.C., and graduated from the University of Alabama where she belonged to the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. She is an interior designer for a local firm.

Capt. Lanham graduated from the University of Alabama and the Law School where he was affiliated with the Sigma Nu Social fraternity. He is stationed at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Capt. Lanham is the grandson of Mrs. James Ottaway Lanham and the late Mr. Lanham, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Monroe F. Gusdorf, all of Selma, Ala.

The wedding date will be Dec. 20, 1969.

Bazaar Adds New Booth

A new booth has been added to the Scott Memorial United Methodist Church bazaar—candles and plaques. They are being made by the youth of the church.

The bazaar is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21 and 22. There will be a candle-light buffet dinner Friday night, $2 for adults and $1 for children. Dessert is 25 cents extra. Saturday night will feature barbecue at $1.25 per plate. Hours both nights will be from 4-9 p.m. Take out plates will be available.

On Friday the bazaar hours for the various booths will be 4-9 p.m., and the hours Saturday will be 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Parliamentarians Attend Meeting

The Board of Directors of the Virginia State Association of the National Association of Parliamentarians met Wednesday, Nov. 19, at the Hot Shoppes Club Room in Richmond.

Those from the Tidewater Area on the Board of Directors and attending the meeting were: Mrs. Donald D. Funk, parliamentarian; Mrs. Forrest G. Ralford, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Percy H. Carroll, recording secretary; Mrs. Cideon D. Overman, Jr., publicity chairman as well as Mrs. J.A. Bibla.

Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Brydges price some of the items. On the table are some of the "goodie" bags their daughters made.

Mini-Happening Has Party Foods

It's "Sahra's Mini-Happening", and it's from 10 a.m. to noon Dec. 8 at the home of Mrs. Patsy Manalix, 55th Street and Crystal Lake.

The Mini-Happening, of which Mrs. Ben Jager and Mrs. Jack Ehrhardt are co-chairman, will benefit the Everett School Building Fund. The invitations read, "Come for coffee and bring your Christmas list for shopping. There will even be a shuttle bus service along 55th Street from the parking area.

Booths that will have items for the mini-happening will be candy, toys, arts and crafts, garden, sewing, baked goods, alumni, and art. In addition to these, there will be items to be raffled. A total of 182 women are contributing items.

The mini-happening is a prelude to the "All-Star Happening" set for May 23, 1970 at Great Neck Stables, which will feature all these booths plus white elephants, amusements and lunch.

According to Mrs. Ann Brydges and Mrs. Opal Mills, who are in charge of the party foods, they will be featuring "everything that can be frozen for Christmas. Mrs. Mills has already prepared 20 pounds of French fried peanuts.

"We're fixing cocktail and dessert—after 5 items," said Mrs. Brydges.

Helping them in their efforts are Cindy Mills and Maggie Brydges, seventh graders at Everett School, who are hand decorating (very originally) stacks of bags suitable to use in presenting gift bags of food items at Christmas.

Among the food items will be pear chutney (prepared from pears in Mrs. Brydges yard), pickled okra, pickled mushrooms, dilly beans, watermelon rind pickles, nuts and bolts, fruit cakes, Sally Lund loaves, bourbon balls, cheese biscuits and cheese dollars, all kinds of cookies, pimento cheese spread, Christmas cup cakes and bananas, cranberry and nut breads.

Mrs. Brydges and Mrs. Mills agreed to part with some of their favorite recipes.

PEAR CHUTNEY
(Mrs. Brydges)
Chopped, peeled pears—20-30 depending on size

- 1 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 minced garlic clove
- 1 box dark brown sugar
- 2 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. ground ginger
- 1/4 cup mustard seed
- 2 chopped hot peppers (optional)

Combine all ingredients and cook very slowly until thick. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour into hot pint jars. Leave 1/8 head space. Cap and seal.

BOURBON BALLS

- (Mrs. Mills)
- 2 1/2 cups crushed vanilla wafers
- 1 cup 4X sugar
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- 1/2 cup whiskey
- 3 tsp. cocoa
- 3 tsp. white Karo

Mix well and roll in small balls, then roll in powdered sugar. Keeps very well in tins.

DILLY BEANS

(Mrs. Brydges)

Superhousewifery may not be advisable but it is not a clear and present danger compared to other careless customs, in the opinion of the New England Journal of Medicine, a studious publication that seldom strays from examining and operating rooms.

The Journal rebukes overtly housewives who insist on polishing dishes fresh from the dishwasher -- a practice that spreads bacteria -- and advises non-owners of dishwashers to allow their dishes to dry in the rack.

But, asks the Journal, what about these customs "that disregard the simplest elements of sanitation?"

The family use of a single tube of toothpaste;

Hanging toothbrushes on a common rack and sharing a common bathroom glass;

Exchanging lipsticks and combs;

Tasting food on the stove with a stirring spoon that goes back into the pot;

Feeding the baby from the parental plate with the parental

- 4 lb. green beans, trimmed
- 1 1/2 tsp. red pepper
- 6-8 garlic cloves
- 1/4 cup of salt
- 4 tsp. dill seed
- 2 1/2 cups water
- 2 1/2 cups vinegar

Select young beans. Boil for about 15 to 20 minutes, then pack in 1/2 pint jars. To each jar, add 1 clove garlic, almost a tsp. dill and 1/8 to 1/4 tsp. pepper. Combine and boil remaining ingredients. Pour boiling hot over beans—leave 1/4 inch head space. Cap and seal. Should make 6 to 8 jars.

NUTS & BOLTS

(Mrs. Mills)
Preheat oven to 200 degrees.
1/2 tsp. butter or margarine dash of garlic powder--garlic salt
8 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
12 cups of cereal mix--4 each of Chex, Wheat & Rice Chex.
1 or more jars of dry roasted or mixed nuts.

Melt butter, add Worcestershire sauce. Pour over mix and stir well. Heat for one hour.

Habits Spread Germs

fork;

Failing to wash your hands after using the toilet.

Although all these are less innocuous than germ-y dishes towels, the Journal nevertheless remains cheerful: "Man-kind still has a chance of survival by the development of natural immunities."

Spiders Rid Yards of Pests

Editor's note: Here is another in the series on home horticulture by Wesley P. Judkins, extension horticulturist at Virginia Tech.)

The involvement of Little Miss Muffet with the spider is well known to all lovers of nursery rhymes. But, how many of us appreciate that spiders are helpful creatures to have around the home and garden? They are not as ugly and poisonous as some folks seem to think.

If we took a vote, we would probably find that most people are afraid of spiders, or at least have a strong dislike for them. This fear usually dates from childhood, and is learned from parents, fairy stories, science fiction, or old wives tales.

Spiders are classified as arthropods which are invertebrate animals with jointed legs, segmented bodies, and external skeletons. True spiders have eight legs.

The web spinning ability of spiders is a normal inherited trait. In fact, they inherit the ability to spin their webs in a particular form, which is different from those of other species of spiders. Because of this, you can tell what kind of spider made the web without ever seeing him.

Most spiders are shy creatures who wait around for an unlucky insect to become entangled in their web. Very few are really aggressive hunters who stalk their prey.

After capturing an insect, all spiders crush a portion of it in their jaws and inject it with a digestive juice. Then, they literally suck the carcass dry.

Spiders are very abundant around your yard and garden. There may be many thousands around the average home. This may not be a very pleasant thought, but since they are active at night, we are unaware of the large numbers which are present. Because of the many insects they eat, some scientists believe spiders are more important than birds in controlling these undesirable pests.

But you may ask, how about the poisonous spiders? Are they not dangerous to have around? Actually the hazard is very low. Almost all spiders are somewhat poisonous, but very few are seriously so.

In the last 250 years in the entire United States, there have been fewer than 100 human fatalities caused by spiders. This includes many very old, very young, or unhealthy people, who were quite susceptible to arthropod venom. The number of deaths among healthy adults is extremely low.

As long as a spider is not handled roughly, it will not intentionally bite a person. They cannot see clearly beyond a few inches. As far as they are concerned, a human is a very large object to walk across, and is definitely not very edible.

And so, enjoy the beautiful design of the spider webs on your shrubs and garden plants. Thank these little creatures for the many insects they destroy. Let them help maintain the balance of nature, and control some of the pests which would otherwise damage your flowers and vegetables.

Wisdom and is always open to the seventh chapter. A book in Christ's hands becomes the Gospel.

A globe, when used in the hands of the Christ Child, means sovereignty. When under the feet of Mary, and encircled by a serpent with Mary's feet on the serpent's head, it signifies redemption and triumph over sin. A serpent means Satan or sin.

The sun is symbolic of Jesus, and the crescent moon is a symbol of the Virgin Mary. Mary's Jewish name is Miriam which means star. Often a star is placed above her. Sometimes her robe is spangled with stars, or she may wear a crown of 12 stars, representing the 12 tribes of Israel. Stars used with Mary may be either five or six-pointed.

A dove is the symbol of the presence of the Holy Spirit. Any bird placed at her feet or near her while she works signifies gentleness and kindness.

Fruit, in general, represents the fruits of the Spirit (love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, patience, modesty, temperance and chastity).

The lily is a symbol of purity and has become a flower of the Virgin. Iris, meaning sword lily, is an allusion to the sorrow of Mary at the Passion of Christ. Lily-of-the-valley is one of the first flowers to announce the return of spring. It is the symbol of the Advent of Christ, for the whiteness of its flowers, and the sweetness of its scent is a symbol of the Virgin Mary.

The rose is the emblem of the Messianic promise, and the symbol of love and beauty and is especially dedicated to Mary. In Christian symbolism, the red rose means martyrdom and the white rose means purity. Jasmine means grace, elegance and amiability. The red spot in the heart of the cyclamen signifies the bleeding sorrow in Mary's heart.

The cedar of Lebanon is identified with beauty, majesty and strength and is a symbol of the coming Messiah. An olive branch is a token of peace. Laurel is symbolic of eternity and is used for a crown of victory. A palm branch is the symbol of triumph and victory. Oak is a symbol borrowed from the Celtic Druid worship and signifies strength and endurance.

Wheat means productivity and represents the "bread of life". Flowing hair is symbolic of repentance; in most German Madonnas her hair is uncovered.

During the business meeting, a letter from Mayor Frank Dusch was read thanking the council for sponsoring October

Clean Up Month and "congratulations for a job well done." Plans for another clean up in the spring were announced by Mrs. P. S. Courson HANDS (Home and Neighborhood Development Sponsors) chairman. She suggested that clubs take Care Center. The Council has already given $50 of its HANDS prize money to help buy playground equipment for two new mini-parks being established in Seatack.

"If you want to do something for Christmas, take a tour of Seatack," added Mrs. Arthur H. Gallagher, Council president.

At the suggestion of Mrs. C. L. Hersberger, Sr., conservation chairman, the Council adopted a proposed wildflower preserve in Redwing Park as a continuing project.

Fashions, Cards Featured

The annual card party and fashion show sponsored by the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club was Wednesday, Nov. 19, at the F.O.P. Club, Virginia Beach.

The show, entitled Holiday Magic, was presented by Rose Hall and with musical accompaniment.

Fashions, modeled amid lovely holiday decorations, ranged from daytime ensembles through festive at-home costumes to the most formal ball gowns.

Proceeds were designated to support the club's departmental projects including the sponsorship of Chandra, a 14-year-old Indian girl, through the Christian Children's Fund, and a nursing scholarship at Norfolk General Hospital.

Posters Win Awards

The Kingston Garden Club sponsored an Anti Litter Poster Contest at the Kingston Elementary School.

Mrs. Charles Traub, the Anti Litter Chairman presented the awards at the Kingston Elementary School P.T.A. meeting on Monday night. Winners were: 4th and 5th Grade, 1st Place, Suzanne Hall; 2nd Place, Mike Hammond; 6th and 7th Grade, 1st Place, Laura Hauck; 2nd Place, Melinda Farrell; Honorable Mention, Anita Mulen.

Chesapeake Colony

The Chesapeake Colony Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. William Love. Mrs. E. P. McAlister was co-hostess.

Believing that no man is an island unto himself, the members planned to extend the hand of friendship to others. Flower arrangements and pumpkin pies will be given to a local nursing home at Thanksgiving and gifts at Christmas. Members of this club make regular "cheer-up" visits to this home all year.

Volunteers will help teachers of a special education class in a local school with art work. A helping hand is needed in this work with the students to make them more productive.

The Club voted to help with the beautification of the Seatack Recreation Center as their Hands (Home and Neighborhood Development Sponsors) project.

A white elephant sale is planned to help the club finance their obligations.

The annual 'Christmas Gala' is planned for Dec. 13. This party is in honor of the understanding husbands of the membership.

Blue ribbon winners for November were: Mrs. Arthur Callahan, Mrs. Jeff Hurst, Mrs. William Love, Mrs. John Grubb, Mrs. Roger Grey, Mrs. H. L. Addison and Mrs. Karl Stevens.

King's Grant

Mrs. Stanley Strickland conducted an Ikebana workshop and spoke of Oriental flower arrange-ing to the King's Grant Garden Club.

The meeting and program last week was held at King's Grant Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Strickland, and instructor, holds a Shihan in Sogetsu School of Ikebana. She's a professor of the Ikebana school as well.

Club exhibits featured a Thanksgiving motif. Hostesses were Mrs. Anthony Mancini and Mrs. William Westerman.

In December, the club will visit Coleman's Nursery in Portsmouth.

May Farm

Christmas will be merrier in Seatack thanks to efforts of the May Farm Garden Club. May Farm members at the November meeting voted to each wrap $2 in a box as a donation for the Seatack Community Center rather than exchange $2 among themselves. The packages, however, will be judged before being turned over to the Center.

The club had a program on candle making which included safety hints plus uses for paraffin.

Members also voted their approval of the club's HAND's project which will get underway next weekend.

A Columbia Navy amphibious transport, ARC Armirante Padilla arrived at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious in Virginia Beach recently on a two-week visit in preparation for transfer of the amphibious transport USS Ruchamkin to the Columbian Navy on Nov. 24.

The ARC Armirante Padilla is the former high speed transport USS Tolbert. Lieutenant Commander Jamie Gaviria Becerra, CN, is the commanding officer. The ship arrived with a double crew of approximately 30 officers and 360 enlisted men who will be training for the transfer.

During her Virginia Beach visit, the Columbian Navy men were to participate in social and athletic programs and visit Colonial Williamsburg.

New Hours Announced

The Norfolk Social Security Office will observe new office hours effective December 1969. The Norfolk office, located in the Franklin Building at 220 W. Brambleton Avenue, will be open to the public from 8:45 to 5:00, Monday through Friday, with no Saturday hours. Telephone service will be available during the same hours. The phone number is 622-8281.

In announcing the new hours Charles Teets, the local Social Security Manager, noted that those who are employed find it difficult to visit the Social Security Office during working hours. Many of these people find it convenient to transact their social security business by telephone to save the time and expense of a visit to the office.

An average of 250 applications for monthly social security payments are processed by the Norfolk office each week. Many of these applications are initiated by telephone.

Dickinson

Dickinson Is Sailor Of Month

Aviation Electronics Technician Third Class David M. Dickinson has been selected as Sailor of the Month for November 1969 at the Naval Air Station Oceana, Virginia Beach, Va. Selection for this award was based on military and professional knowledge, performance and training accomplishments.

Since arriving at NAS Oceana on June 9, 1969, Petty Officer Dickinson has distinguished himself as a professional sailor by the outstanding performance of assigned duties while working in the Public Affairs Office. He has demonstrated a high degree of initiative and creativity in his work with the station newspaper, The Jet Observer. He has displayed versatility and self-confidence while conducting station tours, assisting in command presentations and in performing the many facets of public relations work concerning the command.

Dickinson's keen interest in journalism and associated Public Affairs work has resulted in a request for an official change in his specialty area.

Can you afford to get trapped in the Money-Mangling Maze?

Of course you can't. No one can! And yet every year a lot of very nice people end up in financial mazes.

They booby-trap themselves through plain, simple money-mangling. And it's a tragic thing to see happen.

That's why F&M has vowed to help people end money-mangling. That is, if they're willing to help themselves.

We've created a Money-Management Book that allows you to put your finger on everything that pertains to your financial status. It's available at any F&M office.

And we offer five savings plans, ranging from fully personalized savings to 10-year deferred savings certificates.

Once you have the book and a good savings program, you'll be well on your way toward establishing a money management program that works. You'll know where your money is. And what's happening to it.

And all of a sudden the money mangling-maze will become something that happens to other people. But happily not to you.

'Desire' Demanding, Admirable

"Desire Under the Elms" by Eugene O'Neill is a drama of lust, greed and ignorance. The current production at Wedgewood Theatre in Toano handles the tension of it with finesse, with understanding and with tenderness.

Claudine Iddings and Wayne Crawford are featured as the youngest son and pretty young wife of an aging New England farmer who loses them both to their own passion-driven attraction in Eugene O'Neill's shocking story, "Desire Under the Elms" playing nightly Wednesday through Saturday at Williamsburg's Wedgewood Theater.

Wesleyan Sets 'Servant'

Virginia Wesleyan College will present a production of Goldoni's "The Servant of Two Masters" from Dec. 10-13.

The play will be presented nightly at 8:45 p.m. on the

Hampton

Entices

Wedgewood

If all goes according to plan Williamsburg's Wedgewood Theater will become the Peninsula's Wedgewood Theater next summer.

Efforts to move the theatre and its company to Hampton from Toano are underway at present, and if $75,000 can be raised by Peninsula patrons within the next two weeks, the well-known and highly respected theatrical organization will be closer to Virginia Beach.

Claudine Iddings, principal of the theatre company, said a number of interested citizens on the Peninsula, spearheaded by Thomas Chisman of WVEC-TV, are already accepting donations. Prior to a black tie kickoff affair at Wedgewood Wednesday night nearly $10 thousand had already been collected. Mrs. Iddings said the citizens are quite hopeful of raising the rest in a short period of time.

Among those at the gala Wednesday night were the vice mayor of Hampton, the mayor of Newport News, and the wife of First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing, Mrs. Louise Downing.

The building where the theatre would be moved is an old airplane hanger, and has been used as a sports arena. It does have a kitchen and offices, but Mrs. Iddings said the $75,000 would be used exclusively for renovation and construction of a theater and dining room.

The current theater lease, in an old converted cannery near Williamsburg, has another year to run, but the theater would close the end of July 1970 and reopen in Hampton in mid-August, according to Mrs. Iddings.

The Equity Professional company there would present plays as the Performing Arts Center in Virginia, a non-profit, educational theater for the Peninsula, but the name of Wedgewood would be retained.

Wedgewood is now in its sixth season in Toano, and has become known as the home of outstanding theatrical productions.

Mrs. Iddings said the entire company is quite excited at the prospect of moving to the Peninsula and is grateful to cultural interests there for attempting to make it possible.

The action takes place in the mid-19th century at a backwoods New England farmhouse. The story revolves around a 76-year-old domineering father who has felled his two sons by his first marriage and his son by his second marriage. His complete control of them and his fanatic holding onto the farm has won for him only their hate and lack of respect.

The two older greedy sons are persuaded by the youngest to seek their fortune in the gold fields of California. They exchange his money for their shares of the farm.

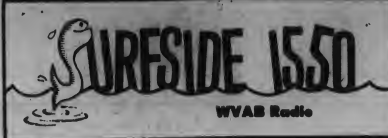

Then the old farmer brings home a young wife. She and the son are immediately attracted and repelled at the same time. In her greed to win control of the farm, she must win him. She seduces him and a child is born of the union which she passes off as the old man's. She actually falls in love with the son, but when he finds out her original reasons for the seduction he shows hate and contempt for her. In her attempts to show him the truth, the final results of the lust and greed make all that has gone before futile.

In 1924, when this play was first performed, it was considered highly immoral, but by today's standards, it is rather mild, but depressing and remorseful.

Claudine Iddings is at her best as the young wife. Her change from calculating to seductive to frightened is outstanding. Wayne Crawford, as her lover, is perhaps somewhat too polished in the characterization but gets the point across well.

As the old farmer, Roby Brown is a standout. One cannot help feeling pity and disgust for him at the same time. Bill Goffard and Steve Merle, while a shade too young for the older brothers, do a nice job with the two despicable roles.

Wedgewood is again to be congratulated on taking on this classic work where other theaters stick so closely to sex comedies. "Desire Under the Elms" is a magnificent vehicle, well mounted by the Wedgewood players. The action and the setting are both highly demanding, and both are handled admirably. HJL

The direction of popular music has always been change, with the constant emphasis on a more unique and way out sound.

In the past five years popular music has evolved through several gradual changes. In the period of late 1963 and early 1964, the perennial rock 'n' roll ballad was the most widely recorded and most popular way of inducing young buyers into the country's thousands of record stores.

Music of five years ago is well remembered for its country flavor. This music, by the way, is not a great deal unlike the music on the current pop scene today, which is dominated by a strong nostalgia for an earlier way of American life as well as an earthiness that gives the listener the distinct impression that the balladeer has lived the experience he sings about.

Pop music in early 1964 on all fronts was in desperate need of direction. This direction was provided by four long-haired pop musicians from Liverpool, England who burst on the American pop music scene in February of that year. For the first time since the early days of Elvis Presley, popular music again had a guiding light. Songs like "I Want To Hold Your Hand", "She Loves You" and the album "Rubber Soul" (early '65) would set the pace that singing groups would follow for the next few years to come. The adult listening audience, loyal to the early innovations in rock 'n' roll, began defecting to solid country music and hard-line rhythm and blues. The en masse defection by adults from hard rock left a very youthful audience, an audience loudly voicing support for hard rock, but one which did not possess the added buying power needed to keep hard rock entertainment stable.

In the period since 1964, popular music has gone through several refinements and modifications, but it would seem all has been done that can be done.

Rock 'n' Roll is badly in need of some form of innovation. The music again is dividing into camps. The balladeers are back, both male and female and the groups are still with us in the form of the much modified Beatles. In the early years of the 1970's, we undoubtedly will see the new innovation that will again unite the forces of rock and roll. You say you can't imagine anything as way-out as Britain's beloved Beatles? They, often the most quoted, said in 1956 that nothing could top the churning long-haired sound of Elvis Presley, the guiding light for nearly a decade of rock 'n' roll music. But the question still lingers! After the Beatles where can we possibly go?

Tryouts Set for Children

An original drama whose theme of courage and endurance is portrayed by a diversified cast with extensive credentials, will highlight the 350th anniversary observance of America's first official Thanksgiving at Berkeley Plantation.

Scheduled for 11 a.m., November 23, the program also will include remarks by Chief Justice of the United States Warren E. Burger. The play is co-authored by Clifford Dowdley, well known Civil War historian, and Dr. Welford D. Taylor, chairman of the English Department at University College, University of Richmond, Frank Brooks, a Richmonder with a wide theater background, and a member of the Virginia Museum Theater's directors tutorial school, will direct the drama.

Based on historical records and spanning the first year (1619-1620) of settlement at Berkeley, the 35-minute play will "reflect man's desire to extend his horizons with the qualities of courage and endurance required to translate visions into realities," Dowdley said. According to Brooks, "It presents a wonderful opportunity to bring historical figures alive...to make the men and women of early Virginia very real people."

Carl Thomas Bush, son of Mrs. Roy M. Bush, Green Kemp, has been approved as a graduate assistant at the University of Oklahoma by the OU Board of Regents. Each department selects outstanding graduate students to work under the program which pays a stipend toward college expenses.

Drama Highlights Observance

Nala Najan and Anuradha will present a program of classical dances of India at Old Dominion University in the Technology Building Theater, Thursday, Nov. 20, at 8:15 p.m.

The program, sponsored by the International Students Association and the Webb Center Board, will be narrated by Dr. Robert H. Hewsen.

The classical dances of India, rarely seen in America, consist of four distinct schools all derived from one basic dance system developed in India more than 2000 years ago. Three of the four schools will be represented in the program: the Bharata Naryam temple dances of South India, the Kathak court dance of the northwest and the sacred Manipuri dances of the extreme northeast.

Revived from near extinction in the 1920's, "Classical Indian Dance" was virtually unknown in the subcontinent itself until the last generation. Several Americans, among them Ruth S. Denis, Ted Shawn, La Merl and others, have been prominently involved in the revival of Indian classical dances, one of the world's most ancient and highly developed art forms.

The program will provide an opportunity to experience the rhythmic and tonal qualities of Indian music which has recently attracted great attention in the West through the work of Ravi Shankar. The role of a narrator is provided to add to the understanding of the relationship between the dance and its music as well as to their relation to their historical and religious setting. Imported costumes and authentic music taped in India serve to enhance the value of the program as a cultural experience.

Admission will be 50¢ for students and $1.25 for faculty, staff, and the general public.

Dances of India Scheduled

The Peninsula Civic Opera will hold children's tryouts for "The Pied Piper of Hamelin", a newly composed opera by Harold Chapman, on Saturday, Nov. 22, at 3 p.m. at St. John's Church Parish House, 100 W. Queen St., Hampton.

The "Pied Piper of Hamelin" to be presented Feb. 20th and 21st at Bethel High School, needs a chorus of boys and girls of ages 8 through 14. Rehearsals will be held each Saturday afternoon except during the Christmas season.

Tony Auby, vice president for Operations, indicated that tryouts for adult roles in "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" will be held Monday, Nov. 24th, at 8 p.m., at the same place. A young tenor (age 18-25) is needed as the Pied Piper. There are a number of other adult roles for all voices.

Auby also announced that tryouts for "La Boheme", the Peninsula Civic Opera's final production of the 1968-1970 season, will be held on Dec. 1st at 8 p.m., at the same location. The cast for "La Boheme" includes Rodolfo, a poet, Schauard, a musician, Benoit, a landlord, Mimì, a frail charming girl, Parpignol, Christmas toy vendor, Marcello, a painter, Collene, a philosopher, Alcendora, a councillor of state and Musetta, a pretty flirt of 20.

Sopranos are needed for Mimì and Musetta, tenors for Rodolfo and Parpignol, baritones for Schauard and Marcello, and basses for Benoit, Collene, Alcendora and a Custome House Sergeant.

A chorus of townspeople, soldiers, servants, children, students, working girls, and gendarmes is also needed.

"La Boheme" will be presented by the Peninsula Civic Opera on Friday, April 24th and Saturday, April 25th in the Warwick High School auditorium.

The Cream, filmed live and in color in their final and farewell performance, will be presented at the Virginia Beach Dome, Friday, Nov. 28 in two showings at 7:30 p.m. and 10 p.m., sponsored by WGH Radio.

Council To Meet

The November meeting of the Virginia Beach Council of Social Agencies will be held Friday, November 21, at 3 p.m. at the VEPCO building on First Colonial Road in Virginia Beach.

New officers were elected last month. Dr. James N. Williams is the new president. The new vice president is Mrs. Thomasine Cubine; the new secretary is Mrs. Linda Ormsby; and the new treasurer is Gordon Turner.

Five new board members were also chosen. They are Mrs. Barbara Abbott, Lt. Henry Capps, Mrs. Pearl Mallory, Mrs. Evelyn Richardson and Mrs. Lloyd.

Robert J. Packer, Ocean Front, is among the students who have been granted their degree by the University of Wisconsin at Madison. The degrees were awarded on recommendation of the University faculty upon completion of their scholastic work by the students.

Their Next Project Is a Play

Displays ranged from knights in shining armor to live hermit crabs with a variety of exhibits between.

Other displays included post cards from around the world, dolls from a number of countries, coins, stamps, shells, a model solar system, model cars, etc. Would you believe it of a group of third graders? They are members of the independent reading group taught by Miss Ann McNamara at Kings Grant School. There are 36 in the class.

The occasion was a hobby show to which other third graders, first and second graders and parents were invited. With each hobby was a card with information prepared by the students and typed by Miss McNamara telling the why's and wherefore's of the hobbies. Several children also had books with their displays.

"The purpose of the show was to teach the children to work independently on research and to report what they had learned," said Miss McNamara. "It also builds pride. Sometimes the independent group is forgotten while the remedial group gets all the attention."

Their next big project? According to Miss McNamara, later this year the class will write and produce a play.

Loan Pays Big Dividends

The Virginia Beach Rotary Club recently received a report concerning the recipient of a student loan which was of unusual interest to its members. During the summer of 1963 Past President Justis P. White and his family opened their home to a young lady from Long Island, N.Y., to make it possible for her to attend summer school at what was then Old Dominion College. Before the end of summer it was learned that this student would require financial assistance if she were to continue her education in the fall and White sponsored her for a Rotary Club student loan.

Upon receipt of the repayment of the $1,000 no interest loan, White was asked to make a brief report on the current status of the girl.

The club learned with considerable gratification that the young lady, Gail Metz, did graduate from college with a major in sociology, and that she is now employed in Mobile, Ala., as a teacher in a special school for retarded children.

She is also married and is now the mother of two children. Her husband, Robert Colson, received a distinguished military student award upon graduation from the University of Alabama, and is now a captain in the Army currently flying helicopters in Vietnam.

The Virginia Beach Rotary Club has for many years displayed considerable interest in the young people of this nation and has assisted quite a number in completing their education. While pointed out that in this particular case they had not only made an investment in a particular individual, but had also made an investment that will pay generous dividends for many years to come.

The student loan program has been discontinued, and in recent years direct scholarships have been given.

White, a retired Coast Guard commander is also the regional representative for the Retired Officers Association.

Dormitory To Honor Bishop Gum

One of two projected new dormitories at Virginia Wesleyan College will be named in memory of the late Bishop Walter C. Gum. The action of the Trustees was announced this week by Judge Jerry G. Gray, Jr., Board chairman.

The two new residence halls are scheduled to be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1970. Each will house 60 students and the total development cost for each will be approximately $300,000. Bids are to be received for the two residence halls on December 4.

Bishop Gum served four churches in the Tidewater area, Park Place, Ghent and First churches in Norfolk and Monumental in Portsmouth, as well as a term as superintendent of the Norfolk district of the United Methodist Church. He served as resident Bishop in Kentucky and Virginia prior to his retirement in Norfolk in 1968. Bishop Gum was active in the early development of Virginia Wesleyan and was serving as vice chairman of the Board of Trustees at the time of his death in May 1969.

College officials are now involved in a program to raise $100,000 in the Walter C. Gum Memorial Fund. These funds will go toward the cost of one of the dormitories. Virginia Wesleyan has received a fund reservation for a 40 year, three per cent loan of approximately $200,000 on each of the two dormitories from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development contingent upon the college's raising approximately $100,000 on each dormitory.

President Lambuth M. Clarke has indicated that funds which come to Virginia Wesleyan this year from the College Club Fund will be applied to the dormitory costs.

Dam Neck Has College Classes

Evening college courses are now being offered at the Guided Missiles School, Dam Neck. Three courses, Introduction to Data Processing 270, Principles of Digital Computers and Programming 110, and English Composition and Literature 101 are being offered through the extension division of Old Dominion University.

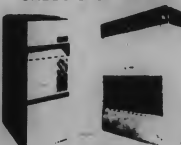

Each class is worth three semester hours of credit and is transferable to almost any university in the United States. They are being offered in the belief that better educated manpower means a better Navy.

J. Darrell Foster of Virginia Beach has received the University of Richmond's Intermediate Honors for scholarship in his first two years at Richmond College. Foster, a junior at Richmond College, the men's undergraduate division of the University of Richmond, is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Junius E. Foster Jr.

Cox Play Is on Weekend

By Ronald Todd

Cox High School

The senior class at Cox will present the play "Dark of the Moon" tomorrow and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Admission is $1 in advance and $1.50 at the door.

The setting for the play is the Smokey Mountains, where a witch-boy, John, (Eric Erdman) falls in love with Barbara Allen, (Linda Carawan), a human. James Garrett and William Boyll direct the cast of 26.

Yesterday the Cox SCA sponsored an officer forum assembly where students directly discussed their problems with their SCA officers. This was followed with a short preview of the senior class play.

In football, the Cox Falcons wrapped up their season with a victory over the PA Cavaliers last Friday night with a score of 8-6. The Falcons record now stands at 5 wins, 4 losses, and 1 tie to make the first winning football season Cox has had.

Powder Puffers Compete

By Mike Raper

Kellam High School

This Friday, the Knights of Floyd E. Kellam High School will surrender the gridiron to their fair maidens for the spectacular of the year, the annual Powder Puff game. And with the amount of confidence flowing on both sides, this should be a game to see.

The seniors, under the leadership of Mr. Ammons, are promising to "allow the juniors to come to the senior victory dance." The juniors, under the able direction of Mr. Chandler and Mr. "Unmerciful" Percell, are agreeing to allow the seniors at least one touchdown.

During halftime, junior and senior candidates will compete for Powder Puff Queen. Judges will be Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Cramer and Mrs. Simpson.

After the game, there will be a dance emceed by WCH celebrity J.J. Bowman.

Fla. Tour Set in Aug.

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks will sponsor a tour from Aug. 12 through 16, 1970.

The tour will visit Jacksonville, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Miami, St. Augustine, Fla.

Sites to be seen are the world famous Busch Gardens, Cape Kennedy, Marineland, the Porpoise Show, the Alligator Farms, the Glass-bottom-boat ride and many other points of interest.

This trip is for senior citizens or anyone who has a desire to make the trip. Interested persons may call the recreation office, 497-4884 or after 6 p.m., call 428-7207. Ask for H. C. Benjamin.

Originality To Bring Dividends

This is the fifth year that young Tinkertoy designers are being given an opportunity to turn their original toy models into a $1,000 Scholarship award and an expense-paid trip.

Now, all boys and girls in this immediate vicinity and throughout the United States are eligible to participate in Toy Tinkers' Scholarship Award Program.

Youngsters may submit sketches or photographs of original models which they have designed from Tinkertoy, Tinker Zoo, Toy Maker, or any combination of the three toys, before Dec. 31 to qualify for Junior Engineer Certificates of Award and then for the Scholarship Award Program. Judging is on the basis of imaginativeness and creativity of design.

As in previous years, each of the 50 state finalists receive a handsome-mounted, personally-engraved wall plaque.

The Scholarship Award is a $1,000 savings bond and an expense paid trip to New York City for the top designer and his or her parents. With this award goes the title of Toy Tinker of the Year now held by ten-year-old Becky Wright, who received the $1,000 bond from Julie Nixon Eisenhower at the White House.

Sketches or photographs of original designs should be sent to Toy Tinkers, a Questor company, 807 Greenwood Street, Evanston, Ill. 60204.

Downing to Be Speaker

Windsor Oaks Elementary School is scheduled to be dedicated on Sunday, Dec. 7, at 3 p.m. First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing will be the keynote speaker during dedication ceremonies.

This new elementary school is located on Van Buren Drive in the Plaza section of the city. Windsor Oaks is a climate-controlled school and has included in it the most up-to-date features of the modern elementary school. This elementary facility houses grades one through seven and has an enrollment capacity of 860 students.

The facility was completed in the spring of 1969-70 but was not able to accept its student body until this fall due to the fire which destroyed King's Grant Elementary School last year. On a temporary basis, Windsor Oaks Elementary School housed the King's Grant student body for the remainder of the last school year.

In September of this year Windsor Oaks acquired its own teaching staff, administration, and student body.

Contents of the overturned truck are pumped into another truck prior to righting the wrecked vehicle.

Overtaken Truck Causes Mess

The driver of a tanker truck escaped injury Monday afternoon when the truck overturned in the 2500 block of Potters Road as the truck was enroute to the Oceana Naval Air Station fuel farm.

Investigators identified the driver as Alton P. Porter, 23, of Pioneer Avenue, Norfolk. The truck was owned by Oil Transport, Inc., of Chesapeake. The truck had just crossed a small wooden bridge over London Bridge Creek and was rounding a curve in the road when the wheels of the truck went into a small ditch along side the road, turning the truck over onto its right side in front of the Alice Wadsworth home.

The accident ruptured a front compartment of the truck causing part of an estimated 7,000 gallons of J.P. Five aviation fuel to drain into the ditch and onto the road. Initial reports of the accident led to fear of a possible fire hazard resulting from fumes from the escaping fuel. This, however, was lessened when the fuel was identified as one having a high combustible temperature.

Most of the remaining fuel was pumped into a second transport truck which arrived at the scene shortly after the accident.

Men of the London Bridge Volunteer Fire Department using fire hoses washed down the road, and truck loads of sand were spread to lessen any possible fire hazard.

A crane was sent to the scene from the E. T. Gresham Co. Crane operator S. W. Swain separated the damaged truck cab from the rest of the overturned truck and righted it, then it was towed away by a wrecker. Swain then righted the overturned tanker portion of the truck which was hooked up to a second cab and removed from the scene. This was done about three hours after the initial report of the accident.

Talks with Chesapeake Favored

A large number of SUN SURVEY readers are apparently ready for serious discussions between Virginia Beach and Chesapeake with an eye toward a two-city water system, as an alternative to the present method of purchasing water from Norfolk.

A total of 79 per cent who replied to last week's SUN SURVEY question said "Yes" to the question, "Should the city of Virginia Beach seriously pursue the possibility of setting up a two-city water authority and system with Chesapeake as has been preliminarily discussed by officials of the two cities?" The other 21 per cent were opposed.

It would appear that Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott has an okay from SUN SURVEY readers for the talks. City Council has previously approved of such talks, although the talks have not begun.

Many of those who noted opposition were not necessarily against the approach, but said they felt Virginia Beach should try to go it on its own instead of joining with another city. Several also said they were still entirely opposed to the purchase of water from Norfolk.

While the public opinion poll does not profess to represent the thinking of all residents of Virginia Beach, it does represent a cross section of those who took time to clip it and return it to us.

Your attention is called also to this week's SUN SURVEY question, which appears below in the box at the lower left corner of this page. The results will be published here next week.

Each week a new, timely question will be asked, and you are invited to participate. The more replies received, the more responsible the opinion.

An estimated 75 men, members of the London Bridge Volunteer Fire Department, Oceana N.A.S. Fire Department, the police department, the Fire Inspectors Bureau and the City Highway Department, cooperated in clearing the road.

Before reopening Potters Road between Lynnhaven Road and London Bridge Road, men from the London Bridge fire department washed down roadside ditches to clear as much of the spilled fuel as possible, and crews from the City Highway Department spread sand over the road, then placed markers along the road to warn motorists.

Candidacy Epidemic Spreads

The 1970 City Council race in Virginia Beach has begun south of City Hall, but with a number of pending announcements of candidacy, appears to be spreading northward quickly.

Pungo Councilman Kenneth Whitehurst announced two weeks ago he would not seek re-election. To date two candidates have announced for that seat.

The first to file his intentions was Levy W. Whitehurst, 55, a farmer and for 12 years a district soil conservation supervisor. He is a lifelong resident of Pungo and a cousin of the retiring Councilman who held the post for 18 years. The candidate describes himself as an "independent candidate," and says he is not obligated to any political group or person.

He said, "The people of Pungo and the entire city of Virginia Beach are going to miss our retiring Councilman. He has done a wonderful job."

The new candidate said he feels his experience in the last 12 years makes him especially qualified on the subjects of drainage and recreation, which he considers important in the future of the city. He added he will announce a complete platform later, and that he could not rule out the possibility of running on a ticket later on. Tuesday Whitehurst had opposition.

Floyd E. Waterfield, Jr., 32, assistant vice president of the Princess Anne Plaza branch of First & Merchants National Bank and chief of the Creeds, Volunteer Fire and Rescue Squad, announced his candidacy.

Waterfield is also a native of the Pungo area, and he said after talking with a number of people he had "decided to become a candidate for the City Council as the Pungo Borough representative."

He said also that he believes he is familiar with the many problems facing Virginia Beach. "...I will join with the other Councilmen elected, wherever they may be, to work for the benefit of the entire city," he said.

He added that he would make his position on important issues known in the near future.

Waterfield is also a member of a number of civic organizations and is active on committees of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. He is vice president-elect of the Creeds Rural Club, of which

Cities Meet Today

The first meeting of the informal committee that will informally discuss merger of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Chesapeake and Virginia Beach meets this afternoon.

Three representatives have been chosen from the four cities, including the city managers and mayors of all four.

Besides Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott and Mayor Frank Dusch, Bayside City Councilman Lawrence Marshall will represent the city at the meetings.

The initial meetings and several future ones are expected only to discuss any and all areas of agreement, with an eye toward merger if the talks continue and prosper.

When Virginia Beach decided to send representatives to the meetings proposed by Norfolk Mayor Roy Martin, it was made clear that the city is not necessarily interested in merger, but feels that more area-wide cooperation might be the outcome.

None of the city's representatives showed any real optimism prior to the meeting, but all noted they were willing to listen and talk about anything that could be good for Virginia Beach.

One City Councilman, not a member of the three-man delegation said, however, he expects the talks to be as long and as complicated as the Paris peace talks.

Modernized Govt. Plan Rests in Council Hands

The long-expected plan of City Manager Roger Scott to revamp, centralize and modernize the city government is now in the hands of City Councilmen and awaits their action.

The plan calls for the first major reorganization of Virginia Beach government since the merger of Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach in 1963. It is also the first real test of Scott's regime since he became city manager more than a year ago.

One of the major changes would be the establishment of the Department of Economic Development and Department of Community Service.

"The major criticism of the city's current economic development efforts would be that they are uncoordinated and without a common goal," said Scott, adding, that the city has spent more than $377,000 for economic development in 1969.

Scott said that in the Department of Economic Development would be two divisions, one for tourist development and one for industrial development.

This would eliminate three of the five current agencies directing economic development.

The new department would abolish the Advertising Board, the Civic Center Board, and the Public Works, Public Utilities, a Bureau of Safety and Traffic Engineering, Engineering Division, Real Estate, Inspections Division, Bureau of Refuse Collection and Disposal, plus a few subdivisions. One of Scott's goals was to establish direct lines of responsibility and authority where none exist and also to consolidate labor, equipment and like functions that now are assigned to two or more departments. "The departments do not have clearly defined organizational chart," said Scott, adding that it is difficult to draw a current organizational chart because of the lack of definition of responsibilities and authority.

The plan would also reduce from 21 to 10 the number of people reporting directly to the city manager. The ten would be four staff directors and six operating directors, Scott said it is impossible for a city manager to maintain effective control of 21 staff members on a daily basis. Direct lines of communication and responsibility would be established under the new plan. Uniform terminology would also be established for divisions within the government. Under departments would be divisions and under divisions are bureaus.

Other changes called for by the plan include transferring the position of high constable, now Council appointed, to the court system.

City Council took no action on the report Monday. Scott hopes that if Council approves the report soon, the two new departments and the 10 positions can start operating by the beginning of the City's new fiscal year on July 1, 1970.

Other changes would be made according to money available.

Plan Passes With Changes

Expect for two items, the proposed Beach Borough Development plan passed City Council Monday without opposition.

Objections from motel owners and the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association brought about the deletion of one-way traffic on Atlantic and Pacific avenues and building of public restrooms along the beach.

The proposed restrooms were labeled as "outhouses" by Wilson Chaplin, a motel owner. Charles Gardner, president of the Innkeepers, said the one way streets would turn tourists away from the resort area. Gardner agreed to meet with Planning Director Patrick Standing to determine alternatives to solve the restroom and traffic problems.

Gardner agreed that restrooms are needed, but his suggestion was to open sections of Seashore State Park, Camp Pendleton and Sandbridge to the public.

Another change was the deletion of a small convenience center grocery store at 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue. The North Virginia Beach Improvement League opposed it.

Plans to make 21st and 22nd Streets at the exit and entrance to the Expressway, Laskin Road and 30th Street to become one-way was unchanged. Also, Mediterranean and Baltic Avenues would merge into Holly Road and serve as a bypass to North Virginia Beach, and Parks and Casplan Avenues as a bypass to the South End.

Seastack redevelopment is a major part of the plan. Low-cost housing and low-interest home improvement loans for low-income families are planned.

Additional shopping areas are planned for the 21st and 22nd Street corridors along the Expressway, along 31st Street and Birdneck Road at Virginia Beach Blvd.

In addition an industrial park is recommended near South Birdneck Road and also at two locations along the Norfolk Southern right of way.

Juvenile Convicted

A 17-year-old juvenile was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary Tuesday following his conviction of involuntary manslaughter.

The juvenile had been charged with murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of Aaron D. Bell on March 1, during an argument between Bell and the accused at Bell's Pungo Borough home.

During Tuesday's Circuit Court proceedings the accused appeared before Judge Robert S. Wahab, Jr., on the charge. Evidence brought out in the trial resulted in Judge Wahab finding the defendant guilty of the charge of involuntary manslaughter and his subsequent sentencing to the prison term.

"Yes, I've been invited out to Thanksgiving dinner. Have you?"

Bystanders were plentiful as volunteers of the Seatack and Oceana fire departments practiced on a controlled fire Saturday at Birdneck Road and Virginia Beach Blvd. The once familiar Pete's Drive In was burned to the ground. (Photo by Meyer)

The soundtrack of "Hello Dolly" has been worth waiting for. It's a powerhouse treatment of the popular Broadway score with two additional songs by Jerry Herman, the man who is responsible for this ear-pleasing music. Barbara Streisand gives "Dolly" her own inimitable touch and gets a good assist from Walter Matthau and a superb one from Louis Armstrong on the title song. Funny thing is that the soundtrack album is being released before the movie itself—some contract hassle between David Merrick and Century-Fox, 20th Century Fox DTS 5103 (S).

Lately on WVAB we've been playing the instrumental version of "Jean" as done by Lawrence Welk. Well, Lawrence Welk has done it again. He's following in the tradition of memorable old goodies like "Memories" and "I Love You Truly", while still producing yet another album for the young at heart. The old maestro comes forth with the album "Jean" and adds a touch of beauty and romance to tunes such as "Love Theme from Romeo and Juliet", "Hurt So Bad", and "Yesterday When I Was Young". It will be a cherished addition to the Welk record collection of many, or just the right one to start with.

Charged in Attack

Calvin Ernest Beale has been indicted by a Circuit Court grand jury on charges of rape and committing an unnatural sex act. Beale, 18, of Hermes Road has been charged by police with attacking a 22-year-old woman in a wooded region behind Plaza Junior High School on Oct. 14. The victim contends she gave Beale a ride when he directed her auto to the end of Pritchard Road where he dragged her from the car, ripped her clothing and attacked her. Beale has been charged with rape and sodomy in connection with the alleged incident.

8 Drug Indictments

A Circuit Court grand jury has returned true bills of indictments against eight persons charged by Virginia Beach police with violating state drug laws. Those named in the indictments were identified as Terrance James Slevin, Linda Leigh English, Leonard Vance Troutman, Willis Graham, Arlin John Schaap, Michael Edward Hazell and Robert Preston Oliver, Jr. Court proceedings are still pending in connection with the charges.

Norfolk Men Indicted

Court appearance in pending for two Norfolk men indicted by a Circuit Court grand jury in connection with a series of Virginia Beach residential burglaries. Fred L. Forehand, 32, of Winder Drive, and John O. Funkhouser, 25, of Norway Place, have each been accused of five burglaries. Officials said household goods and personal effects valued at some $25,000 were taken during the breakins.

Sentence Suspended

Larry E. Hines, 24, of Virginia Beach Blvd. has been given a suspended one year jail sentence after being convicted of simple assault. Hines entered Juvenile Court on a charge of malicious shooting, but was found guilty of the reduced charge, as a result of a Nov. 2 incident in Cookie's Cafe near his home.

Federal Charges

Four Virginia Beach juveniles are facing federal charges in connection with the alleged theft of musical instruments, valued at $700, from the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base Teen Club two weeks ago. FB officials in announcing the arrests said each of the juveniles, who resided in the Lake Shores area of the resort city, were afforded a hearing before U.S. Magistrate Gilbert R. Swinn were released on personal recognizance bonds of $5,000 and placed in the custody of their parents pending further legal proceedings.

Adm. Minor Speaks

Pilots and junior officers of the Oceana Naval Air Station were addressed last Thursday night at the facility by Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations. The nature of Moorer's remarks to the Naval aviators were not released to the public. The address was delivered during a dinner which was conducted as a private affair at Moorer's request.

Man Killed

According to police officials Gerald K. Orem, 28, of Route 3, was fatally injured in a single car accident on NC 615, John C. Twiford, 38, also of Route 3, Virginia Beach, was also injured in the same Currituck Sound accident. Officials indicated that Orem was thrown from the auto as it overturned into a ditch. Twiford was taken to Virginia Beach General Hospital where he underwent intensive medical care. He was, however, listed in satisfactory condition on Tuesday and transferred to the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Hampton, Va.

Belo Robbed

An undetermined amount of money was taken from the Belo Supermarket in the 400 block of Kempersville Road shortly before the closing of the store last Thursday night. Police quote store manager Joseph B. Lee with saying the men came into the store and inquired about the purchase of a money order. One of the men reportedly pulled a pistol on Lee and demanded the contents of the cash drawer, after which both men fled.

Kiwanians Install Officers

Vincent L. Reza, of Keeler Lane, Virginia Beach, was installed as President of the Kiwanian Club of Norfolk-Prince Anne at the organization's annual installation meeting, recently at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel in Norfolk.

Reza, who has been an active Kiwanian for five years, succeeds Richard Beck as president of the service organization. Reza is president of Val-jar, Inc., a construction and industrial equipment renting and leasing firm.

Also installed at the meeting were: Robert J. Seyler, Norfolk 1st vice president; Welford P. Lucy, Jr. of Chesapeake, 2nd vice president; Charles W. Foster of Virginia Beach, secretary; and E. L. "Marty" Martin of Virginia Beach, treasurer.

In accepting his new office, Reza pledged his administration to a continuation of the community service projects which his club has sponsored in the past in the Norfolk-Prince Anne area.

At the same meeting, Martin was presented with the Kiwanian of the year award. Each year, this award is given to an individual Kiwanian who best typifies the ideals of Kiwanis and who makes an outstanding contribution to his club and his community.

Charter Hearing Set

Virginia Beach City Council has set Dec. 15 at 10 a.m. as the time for a special public hearing on proposed changes in the City Charter which must be approved by the 1970 session of the Virginia General Assembly.

The major changes will be to stagger the terms of Councilmen and raising the pay of the Mayor and Councilmen.

Presumably some of the planks in City Manager Roger Scott's reorganization plan (See separate story) may be discussed at that time also for adoption on an emergency basis by the legislature so that all changes can take place next year and be planned for in the next budget.

There was some criticism in the informal meeting Monday of a lottery held recently to decide which borough seats on Council would be four-year seats and which would be two-year terms to accomplish the initial staggering.

The at-large Councilmen getting the longer terms will be determined by the largest number of votes, and several Councilmen now appear to favor the same manner for borough representatives. City Attorney Harry Marshall was instructed to draw up plans both ways and let the hearing decide.

The new pay scale would raise Councilmen from $200 a month to $400 a month, and the Mayor from $250 to $500. Any other proposed changes will also be discussed at the hearing, to which the city's representatives to the legislature have been invited.

In other action Monday Council agreed to loan the School Board $130,000 from the general fund for use in planning for new schools. School Supt. E. E. Brickell told Council he will need more money shortly, but does not anticipate calling for help through a bond issue for the next several months.

The loan will be paid back presumably through the bond issue, expected next November. Council also accepted a resolution from the Rudee Inlet Authority calling for "some agency, federal, state or city, to legally be made responsible" for keeping the Rudee Inlet Channel open. At present no agency actually has the responsibility. Council took no action on the resolution, and after hearing from charter boat operators, but is expected to include the matter in the reorganization.

In addition Council accepted a $32,000 bid for construction of a new central communications tower, appropriated $5,000 to the Tidewater Community College project for planning purposes, and transferred $8,000 to a fund for lighting two ball fields at Creeds Elementary school.

A request by developer Lacy Reid for extension of an expired use permit near Little Creek Amphibious Base was deferred. Reid said delays there have been caused by working with the Navy on their future plans for the channel.

Apartments Head List

Apartment applications head the list of items to come before the Dec. 9, 1 p.m. meeting of the Planning Commission.

Among them was one for only five apartment units. It is the application of W. Roger Wood for additional units on 27th Street near Baltic. The others, however, are for considerably more units. That of W. R. Kelly Company is for 404 apartment units at North Birdneck Road and Hope Avenue. Another, by Carolanne Homes Inc., is for 220 apartment units at Princess Anne Road and Hill Prince Road. Another use permit for construction of 220 apartment units near Diamond Springs Road and Shore Drive in the Lake Smith area is being made by Lincoln Enterprises.

Other applications include three from the City of Virginia Beach for parks. Two are to be constructed in the Seatack area and one in Point O' Woods.

The Royal Clipper Motor Lodge is applying for a use permit to construct nine additional motel units at Atlantic Avenue and 36th Street.

An application for a use permit for professional offices at First Colonial Road near Will-O-Wisp Drive is being made by H. Lynn Womack. This is near the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

In addition there is an application of B. L. Fink for a use permit to construct a Post Office on Princess Anne Road near Landstown Road near Princess Anne Courthouse.

Conflict

was in Council chambers on another matter, brought Reid to the podium. Reid said Cromwell does not now and has never had an interest in the property. Cromwell thanked Reid and Burlage for coming forward.

In another zoning matter held prior to the regular meeting, Council declined to take action on a proposed resolution offered by several civic clubs and residents of the Colabane Farm area of Kempsville. They, through their spokesman, Sam Houston, sought a moratorium on approval of apartments and townhouses in their area until the planning department completes a projected land use study plan. Houston also charged that the planning commission had acted on a use permit that had been improperly advertised, and without specific procedures being followed.

Planning director Patrick Standing said his department does all it can to follow all legal procedures. He added that his study plan of the area will not be underway for some time, probably in the spring of next year.

Council advised the group it would do all within its power to help the area without actually calling a moratorium.

Scouts Maintain Landmark

The 205-year-old Pembroke Manor House still serves Virginia Beach well, and there is promise of a bigger community role in the future.

For local Boy Scouts the Pembroke Manor House, built in 1764, is providing a means to merit badges for some of its members. Scouts working towards Citizenship Merit Badges have as their project the maintenance of the grounds surrounding the home. Each scout must perform 10 hours of work in the community to complete requirements for the Citizenship Merit Badge.

The old home is also the center of a village of townhouses now being built by Terry Corporation, called Pembroke Park. The future of Pembroke Manor House is promising. The Virginia Beach Historical Society owns it, a donation several years ago by Terry Corporation. The Society hopes to restore the home as an area landmark and tourist attraction.

All Ages Are Welcome

The Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department is currently operating an Activity Center in the Armed Forces Hospitality House located at 18th and Arctic Avenue in the Beach Borough.

From Sept. 15th to May 15th the building is used for adult and youth activities. During the summer months the facilities are used in the same respect for the servicemen.

The Recreation Department has organized activities for Virginia Beach citizens of all ages. Classes in various arts and crafts including sewing, decoupage, oil painting and specialty cooking are offered in the morning and evening for adults.

Between the hours of 2:30 and 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, the Center is open for elementary school age children. During these hours the children may participate in arts and crafts, plus games, such as ping pong, chess, checkers, horseshoes, dominoes, etc. Tuesday and Thursday the children may attend a class in tap/ballet.

The high school students are welcome to join activities offered by the Recreation Department Monday - Friday between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. and 7 - 10 p.m. Classes being offered to this group includes charm, hair styling and make-up, decoupage, sewing, knitting, bridge, oil painting, pop art and tap/ballet. The young people are also invited to come in for the games listed above or just for the added enjoyment.

The Center is also used by the Golden Years Club. This group of senior citizens, sponsored by the Recreation Department, meets twice a month during the fall, winter and spring months.

Guns Should Be Registered

Residents of Virginia Beach are being urged to register any guns in their possession, including handguns, shotguns, and rifles, merely for the purpose of identification.

This can be accomplished through making a list of the guns, to include the serial number, make, model, and any other marks of identification.

Police officials are making the recommendation to assist them in locating the rightful owners of guns recovered after being stolen, and to enable them to obtain a complete description of any weapon which may be stolen.

Authorities say that at least 150 guns of various types have been reported stolen from private homes and business firms in the city of Virginia Beach thus far this year. Most of these thefts have been reported in private home break-ins. Officials also point out that in less than a third of these incidents it is not possible to establish the rightful owner of a stolen gun, due to the inability of the owner to furnish police officials with complete information.

Officials also point out such a self registration is also recommended for household appliances, securities, coin collections and personal effects that could be stolen.

Police Chief Co. W. W. Davis said that the proposal should not be construed as an endorsement from the Virginia Beach Police Department for recent proposals calling for mass registration law enforcement authorities of all weapons owned by private citizens.

Col. Davis indicated this attitude was based on the feeling that "the registration of weapons would not serve as a deterrent in crime to any large degree."

He added however, that any resident of the city who wishes to register any privately owned guns with the Virginia Beach police department is welcome to do so.

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Question: I pay the medical bills for my aunt even though she is not my dependent. Does that mean I won't be able to deduct these costs?

Answer: As a general rule, only medical expenses paid for a dependent may be deducted along with the taxpayer's other medical costs. However, if you could have claimed your aunt, except for the fact that she had $600 or more income or filed a joint return with her spouse, then you may add the medical expenses you pay for her to your own expense.

Question: Why can't a check made out to cash be used to support a charitable contribution?

Answer: To substantiate a deductible expense your records must indicate, among other things, the purpose of the expense, to whom paid, as well as the amount.

A check made out to cash does not indicate the nature of the expense and must be supported by other records, such as receipts. A check made out to a specific organization, a charity for example, may well be sufficient to establish that a deductible contribution has been made.

Question: Under the 1968 gun law, if I take my own guns with me for a hunting trip to Canada, will I have any problem bringing them back?

Answer: No, there should be no problem as long as you took them out of the country. To do this, a bill of sale or other evidence of purchase or ownership will be helpful.

If you wish you may also use a procedure the Bureau of Customs has established for persons taking cameras and other valuables out of the country. (Then there will be a record of your ownership when you return.

'Day After Depressing

"Don't take a chance on disappointing someone you love, send your gift parcels and cards early enough to insure their delivery before Christmas, not after," Postmaster Joseph T. Crosswhite, Jr., advised.

"On the day after Christmas a post office building can be the most depressing place in the world," he added, "if it still contains a mountain of messages of love and cheer that didn't make it because they were mailed too late."

Such disappointments can be avoided if Christmas mailers will observe the following mailing schedule.

Gift parcels going to distant states should be mailed by Dec. 1. Parcels going to local and nearby areas should be mailed not later than Dec. 13.

Hit Musical Set for Norfolk

A lyrical piece of propaganda for marriage will be the next attraction at the Center Theatre. On Friday, Dec. 5, the New York musical hit "I Do! I Do!" bearing the credentials of a 19-month run on Broadway, will begin an engagement of three performances through Saturday, Dec. 6, with Phil Ford and Mimi Hines as its lustrous stars.

The lightheartedly entertaining musical is not merely propaganda for marriage, of course (is there anybody propagandizing against it?), but it's an assertion that matrimony is a good thing, and that life itself can be o.k. In other words, it's an optimistic musical, and thus a rare contrast to many other current musicals, plays, movies, and novels, which are touched with cynical pessimism.

This musical's attitude matches its title in being emphatically affirmative, in saying that while married life can be strewn with troubles and disappointments, on the whole it can be pretty joyful.

Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt, the young Texans who wrote "The Fantasticks," created this accentuation of the positive, Jones being responsible for the book and lyrics and Schmidt for the rollicking tunes.

It has been directed by Lucia Victor, long-time assistant to the famed Gower Champion, who originally directed the show for its long New York run; and it is being sent here as part of a nation-wide tour by America's most eminent stage producer, David Merrick.

Phil Ford and Mimi Hines, long-established popular entertainers on TV and in elegant supper clubs, and seen recently on Broadway in "Funny Girl," and on tour in "The Roar of the Greasepaint," are aptly costarred in "I Do! I Do!" which traces the events of a happy marriage over 50 years, since they are husband and wife in private life and have been ever since they were on the same nightclub bill as "singles" in Anchorage, Alaska.

Income Rank High

Personal income on all levels-national, state and local-is considered an effective measure of economic growth in the United States, and Virginia Beach is one of the Virginia leaders.

Latest figures, from a study prepared by the University of Virginia Bureau of Population and Economic Research, show that from 1960-67, personal income of Virginians rose at a 17 per cent faster rate than the national increase over the same period.

During those seven years, Virginians' personal income rose 74 per cent to $12.8 billion. In analyzing those statistics, the University bureau reports that per capita income in the State rose from $1,856 in 1960 to $2,777 in 1967. Arlington county in the Washington metropolitan area ranked highest with a per income of $4,478 while mountainous Lee county in western Virginia ranked low with $1,100.

Virginia's counties showed a greater percentage increase in total personal income than the State's cities. The income of all counties rose by 86 per cent, from $3.9 billion in 1960 to $7.2 billion in 1967. Eleven of the 12 counties which had total income increases of more than 95 per cent were either in or adjacent to metropolitan areas.

In the same period, income in the cities rose from $3.4 billion to more than $5.5 billion, a 61 per cent gain.

Among the individual localities, Fairfax county had the highest total income figure in 1967, with $1.3 billion, followed by Norfolk, $824 million; Arlington county, $813 million; and Henrico county with $555 million. Other leading localities include Alexandria, $449 million; Newport News, $425 million; Portsmouth, $352 million; Virginia Beach, $336 million; Chesterfield county, $336 million; Roanoke city, $310 million and Roanoke county, $227 million.

Following Arlington county in per capita income are Falls Church with $4,262; Covington, $4,043; Fauquier county, $3,696; Alexandria, $3,959; Richmond city, $3,756; Henrico county, $3,535, and Suffolk, $3,416. Among other leaders in per capita income are Norfolk, $3,355; Culpeper county, $3,229; Franklin city, $3,208; Chesterfield county, $3,193; Charlottesville, $3,185; Newport News, $3,179; Roanoke city, $3,177; Petersburg, $3,139 and Prince George county, $3,063.

The largest percentage increase in total personal income among counties was in Prince George, 125 per cent. The leading percentage gains among cities were in Lexington, 138 per cent; Virginia Beach 133 per cent, and Fairfax city, 125 per cent. Gains in Lexington and Fairfax may have been affected by changes in the city boundaries.

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Thomas F. McPartland III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. McPartland Jr. of 417 Kelam Road, Virginia Beach, Va., has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., for training in the armament systems field. Airman McPartland, a 1964 graduate of Norfolk (Va.) Catholic High School, received his B.S. degree in chemistry in 1969 from Old Dominion College, Norfolk.

Water Talks Expected

Initial talks are expected shortly between Virginia Beach City Manager Roger Scott and Chesapeake City Manager George House on the possibility of the formation of a two-city water system or water Authority.

Chesapeake is already committed to a water system for itself following approval by the voters earlier this month. The system is expected to be in operation in less than three years. Chesapeake now purchases water from Norfolk, as does Virginia Beach, at twice the amount that Norfolk residents pay for water.

Both Scott and House have been authorized by their respective City Councils to begin talking about merging the new system for both cities, or the possibility of Virginia Beach purchase of water from the new Chesapeake system.

Scott, irked at no Virginia Beach representative being placed on a regional water study panel last week by the South-eastern Virginia Planning District Commission, said this only strengthens his intentions of serious discussions.

He called the commission action "unthinkable." The special committee is made up of representatives from Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake.

A number of Virginia Beach City Councilmen also noted their discontent with the commission action and said it appears Virginia Beach might yet be better off to fend for itself without the commission.

For the Future- a Plan

At first reading City Manager Roger Scott's sweeping reorganization of municipal government that he has finally unveiled for City Council looks like a well-thought out streamlining of city functions.

It is entirely obvious that the plan has taken much hard work and soul-searching. In the name of economy, streamlining and better communications between functions the plan appears outstanding. But individuals must suffer under it, and that is at best painful.

With the proposed merging of some present departments, the downgrading of some divisions and the complete abolishment of some others, is bound to come some problems, and perhaps some real fights and bitterness.

Our present city government was formed out of necessity at merger of a county and a city. If it was once bulky and difficult to handle, most of that has given way to surgery in the past. In whatever form the present plan is adopted, all vestiges of the early days will end. This, after all, is a mark of progress in a rapidly growing municipality.

Many see the plan as a major test of Scott's tenure in office. Since he was elevated to the post nearly 18 months ago he has enjoyed close cooperation with his Council and has been able to get many programs through. This reorganization plan will show whether the same policies will continue.

Scott has maintained his non-political status, and has managed to win the confidence of most factions. The new plan requires more surgery, but on the face of it appears to be a model for the future. Hopefully the city can be streamlined without too much pain to anyone, and will continue to grow and prosper.

'Red' Church

E. H. "Red" Church retires as senior vice president of the Virginia Beach operation of First & Merchants National Bank after a brilliant and determined career in the banking business.

In his days of dedication to his chosen field he rose from runner to bank president of the Bank of Virginia Beach, which later merged with First & Merchants. The rise was no accident. It took hard work, diligent planning and a lot of good old horse sense.

He has seen our city grow and has been a major force in that growth, not only in his work but also through his outstanding contributions to civic, municipal and charitable causes whenever he was called upon.

We'll miss the salty comments of Red Church, and we'll miss the conscientious care he has taken of his work and his friends. But he has earned this retirement, and we wish him well.

Thanksgiving 1969

The historical background of Thanksgiving Day reminds us that initiative is one of the vital keys to success.

The hardy Pilgrims of Plymouth Bay Colony and the courageous settlers in Virginia demonstrated in the early part of the 17th century that opportunity is there for those willing to work for it. The colonists withstood the privations of an untamed wilderness. They used muscle and perseverance to mold their destiny. They did not push a panic button for the "old country" to bail them out. Nor did they protest against their own chosen leaders. They fought, worked, dreamed and planned side by side with a common purpose.

Just as incentive was the motivating force of our forefathers and freedom their goal, so should these be uppermost in our minds today.

Yes, we do live in a different world today. It is faster, more demanding, more frustrating and more exciting. But we have come a long way in social, educational, technical and scientific progress and knowledge. And we must still have a profound dedication to freedom to spark our initiative to work and prosper.

Let us have more incentive to perpetuate this freedom, so we can continue to prosper, profiting by the colonists' example.

On this Thanksgiving Day, whether we are in church, at a football game or enjoying the good food and fellowship of home and hearth, let us give thanks to our forefathers for their determination and the legacy of freedom they made for us. Let us be worthy of accepting that legacy and keeping it alive for generations to come, no matter what the price.

On the Beach

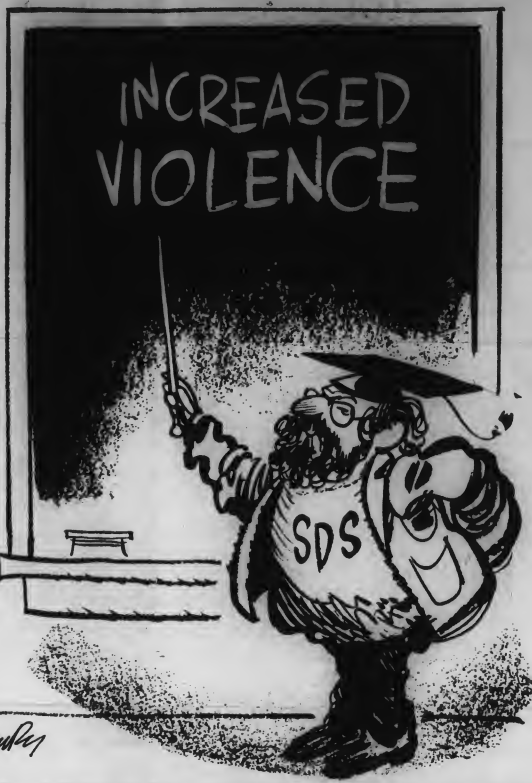

Back to the drawing boards again!

The city planning department and commission after many exhausting public hearings recommended a magnificent land use study plan to City Council that would serve the needs of the resort area principally for the next 25 years. Most of it was wisely enacted by Council.

But a one-way system of streets in the resort area and public rest rooms on green areas near the oceanfront were deleted for more study, after much opposition from businessmen along the strand.

The plan was well done, and the traffic and rest room problems still remain. Let us hope something can be done about both...soon.

Break Away

Editor, VIRGINIA BEACH SUN: I know it will cost the cities Virginia Beach and Chesapeake for their own water authority. But the town of Norfolk thinks we can't get along without it. I feel that cities should cooperate with each other, but when Norfolk wants to have the other cities pay for so much, for instance the airport, stadium and civic center without consulting the other cities, then I feel let's break away from Norfolk. SPOTS

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

"Somehow or other, if I were back in school and the teacher told me to write a paper on 'What I Have To Be Thankful For this Thanksgiving', I'd have to turn in an almost blank sheet of paper. I'd flunk for sure."

"That's a fine thing to say," she said. "Think of your whole family being together on Thanksgiving, including my mother."

"Yes," he said. "That's part of the blank sheet of paper."

"Is Nana coming?" asked the four-year-old. "I thought she was dead."

"Of course she's not dead," said her Mother. "She just hasn't been here for a long time."

"Well, she always says she's sick with something," said the little one. "Maybe she's just half-dead."

"I have the feeling I will be too before her visit is over, said the long-suffering wife. "Trying to keep the insults down is tough. Remember she doesn't come often."

"What do you mean, 'doesn't come often'?" he asked. "I know I saw her Halloween night. Her broom flew right over me. Scared me half to death. She really is a rotten driver."

"Only witches drive brooms, Daddy," said the six-year-old. "No comment," he said.

"You'll be sorry if little pitchers start repeating everything you say," she said.

"I'll deny it all," he said. "I'll say they have vivid little imaginations. The I'll strangle them."

"You mean me?" asked the six-year-old and the four-year-old in unison.

"No, I really mean two other people," he said. "Now, settle down," she said. "After all, it's our anniversary. You can be thankful for that."

"I can? I mean, I can! I got married on Thanksgiving Day ten years ago. Now what have I got to be thankful for in that. I was a happy, carefree bachelor then, and you took the best years of my life."

"Don't be so melodramatic," she said. "You wouldn't know what to do with yourself without being married..."

"I wouldn't? I mean, I wouldn't," he said. "No I suppose you're right. If I weren't married, I wouldn't have to work so hard."

"Yes, but look what you can come home to," she said. "A happy family in a nice home, and plenty to eat."

"Yes, I suppose you're right—a happy wife, when I do the dishes and make the beds, a happy six-year-old when I pay attention only to her, a happy four-year-old when I pay attention only to her, and a happy 17-month-old son who's happy all the time getting into all types of mischief."

"You forgot to comment on the house and the plenty to eat," she prodded.

"Oh, yes, he said, "A nice home with a giant-sized mortgage payment each month and plenty to eat if I can float a small loan to pay the grocery bill. Did I cover everything?"

"Adequately," she said. "Now, if you're finished with that blustering, I'll give you something to be thankful for."

"Oh, oh," he said. "Somehow, I'm afraid to ask, but what is it?"

"You know I told you I needed $200 for new clothes. Well, it turned out I didn't need nearly that much," she said gleefully. "I got everything I wanted for only $189.98."

"I'm thankful," he said. "I'm thankful."

"You don't seem pleased," she said. "I thought you would be."

"I guess I'm just tired," he said. "Now I have to get ready to pick your Mother up."

"What happened?" asked the four-year-old. "Did she fall off her broom?"

By W. A. Leavell, Ph. D.

I AM FED UP! I am sick and tired of being assaulted from TV, radio, newspapers and magazines by people crying that this nation, our country -- yours and mine -- is nothing but a bunch of racist pigs, warmongers, imperialists and devils bent on dominating the world, killing the innocent, robbing the poor and all sorts of things like that to make us out bad. I don't believe it!

I am sick and tired of hearing such nonsense. If anything is really wrong with this country, it is the bunch of nitwits that seem to have the free use of our news media to inflict its sick insanity on the rest of us.

It sure would be interesting to see what would happen if we could get some of our mental midgets to a psychiatrist. If the headshrinkers haven't joined the inmates, they just might find that our big mouth cryers, and much of the nation, are suffering from "EXCESSIVE GUILT."

In the past few years this country has been having a classic guilt-triggered nervous breakdown. We seem tortured by our great affluence and world prestige. All this guilt complex is crippling our normal ego drive and causing unbearable burdens of guilt.

This neurotic blinge has super dimensions of gigantism only possible in the United States. We seem to have thrown ourselves and our national goals into this national neuroticism with the same gusto and enthusiasm we once showed for national bravura and exuberant self-confidence. The result is that many are so anxious and guilty -- about everything -- that we are pouring out our energy, wealth and talent in walls of large economy size buckets full of tears and self pity.

We beat ourselves half to death because our black citizens, just recently emigrated from a rural farm economy with little education, are not equally educated and prosperous with the rest of our people. We can't wait for the time required.

The once heralded victory over Japan, who attacked US at Pearl Harbor, and Hitler and his SS murderers, is somehow now mystically reinterpreted as a low and shameful act of warlike imperialism.

We shake with shame with every Biafran that starves as if every human on this globe of ours is our personal responsibility.

We beat ourselves over the head with guilt because we somehow went wrong in raising our children. This increases our vulnerability to the few power hungry young "NOW" people who have been quick to exploit this adult idiocy.

There is no end to things we can feel guilty about. To start with we can feel guilty about killing all those Indians and taking their land. If we had somehow been "nicer" to those fine Communist they might not want to kill us so bad. If we hadn't built such an industrial country we wouldn't have all the problems of affluence. If we had only refrained from building all those blocks of houses in our cities for the workmen to live close to their jobs, we wouldn't have the slums of today.

Goodness knows, if we hadn't been so aggressive in our defense of freedom in South Vietnam and had the nerve to live up to our treaties with the people of South Vietnam, good old Uncle Ho Chi Minh might not have been so angry and fought us so hard. Shame, shame on us. It is all our guilt ridden fault! BULL!

Uncontrolled guilt leads a person or a nation into paroxysms

Special Report

Transition - a Reality

The transition from a Democratic administration in Richmond to a Republican administration is just beginning to sink in. Although no appointments have been announced to anything, there are a lot of state employees quaking in their shoes.

Still others already resigned to their fate, and have reportedly started cleaning out their desks, some of which contain mementos of many administrations gone by.

Linwood Holton, Governor-elect, has still not said just what personnel changes he will make immediately, but he has noted it will not take the form of wholesale slaughter. That, after all, would be foolhardy for the first Republican elected in 100 years, and one who must work with a predominantly Democratic legislature.

But obviously some major changes will be made. They are expected, and they will come. Holton is aware of the tightrope he walks with Democrats all around him waiting for his first misstep.

The first shock to some of those state employees is now over, and they are feeling the reality of things to come. Transition is difficult in this case because there just isn't any precedent in anyone's memory. As a matter of fact, not too many people are even sure how to accomplish it or what to do. They've just not had to face it before.

What was true on the Wednesday morning after election is still true, and it may yet prove to the single factor that reunites the Democratic Party in Virginia.

So far there are few, if any, measures being taken to reunite. In fact, even those jockeying for positions of importance and power are only most likely to kill each other off until the real new leader, whoever that may be, emerges.

The effect of the party that has been in power for a century will be felt on the local levels too, and the repercussions could be almost disastrous to some.

Already it is a sure thing that Holton will name more of his party members to electoral boards in localities. That, most assuredly, is expected. Some localities, who never knew what a Republican looks like will find them coming out of hiding, admitting their affiliation at last, and being appointees.

How long their current popularity lasts depends on reorganization and revamping of the Democrats.

Three choices seem to be available to the Democrats. They can come closer in thinking to the more liberal national party. They can return to the old line conservative thinking. Or they can try to find a middle-of-the-road. All three paths are treacherous, most especially the latter, which would appear to be the eventual solution.

Meanwhile let us not forget the new found strength of the Republicans. Whether Holton's election was a fluke or not, he is in, and the Democrats are out. And there's always next year's Congressional races, State Senate races and a host of local races. The GOP may not have all the strength it now appears, but you can bet your well-known bottom dollar they'll be saying they do, and as has been seen lately, lots of people listen to them.

Democrats are saying a real two-party system has not yet come to Virginia. They may well be absolutely correct, but unless they really pull together and regroup to their best advantage, the two-party system could not only become real, but could even swing the pendulum the other way in the GOP favor.

Our legal system in Virginia will have a changing face in the next little while also, it is strongly suspected. The General Assembly names the judges, and only enough, usually have been Democrats in their past when selected. Of course, they become non-partisan after elevation to the bench.

Surely the same Democratic Assembly will name the judges statewide, but let us remember that the GOP now hold enough seats in both Houses to force a wedge into the proceedings. On those recorded votes where a four-fifths vote is needed, the GOP could stymie a few issues of particular interest to Democrats unless the Democrats recognize a few Republican needs also.

All this is generally healthy to Virginia and to any state. Virginia has been fortunate enough to enjoy good, sound, progressive government in the recent past. The present situation can do no more than sharpen the wits of both parties and all candidates everywhere across the Old Dominion.

It would merely become the Democratic Party to take one step back, take a good look around at all the Republicans swarming their positions, then get busy repairing, retrenching and remaking old friends.

From Bank Runner to V.P.

Red Church Retires to Houseboat

For the past few years Edward H. "Red" Church has had some difficulty finding enough time to spend with his wife on their houseboat. He has been too busy being senior vice president of the Virginia Beach operations of First & Merchants National Bank. But all that changes on Nov. 30.

Church retires on that date after serving as the only president of the hometown bank that grew up and became part of F & M's statewide network in January 1966.

Banking was obviously Church's first love, and he says while he's ready to retire, he regrets leaving the bank that has been his home for just shy of 25 years.

Church, who reached his 55th birthday last Sunday, was born in Norfolk on Nov. 22, 1904. He gained the obvious nickname of "Red" in his earliest years while being educated in the Norfolk public schools. The name stuck, although that red hair is now a few shades darker, a little thinner and tinged with a little gray.

He started in the banking business at the old Virginia National Bank which later merged with the National Bank of Commerce. That was in May 1920, and his salary was a grand $35 a month.

Although he started at the very bottom as a runner he says it was quite an honor in those days to be accepted into the banking business, especially at the tender age of 15.

"I was a full-fledged gun-toting bank runner," he said. "Back in those days just about everyone carried a gun. I was more dangerous to myself than anybody else."

In October 1921 he moved to the old National Bank of Commerce as a runner (now again Virginia National Bank) at a small increase in pay. By 1923 when he left that job he had proven his worth and was making the superior salary of $50 a month.

"I used to go down the street with money bags over both shoulders and a gun strapped around my waist," he said. "But I don't think I could have gotten to that gun if I'd had to. He never had reason to find out."

Church left the banking business for what looked like greener pastures in 1923 and for the next three years held several jobs he didn't particularly care for, but in 1926, returned to the banking business.

"I just wanted to get back into the banking business," he said, "and when I saw a good chance, I did it."

He went to work with an industrial loan association in Norfolk, Southern Saving and Finance Co., and three months later was secretary of the corporation. He was working there at the time of the great stock market crash in 1929, but left in early 1930 for the position of assistant cashier at the Morris Plan Bank of Virginia, now known as The Bank of Virginia.

Church stayed there during the early years of the Depression, but just when times appeared to be the darkest in 1932 he went to work for Southern Bank of Norfolk. Just 15 days after he left his job at the Morris Plan Bank employees were laid off, salaries were cut, and further cuts were made later on.

"But I was lucky," said Church. "I moved just at the right time, and everytime I changed jobs I got a raise." He spent ten years with Southern Bank before being commissioned a Lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve in 1942 during World War I.

Due to illness he was hospitalized in October 1944. It was while he was in the hospital awaiting discharge that he joined with some of Virginia Beach's leading citizens to form the first hometown bank, which was named the Bank of Virginia Beach.

The five initial investors who worked with Church toward organization of the bank were the late Floyd E. Kellam, who became chairman of the board; Sidney S. Kellam, later chairman of the board and now chairman of the Virginia Beach board and a First & Merchants board member; the late Fred A. Haycox; Herbert A. Holt, Jr.; and former City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

When Church was discharged in January 1945 he began, with his five associates, selling stock, and the bank opened its doors on June 5, 1945, at 1802 Atlantic Ave., still a branch of F & M. The meager capital at the time was $150,000.

But less than six months after the first office opened the total resources had swelled to more than $2 million. In five years, it was $5 million; in ten, $8 million; at merger in 1963, $20 million, and by the end of 1965 when the merger with F & M took place, nearing the $30 million mark.

Church attributes the growth of the bank to the growth of Virginia Beach, Princess Anne County and the entire area. But most will agree that Church's guiding hand was responsible for much of that growth too.

By the time of the merger with F & M, the one office had grown to ten, its present complement, except for the main F & M office in downtown Norfolk. The offices were spread out in all sections of the city. The Laskin Road and Pacific Avenue office became headquarters of the growing operation in 1954. In 1955 the NAS Oceana branch was opened. In 1961 the Aragona office was opened. Since then a new building has been built on Kellam Road.

The year 1962 saw three new branches, at Robbins Corner, Dam Neck and at Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. In 1964 a branch was opened across from the present City Hall, and in 1965 two Norfolk branches, at Jamal Shopping Center and in the Selden Arcade were opened. Since that time also F & M has merged with three other branch banks in Chesapeake.

Church says he has enjoyed an excellent relationship with F & M since the merger. And it must be so, since many of the officers and directors journeyed to Virginia Beach last week to honor Church at a dinner at the Princess Anne Country Club. He was presented with a portrait of himself at the dinner. The portrait is now on display at the Laskin Road office.

Church has been married to the former Elizabeth Rountree of Norfolk for 40 years. They had one child, Lynne, now 25 and married to Neal S. McCoy of Washington, D.C. Mrs. McCoy is an attorney for the Federal Trade Commission.

Since 1952 Church has been chairman of the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission, which has helped replenish the sand supply on the oceanfront, and which under his chairmanship, has won national acclaim.

Said Church of the often maligned agency, "It's been a tough job all the way, but it's been worth it."

He is also a past president of the Virginia Beach Rotary Club, and at one time or another has belonged to nearly all civic and fraternal organizations in the city. For five years he was president of the old Virginia Beach Community Chest.

"They couldn't get any body else to do the job," he laughed. Red Church is quick to defend what he considers right and quick to criticize those he considers in the wrong. No reporter covering the Erosion Commission has escaped his wrath or his sharp tongue. But his smile is as quick as his temper, and the city of Virginia Beach is losing a fine businessman and a good friend when he retires.

"I think Virginia Beach has a grand future," he said. "I'll sit back now and watch it happen."

Church accepts the presentation of his portrait at the dinner at the Princess Anne Country Club, as his wife and daughter, Lynne McCoy, listen.

TVDC Re-Elects Kellam

Sidney S. Kellam was re-elected chairman of the Tidewater Virginia Development Council during the organization's annual meeting held last Friday night at Bennett's Creek Restaurant in Nansemond County.

Other officers re-elected included Robert C. Ray of Franklin, vice chairman; Shirley T. Holland of Windsor, vice president; Edwin W. Chittum of Chesapeake, treasurer; Heyward T. Denyes of Norfolk, assistant treasurer; and Thomas H. Willcox, Jr. of Norfolk, general counsel.

V. H. Nusbbaum, Jr. of Norfolk was elected secretary to succeed Albert C. Bartlett of Portsmouth. Nusbbaum's former office of assistant secretary was filled through the appointment of Mrs. Ruth H. Branson, a TVDC staff member. W. Fred Duckworth continues in the office of president and general manager.

Those attending last Friday's Council meeting were informed that TVDC advertisements in trade journals has resulted in obtaining 122 industrial prospects for the Tidewater area. The listing of 71 of these prospects has taken place since the Council's last executive meeting of Sept. 10.

Additional reports released during the meeting indicated that regional banks have pooled their resources to facilitate the handling of $5 million worth of industrial development revenue bonds, and that the Tidewater Small Business Investment Corporation had regional loans outstanding for new businesses and additional expansions in the amount of $1.3 million as of Oct. 31.

The TVDC, functioning as a business and industrial promotional organization, is comprised of 12 Tidewater Communities including Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake, Boykins, Windsor, Courtland, Wakefield, Franklin, Suffolk, Ivor, Smithfield and Nansemond County. Portsmouth ceased its TVDC affiliation as of last August.

Brenco, a major manufacturer of railroad roller bearings, has been aggressively diversifying its activities in related areas. The Company is now producing industrial bearings, forgings, and lubricant seals. While these products presently account for only a small part of the company's total volume of business, they are expected to become much more important in the next few years.

Meanwhile, the Company is experiencing an excellent year in its roller bearing business. Sales for the nine months ending Sept. 30, were up 64% to $15.8 million from $9.6 million in the corresponding period of 1968, while earnings per share were up 83% to $1.39 compared to $.76.

For the full year, we expect sales volume to exceed $20 million and earnings of $1.90 per share. This would compare to $13.9 million and $1.12 per share for fiscal 1968. The dividend was recently doubled to $.60.

The shares, selling at 17.3 times this year's expected earnings and at the lower end of their recent P/E range, seem attractive at this time for aggressive accounts seeking capital appreciation.

LaGiglia Recognized

Joseph L. LaGiglia of East Bay Shore Drive has received a unique recognition from the life underwriters' Association of Norfolk.

LaGiglia was one of two members of the Norfolk Association recognized last Friday, for his outstanding contribution to the life insurance business and to its policy holders in three areas. He was recognized as a member of the 1/2 Million Dollar Club of the Virginia Association—as a seven-year qualifier of the National Quality Award presented for outstanding persistency—and he was awarded the National Sales Achievement Award, a coveted award made to those life insurance men who perform outstanding sales results in a given year.

Classrooms Not Crowded

Would you believe that Virginia Beach classrooms are not as crowded this year as they were last year despite a 2,404 pupil increase?

The fact is that the pupil-teacher ratio in elementary schools in 1968 was 28.97 to one. This year it is 28.53 to one. In secondary schools the ratio was 21.1 to one last year and has dropped to 20.7 to one.

However, the pupil population increased from 41,345 to 43,688 (not including 61 additional students in kindergarten classes). "You can imagine the cost of hiring enough additional teachers to lower the ratio that much," commented School Supt. E. E. Brickell.

Brickell attributed the lower increase to two things. "It's a tribute to the foresight of the School Board and City Council and their planning since they're responsible for building schools and the continuing total commitment of Virginia Beach citizens to the excellent education of their youth."

Brickell said that some parents become upset as soon as a school reaches its rated capacity, as for instance, First Colonial whose rated capacity is 1725. "What the parents don't take into consideration is the number of students who are in the library, auditorium, gymnasium, cafeteria or study hall at any given time."

As to mobile classrooms, Brickell pointed out that they are often better than permanent ones because they are air conditioned and have new equipment and furniture. "We'll always need some because of the mobility of the population. No matter how well we plan ahead there's always going to be some school that has more students in September than expected."

Virginia Beach is currently the only city in the Tidewater area that has no schools on split shifts.

Pupil-teacher ratios by grade, comparing October 1968 with October 1969, are: Grade 1, 28.7 (1968) and 28.5 (1969); grade 2, 29.17 to 28.01; grade 3, 29.41 to 30.14; grade 4, 30.22 to 30.28; grade 5, 29.49 to 29.86; grade 6, 30.20 to 30.42; grade 7, 29.91 to 30.19; special education, 12.65 to 11.82; secondary schools, 21.1 to 20.7. "This documents the value of our projected enrollment," said Brickell.

Contos Gains Membership

John J. Contos of Virginia Beach, with a yield of 154 bushels of corn per acre, has been entered in the 1969 DeKalb 200 Bushel Club.

His entry was mechanically harvested and verified by an impartial third party. The yield came from a field of XL-374.

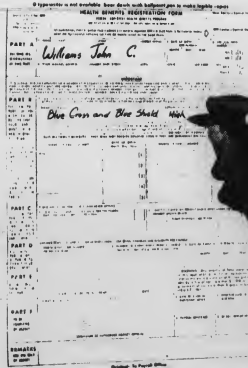

He used such progressive management practices as thick planting, good weed and insect control, heavy fertilization and a high population hybrid to attain his yield.

He planted on May 2 in 40 inch rows at a seeding rate of 24,000 plants per acre. His fertilizer program included 312 lbs. of nitrogen, 100 lbs. of phosphate and 100 lbs. of potash.

The DeKalb 200 Bushel Club is primarily educational in nature. Its purpose is to promote discussion and idea exchange, along with some friendly competition, among the nation's leading corn farmers. The program attempts to encourage practices which will help farmers gain the maximum amount of net profit from each acre of corn.

Aviation Electrician's Mate 2, c. Ronald E. Gentry, USN, husband of the former Miss Diane Lear of Bailey Lane, and Personnelman 3, c. Glen Feeback, USN, husband of the former Miss Deanna J. Caudell of Michigan Avenue, are serving with Attack Squadron Seventy-five (VA-75) aboard the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga in the Mediterranean.

Why should I switch to Blue Cross and Blue Shield?

Fifty-eight percent of all Federal Employees have Blue Cross and Blue Shield. This year we expect even more because of all the new benefits added to our program since the last Open Season.

Whether it's benefits... rates... or service, there are many good reasons why you should take a look at the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Federal Employee Program. Today, more than 1,500,000 employees see it as their "health club."

At your installation or agency personnel office you can switch to Blue Cross and Blue Shield this Open Season. Complete Standard Form 2809 with the appropriate Enrollment Code Numbers, 101 or 102 for High Option or 104 or 105 for Low Option. Coverage for yourself as well as family dependents is available.

Open Season closes November 28th, so act promptly for your preference.

of irrational attitudes and behavior. One of the best examples of this type mass hysteria can be seen in some of the actions of our Washington "flock." To hear some of that bunch of guilty politicians, boy are some of them guilty, our country is the aggressor in every trouble spot in the world. Some of our demagogic politicians are beating the drums and playing a tune on our guilt complex.

You will always find the unscrupulous who want to tap and use our every weakness. Yes sir, our guilt-tappers are with us in Washington. They circulate all over the place using our press, radio, TV and our college campuses for their national masochism for doomsday purposes. They want to rule and they don't seem to care what happens to the country. Some leaders! If they would just stop running for office long enough to do something for the country, we might come out of this guilt spin we are in.

Guilt has, in minor doses, been the adrenalin that triggers our reform and progress. In massive doses it can not be controlled and is dangerous. We must resign the proud confidence of our basically good intention and work for our national survival. If we don't, our enemies won't have to bury us; we will do it in our own guilt.

Her Veil Was Made for a Queen

Susan Day and Mrs. Evie Myatt spread out the mantilla.

Susan Day will walk down the aisle of the Naval Academy Chapel at Annapolis Friday in a wedding veil fit for a queen.

In fact, the veil was made nearly 70 years ago just for a queen—Queen Wilhelmina of The Netherlands. Susan will be the tenth bride in her family to wear the mantilla of exquisite crown point court lace.

The lace was one of three pieces originally made by hand for the wedding of Queen Wilhelmina to Duke Hendrick of Mecklenburg-Schwerin on Feb. 7, 1901. She had her choice of the three pieces and selected one of the others. The remaining two were sold. Queen Wilhelmina, who was born in 1880, ruled from 1890-1948 when she abdicated in favor of her daughter, Juliana.

It just so happened that Susan's grandmother was spending the summer in Europe with her mother and two of her sisters. Her mother purchased the lace for the three sisters (an older sister was already married). It became known as the Kenefick family veil.

Back in the United States the lace went on display at Marshall Field, a large department store in Chicago, as it was the first piece of crown point court lace brought into this country. It also was one of the last made.

The veil, when it is not being used, is kept in a vault at the home of Susan's aunt, Mrs. Charles Vernon Jones, in California. Mrs. Jones not only wore it herself, but she has records of all the other brides who wore it along with the types of gowns they wore.

Susan almost didn't wear the veil. When she bought her wedding gown, she was advised by the store not to attempt to wear anything that old. However, Susan went to Mrs. Evie Myatt, bridal consultant at Rose Hall, who told her not to consider wearing anything else. "I really talked myself out of a sale," laughed Mrs. Myatt. Rose Hall attached the veil to a standard so it would fit on Susan's head. The standard is fixed so that it can be removed after the wedding.

ing with no damage to the delicate lace.

While attaching the standard, two loops were discovered along the side. Their purpose was not realized until Susan tried on the veil. The loops fasten to the buttons on the sleeve of the wedding gown. Thus the weight of the lace does not pull it backwards on the bride's head and it insures the proper draping of the veil around her face and shoulders.

The Italians were the first to produce lace on a commercial basis in the late 17th century. Later, Brussels became the lace center of Europe. Fine lace is still being made on a limited basis for those willing to pay the price.

Crown point lace derives its name from the fine workmanship and delicacy of the work and from the crown pattern worked into it, just as rose point lace has more of a rose or star pattern. The finer pieces, in which much pride was involved, often had crown patterns superimposed on top of each other.

Susan's husband-to-be is Navy Ensign Patrick Timothy Welsh of McLean, Va. He graduated from the Naval Academy in June and is now attending a special school in Alabama. In January they will move to Long Beach, Calif., where he will be assigned to the USS Decatur. "It's strange," said Susan, "the room where we will have the reception is called Decatur Hall." They met at a Midshipman's Ball at Little Creek.

Susan was born in California but has lived here for the past five years. Her father, Samuel S. Day, is East Coast supervisor for McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The veil isn't the only piece of valuable lace in the family. There is also a baptismal robe made by nuns in Ireland which is also passed through the family.

"You know, I'd really be interested in knowing what happened to the third piece of lace," commented Mrs. Day.

Dickie and Pinkie (wearing a ruana) look over some of their items with Mrs. Harrington.

Unn-Common Shoppe Is Just That

Thee Unn-Common Shoppe is definitely uncommon.

It is a new shop just across Virginia Beach Blvd. from Willis Wayside and just east of Sullivan's at Thalia, and features mostly craft items now, but the partners would like to place more emphasis on decorating accessories in the future.

In addition, the shop is offering several free craft classes at night. Among those taking the classes are two of the partners in the business, Pinkie and Dickie Skeen who, besides working at the shop nights and weekends, also hold down full time jobs during the day. Pinkie works at the Naval Supply Center and Dickie is a surveyor with Talbot and Associates.

The third member of the group is Alberta Harrington, who started the shop. "My son was in business with another fellow in the building. This part was empty. I started it with the idea of helping people of limited means. I called the Golden Age Clubs and nursing homes and offered to take their handmade articles on consignment."

Right now the shop is filled with Christmas items. In fact a class in Christmas decoration will be started if there are enough interested in all the classes so they will be familiar with the techniques.

On a wall in the shop hangs a ruana, which is like a poncho, and comes from Columbia. They were the Skeens' entry into the business. "I was selling them and came into the shop," said Dickie. "Then I became interested in it." The ruanas come in a variety of colors of wool in both solids and plaids.

Also imported are a number of paintings from Italy. Other gift items include decoupage plaques, knit purses and hats, leather good, lamps, hand made doll furniture (at very reasonable prices) from Tennessee, ceramics by Anne Harris of Lynnhaven, hand tooled jewelry by Michael Misner who can set stones in any type of mounting and has a selection of stones to choose from. You really have to stroll through the shop and see it for yourself as trying to describe everything is impossible.

Dickie added, while his wife gave him a warning look, that he would like to add some psychedelic items. "Not too many," he said. "We don't want to scare away the older customers."

Dickie also has a dream of someday opening a decorating shop that would include a number of small shops inside a large one. "It would have one room for imports, one for leather, one for lamps, you know, anything you can imagine to accent a room. If anyone has any suggestions for improving the shop, we'll listen," concluded Dickie.

'Tis the Season To Be Jolly?

I've got gold spray paint under my fingernails. And there's green wax on my kitchen counter.

That was just part of the mess involved in making some egg shell Christmas tree ornaments. "Encouraged" by the kids, I undertook the project over the weekend.

First there is the problem of getting the eggs out of the shells without breaking the shells. Incidentally, this is only to be undertaken if your family likes lots of scrambled eggs. The easiest way, I discovered by trial and error—mostly error—is to punch a small hole in the side of the shell with something sharp like an ice pick. Then enlarge the hole slightly. Next, break the egg yolk with the ice pick and pour it out of the hole. Then rinse the shell.

My next step, whether it was right or wrong, was to spray several of the outside of the shells with gold paint. Only it wasn't fast drying paint. In fact it was downright retarded. Actually, I was using two colors of gold. One can dried quickly and the other didn't.

Then the messy part really began. To strengthen the egg shells I poured melted paraffin inside and sloshed it around. I got tired of just white, so I decided to add some of the kids' old crayons to color it. There was more green than anything else, so that's what I decided on. Would you believe that the "wash off" type crayons also will not melt? Anyhow, they won't. I finally fished the pieces out and put some more in—another kind that did melt. It turned out quite pretty—even on my counter. I had newspapers down, but I was also surrounded by three kids who wanted to be in on everything.

About that time the glitter got knocked over right into a puddle of soft wax. Three kids "departed" from the kitchen.

Next came the hard part. That was cutting the holes in the eggs larger with manicure scissors without cracking the shells. That accomplished, the only thing left was to trim them with rick rack and braid.

The gang reappeared at the kitchen door but did not come in. "Mommy," said the eight-year-old, "why didn't you make them some color besides green?"

"There's still one little doll left," said the six-year-old. "And I want a snow scene."

"Put some sparkly stuff on the outside of the next ones," suggested the five-year-old.

"Next Christmas," said Mommy.

Wilson with some of the women who attended the meeting.

Essentials for Peace Outlined

Raymond Wilson, executive secretary emeritus of the Friends Committee on National Legislation, which lobbies for peace and poverty legislation in Washington, told a group of women last week that there are five essentials to world peace: Outright renunciation of war, world organization that is effective, world disarmament, world development and world conciliation.

"Instead of building stockades the world has got to break through the barriers," said the Quaker who spoke to the women at the Friends Meeting House in one of several appearances in Tidewater last week.

"Do you know any Christian way to kill a man? Do you know anyone wise enough to play God? Christians began to support and bless war in the time of the Emperor Constantine. Churches now are not exerting 10% of what they ought to be in social improvement."

Wilson said that a world organization is needed to transfer conflicts from the battlefield to the conference table. "The United States is a long way from making the United Nations the cornerstone in establishing world peace," said Wilson. "We downgraded the U.N. as an effective forum for peace by the exclusion of China. We need to strengthen the peace making machinery and use the U.N. more in world development. We (the U.S.) could set a better example."

He added that in Korea the purpose of war was better but the methods were the same. As another example he pointed out the Middle East. "There have been three wars between the

Seasoning Is Fine Art

A century ago the French art critic, Hippolyte Taine, acclaimed Belgian cooking as "the best in Europe." Today many connoisseurs of fine foods, widely traveled, agree that this is still true. The Belgians' reputation as hosts was confirmed two thousand years ago by Julius Caesar who found them to be "the most hospitable of all the Gauls."

Belgium's famous dishes are intriguingly spiced as are most of the world's great culinary masterpieces. Waterzooi, a type of chicken fricasse, is seasoned with parsley, tarragon, nutmeg, cloves, bay leaf and onion. Their great beef stew -- Carbonnade Flamande -- is cooked with beer spiced with onion, garlic, nutmeg, thyme and pepper. Onion, pepper, allspice and marjoram give aroma to boudin blanc, or white pork sausage. Speculoos is a Santa-shaped cookie baked at Christmas time and it is spiced with cinnamon and nutmeg.

The Belgians have lots of fine fresh fruits and vegetables, with black grapes and endive well-known examples. The coast abounds in fish and seafood and there are "colleges" for professional fishermen. Cheese, butter and cream are plentiful and account for the richness of Belgian dishes. Most important of all, Belgians have the highest regard for cooking as a fine art and eating as one of life's chief delights.

Home economists of the American Spice Trade Association suggest these tested recipes for Beef Carbonnade and Smothered Potatoes as two typical specialties of Belgium.

BEUF CARBONNADE (Beef Stew Cooked in Beer)

- 1/2 cup onion flakes
- 2-1/2 lbs. lean beef, cut into 2-inch cubes
- 1/3 cup flour
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine, divided
- 1 can (12 fl. oz.) beer
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. instant garlic powder
- 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg
- 1/4 tsp. ground thyme
- 1/4 tsp. ground black pepper

Peace

Israelis and the Arabs and still nothing is solved after 25 years of hostilities."

On the subject of disarmament, he pointed out that $120 billion was spent on armament in 1962 and it was increased to $182 billion in 1967. He said that one of the most successful disarmament in history was negotiated by the U.S. and Canada along their borders after the war of 1812. He said that the first formal disarmament talks were held at the Hague Conference in 1899. He pointed out that there was some agreement in the Antarctic Treaty, on the ban on weapons in outer space and the Test Ban Treaty. "We have military alliances with 44 countries and more than a million troops stationed abroad."

Wilson pointed out the senselessness of paying farmers not to grow food when half the world is hungry. "We're soon going to have a very serious race between food and population," he commented in stating the need for world development.

He said that a massive reconciliation is needed to seek cooperation and to seek a spiritual and moral basis of peace.

"As individuals, we should all do more to encourage the government to do its share."

Wilson also spoke to the Human Relations Council and the Mid-Atlantic Federation of Temple Youth during his stay.

Beef Stew, cooked with beer and pleasingly spiced is one of Belgium's world-famous dishes.

Mix onion flakes with 1/3 cup water; let stand 10 minutes to rehydrate. Dredge beef cubes with flour; set aside. In Dutch oven or heavy skillet melt 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add rehydrated onion and saute, stirring until lightly browned. Remove onion from skillet and set aside. Add remaining 2 tablespoons butter to skillet. Add beef cubes and brown well on all sides. Return onions to skillet. Add remaining ingredients. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 1-1/2 hours or until meat is tender. Yield: 6 portions.

BELGIAN SMOTHERED POTATOES

- 6 large potatoes
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 3 tbsp. dry white wine
- 1 tsp. instant onion powder
- 3/4 to 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. coarse ground black pepper
- 1 tbsp. parsley flakes

Peel and quarter potatoes. In a heavy skillet melt butter. Add potatoes and remaining ingredients except parsley flakes. Cover tightly. Cook over low heat for 45 minutes; remove cover; add parsley flakes. If cooking liquid remains, turn heat high so that moisture evaporates. Yield: 6 portions.

GIFT IDEA--Simple-to-make placemats of striped cotton denim take on a festive air with the imaginative use of cotton rick rack. To play up the stripes, stitch on contrasting rows of Coats & Clark rick rack in jumbo and medium sizes.

Secret to Success Is Trimming

When it comes to making gifts for Christmas, you don't have to be the most talented seamstress on the block. If you can stitch a straight seam and do simple sewing by hand or machine, you can turn out gifts that are both appealing and useful.

According to the National Cotton Council, the trick is to make simple items... then apply cotton rick rack in imaginative new ways.

Take placemats, for example. Make simple rectangle shapes from bold-striped cotton denim or sailcloth, allowing a half-yard of fabric for each mat. Play up the stripes by stitching on rows of rick rack in varying sizes and contrasting colors. Apply the rick rack rows directly to the stripes, using jumbo size rick rack on the widest stripes, and medium size on smaller stripes.

Another item that's easy to make and costs only pennies is a decorative apron. Choose a half-yard of any dainty floral-printed cotton and make a simple apron by gathering it to a waistband and ties cut from a contrasting solid fabric. To add interest and color, cut a diamond-shaped hem and outline with medium size rick rack in the same color as the waistband. Complete the design with another diamond pattern in baby-size rick rack... overlapping the larger motif.

Gifts for a tiny baby are always fun to make, and one of the simplest is a reversible bassinet cover. All you need is a yard of quilted cotton gingham with solid color backing, jumbo and baby-size cotton rick rack, and two-inch wide bias hem facing.

On the gingham side, attach jumbo rick rack to the quilting stitches to form diamond-shaped motifs. Then apply baby rick rack in another diamond pattern overlapping the first.

Suds Relax Tense Teens

Teens who can't snooze off on the night before a big test, should try a "lullaby" bath to help bring on sleep.

First fix the bed so you can hop between the covers right afterwards, if you're hungry, have a light snack. Then, in a tub of mildly warm water, sud's slowly with a washcloth.

Lie back and let the mild temperature soothe your nerves. Blot dry. Then slip into bed and you're half asleep.

Is the Impression Good or Bad?

As much care should be used in choosing a place to hang a mirror as is used in hanging a picture.

When you hang a portable or framed mirror, use the same methods as those used for pictures, advises Miss Katherine L. Habel, extension specialist in home furnishings at Virginia Tech.

But, remember not to place the mirror where the sun will strike it, and don't hang it over a radiator as heat causes deterioration of the backing, she added.

Unusual effects can be had if reflections are carefully considered before the mirror is placed, Miss Habel pointed out.

Repair of damage to the mirror coating requires stripping off all of the reflective surface and resilvering the glass. Usually it is less expensive to have new mirror glass put in the frame.

"But, if you have a fine antique frame with the old glass in it, do not change the glass," Miss Habel suggested. "It will reduce the value of the mirror and subtly affect its beauty. Old mirror glass was less mechanically perfect than it is today. The irregularities in the old glass and the graying effect of time are part of its charm."

P. A. Plaza

The Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club voted to again sponsor the Annual Christmas Decorations Contest in Princess Anne Plaza with the Plaza Civic League and the Bow Creek Garden Club. President Marion Forscher presided over the business meeting with Mrs. Mattie Snead and Mrs. Dorothy Goss serving as hostesses.

Lynnhaven Colony

A coffee will be held on Dec. 2 at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Rosalyn Boxley on Burnt Mill Road. All prospective members and interested persons are invited to attend. Miss Joann Brett, Extension Agent in Home Economics, will present a program on Christmas Decorations at the coffee. If interested in attending call either 340-0670 or 340-7743.

The club members also brought food and money to help provide Thanksgiving dinner for a needy family. Mrs. Froehler announced that the club would have a special meeting on Dec. 8th at the home of Mrs. Jean Dunn to make Christmas pine cone tray decorations for Holmes Convalescent Home.

Making artificial Christmas arrangements for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach was the program for the Lynnhaven Colony Garden Club meeting held in the home of Mrs. Ethel Pitts with Mrs. Marguerite Parke as co-hostess.

Good used clothing was collected and given to the Virginia Beach Welfare Department. Gifts were also brought to participate in "Operation Reindeer" for patients at Central and Eastern State Hospitals.

The tri-color ribbon was won by Mrs. Hilda Henish. Blue ribbons were won by Mrs. Lola Condon, Mrs. Parke, Mrs. Pitts, Mrs. Thelma Ralston and Mrs. Marianna Snead. Blue ribbons in horticulture went to Mrs. Pitts, Mrs. Condon, Mrs. Jane Hanson, Mrs. Parke and Mrs. Lucile Waters.

Thoroughgood Jrs.

The Thoroughgood High School Garden Club had a demonstration on plant propagation at its November meeting at the home of Kay Dinsmore. The program was given by Mrs. Mack Glass.

The members plan to go caroling during the holidays.

Holiday fashions from Rose Hall climaxed the fashion show staged at the Cavalier Junior Woman's Club fashion show and card party last week at the Commodore Country Club.

Thanksgiving Service Set

A Beach Borough community Thanksgiving service will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at Gallilee Episcopal Church.

The message will be brought by the Rev. Wadell Waters, pastor of First Baptist Church. Music will be furnished by the host church. The public is invited.

New Jewelry Glitters

A woman likes to glitter, to sparkle. It's part of her femininity to glow and be noticed. No matter how muted or moody clothes become, glitter is always in style. The fashion quotient depends on how the designer uses glitter.

The Cadoro 1970 collection of jewelry is a perfect example of the contemporary approach to fashion-cum-glitter.

It stresses new types of jewelry, to be worn new ways. Clusters of gleaming pins are meant to be worn in the ultra-smart upswept or back cascading coiffures. Inch-wide rings of pave rhinestones are studded with baroque pearls.

Juniors Handed Defeat

By Mike Raper

Kellam High School

The Junior Class of Floyd E. Kellam High School received a minor setback Friday night when the Seniors won the sixth annual Powder Puff football game, 14 to 6. Both teams fought a hard game, but the Seniors used past experience to overwhelm the valiant Junior team.

During the game, for those who chose to forget the game, there was the antics of Junior cheerleaders John Sachon, Rick Futrell, Steve Currin, Craig Davis and Roger Seymour, and Senior cheerleaders Steve Thompson, John Powers, Scott Houston, Soc Williams and Mike Sawyer.

At halftime, the "lovely" Larry Phelps was crowned Powder Puff Queen out of a field that included Jerry Earls, Ron Thompson, Richard Davis, Mike Smith and LaSalle Wallace.

Vepco Elects Director

The Board of Directors of the Virginia Electric and Power Company has announced the election of Ashton C. Jones, Jr., partner in the firm of George H. Rucker Company of Arlington, Virginia, as a director of the company.

Jones, a native of Virginia, is a graduate of Virginia Military Institute and attended George Washington University and National University Law School. He is president of George H. Rucker Mortgage Corporation and George H. Rucker Development Corporation.

Oceana Plans Service

A special ecumenical service of thanksgiving will be held at the Naval Air Station Oceana Chapel of the Good Shepherd at 10 a.m. on Thanksgiving Day.

A unique service of special music and thanksgiving is being planned. The Commanding Officer, Capt. William A. Schroeder, Jr., will read "The President's Thanksgiving Day Proclamation," and the scripture lesson. The Catholic and Protestant choirs will combine to present special music.

A cordial invitation is extended to both the military and civilian communities to worship at the station chapel on this day of national thanksgiving. The station nursery, located just behind the chapel, will be available without charge to those families with small children.

Duck season on Back Bay came in with a "bang". I say this because at 6:30 a.m. on opening day I was aroused from a sound sleep from the sound of guns out on the Bay.

When Don Hinchey & I arrived at the Headquarters it looked as if all of Virginia Beach was hunting, according to the cars and trucks parked out front. We put our boat overboard and started out into the cold morning.

As the day truned out a few had fair luck. Henry Ashley, Joe Dixon Sr. and Junior had seven ducks and three coots or blue peters.

Sgt. Clark Whitehurst of Va. Beach Police, his father, Levy, and Clark's son, Robert, 5 left at 5 a.m. to hunt at Knotts Island. Robert was doing fine until the return trip when he fell asleep on the front seat of the truck. Clark & Levy got their limit, plus 2 1/2 coot apiece.

New Hunting Area Opens

The Virginia Game Commission has announced that an estimated 900 acres in Back Bay, which was formerly known as the privately operated Barbour's Hill hunting lodge, has now been opened for public use.

According to Charles Gilchrist, Game Commission biologist supervisor, a total of nine duck blinds are already in the area and others are planned for construction in the future. Gilchrist indicates these include cove and point blinds which will be used on a rotating basis of four blinds in use daily.

Shallow water near the blinds will require hunters to wear hip boots in placing decoys and retrieving ducks which they have downed. Hunting is restricted to the blinds, and officials point out that any hunters flushing birds from the marshes could be found in violation of the law.

The area can only be reached by motoring along the beaches, conditions of the roads in the area require the use of four-wheel drive vehicles. Therefore hunting permits will be issued only to those persons who have such type vehicles available to them.

The property is owned by the Virginia State Park Service, and a daily fee of $3 is charged for the use of a two-man blind.

Reservations are now being taken and hunting permits are being issued by Otto Halstead, manager for the Trojan and Pocomonas areas.

Service Planned On Thanksgiving

A Thanksgiving Day service, including a period for expressions of gratitude by members of the congregation, will be held at First Church of Christ, Scientist on Nov. 27.

The public is welcome to attend the hour-long service which starts at 11 a.m. in the church, at 209-20th St.

Turkey Clash to Close Record Books

Virginia Beach high school football teams are out of the running as far as the standings statewide are concerned, but Virginia Beach arch rival this year and new Eastern District champion Norview still has one game to play.

The game is an important one for Norview, and it is just as important for Norview's opponent in the game, Great Bridge.

Great Bridge currently is ranked No. 1 in the state, following Hopewell's loss to seventh-ranked Douglas Freeman. Norview is ranked 8th in the state. The winner of the clash between the two teams on Thanksgiving Day will represent South Tidewater in a regional playoff on the Peninsula with either Hampton or Newport News.

The Peninsula's team in the playoff will also be decided on Thanksgiving Day when top rivals Hampton and Newport News meet. Hampton is undefeated on the season and Newport News has lost one, Hampton's Crabbers rate just behind Great Bridge in state standings. Newport News is just out of the top 10 in the standings.

Two names stand out in the Norview-Great Bridge tilt. Lora Hinton of Great Bridge has been the sparkplug of the team. His lowest scoring effort in any game this year was two points against Kellam when he sat out the first half with a bruised knee. On the season he has 1,117 yards in 149 carries, scoring 128 points. And he's only a sophomore.

Larry Stephy of Norview needs only 10 points to tie the state scoring leader, John Rainey of Tazewell. He now has 150 to Rainey's 160, and Tazewell's season is over. Hinton ranks fourth behind Robert Wiltshire of Hermitage, whose season is also over. Should the local game be high scoring one or even a one-sided affair, the state scoring champion could also be settled.

In the only other Turkey day game in the area Maury and Granby clash at Foreman Field in a renewal of the rivalry, now 30 years old. Granby has already clinched second-place in Eastern District standings and Maury is third. Kellam, Cox and First Colonial take the next three spots in that order, followed by Lake Taylor, Princess Anne, Kempsville, Bayside, and Booker T. in that order.

In the only action last weekend involving a Virginia Beach team an overzealous First Colonial 11 lost to Granby 14-2. A fumble and an intercepted pass told the scoring story for Granby. All the Patriots could eke out was a safety in the third quarter.

The Pats were unable to penetrate beyond the Granby seven. Offensively it was not a strong game for either team, but defense for both was outstanding. The Patriots ended the season with a disappointing 6-3-2 record, after being pre-season picks to challenge Norview's obvious superiority in the Eastern District. Last year the two teams tied for the District championship.

SUN predictions this year were a little worse for wear, with 30 correct and 15 wrong. Eight of those wrong predictions incidentally came on errant picks regarding the surprising Kellam Knights, who played ho and cold football to a 6-4 season. It was enough to make the SUN prognosticator shudder. But we'll try again next year, as will Virginia Beach teams.

Oceana Jets Take Football Title

With 55 seconds left in the game, the Oceana Jets scored on a five-yard pass from H. Whitfield to N. Myles to beat CRUDESANT 26 to 20 and take the 5th Naval District touch Football Championship. The game was played at Little Creek Amphibious Base.

The Oceana team jumped to a quick lead. On the third play from scrimmage, quarterback H. Whitfield scampered 45 yards around end for a score. With the extra point, the score was 7 to 0. Several minutes later, a bad snap from the Jet center gave CRUDESANT a two-point safety.

In the second quarter Whitfield unleashed a 40-yard pass to R. Clatterback for the second Jet Score. CRUDESANT came back with a strong drive to the Oceana three-yard line. The Jet defense tightened up and D. Worth intercepted on a CRUDESANT third down pass play to go the length of the field for a touchdown. The Jets led at halftime 19 to 0.

CRUDESANT fought back in the second half. Two strong drives for touchdowns made the score 19 to 14. Early in the fourth quarter they took the lead 20 to 19 on a 20-yard run.

Then with less than a minute in the game and a fourth down "do or die" situation, Whitfield connected to Myles on a five-yard pass play for the winning score.

Virginia Military Institute second classmen (juniors) will be in the spotlight next weekend when the Class of 1971 stages the colorful ceremony of its Ring Figure dance.

Among those receiving their rings in the Ring ceremony will be two Virginia Beach residents. Cadet J. Stephen Gray, of 542 Southside Rd., will escort Miss Linda Sue McKemy, of Lexington. Cadet Michael M. Strickler, of Linbay Drive, will escort Miss Doris Gale Fauber, of 50th Street.

Juvenile Court

Virginia Beach Juvenile Court

Case Summation Nov. 14 to 20.

The court had hearings on 55 juvenile petitions which concerned persons accused of violating state laws or city ordinances. Included in these hearings were 16 cases involving felonies, 13 of which were continued to future dates, one ended in a period of probation, and the remaining two were reduced to simple assault.

Other cases which the court settled involved 34 on traffic law violations and four on family domestic problems. There were five cases of parental non-support during the above calendar dates.

Count to Plan Streets

A continuing traffic count is being conducted throughout the city of Virginia Beach to determine what improvements may be necessary to assist in moving increasingly heavy traffic through the resort city.

According to Reeves Johnson, city traffic chief, the traffic count will serve two purposes.

One phase of the program concerns traffic counts at various locations in the Beach Borough. Johnson says counts are being conducted along 21st and 22nd Streets, Laskin Road, Virginia Beach Boulevard, and the northern end of Atlantic Avenue in the vicinity of 82nd and 83rd Streets.

The information received from these check points, according to Johnson, will be used to determine an approximate normal flow of traffic through these sections and thus hopefully determine what the traffic increase might be during what is considered the tourist season. Johnson also indicated the city is working in conjunction with the State Highway Commission in making traffic counts on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway. This information will be used to determine what additional improvements might be needed on the expressway.

Sedaka Appears at Sands

Neil Sedaka, popular recording artist and composer, opened Tuesday, at the White Sands Dinner Club for a two week engagement.

Sedaka has sold more than 20 million records throughout the world and has recorded in seven languages. His best sellers include "Stairway to Heaven," "You Mean Everything to Me," "Run Samson Run," "Calendar Girl" and "Breaking Up Is Hard to Do". His latest recording, "Star Crossed Lovers," won him gold records in Canada and Australia.

As a composer, Sedaka writes for the greatest names in the entertainment field including Frank Sinatra, Nancy Wilson, Dinah Washington, Bobby Darin, Johnny Mathis and Bobby Vinton. His most recent score, "Working on a Groovy Thing," was recorded by the 5th Dimension and was another million seller.

Sedaka began his career as a concert pianist and was selected by Arthur Rubinstein as the best pianist in the New York City High Schools in 1956. This led to a four year scholarship at the Juilliard School of Music. The multi-talented entertainer has starred at the London Palladium, the Olympia Theatre in Paris and every major nightclub in this country and abroad. His movie credits include "Instant Love" with Rossano Brazzi and Rhonda Fleming, "The Devil's Model" and "Where the Boys Are". He also penned the entire score for "Where the Boys Are". Currently Sedaka is collaborating with Alan J. Lerner on a Broadway musical.

Show time at the White Sands is at 9 and 11 p.m. nightly, except Monday. There is a $3 cover charge.

Sedaka Singers To Perform

The Princess Anne High School Madrigal Singers will present two concerts at Pembroke Mall on Thanksgiving Day.

The well-known singers will perform at 1:30 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Then on Friday, Nov. 28, Santa Claus and all his helpers will arrive for nearly a month-long stay at Santa Claus cottage at Pembroke Mall.

Hans Zaunmayr (center), general manager of the Coral Harbour Club in Nassau, chats with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Courain (left) of Travel House of Virginia, Inc., 3500 Virginia Beach Blvd., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ellison of Chesapeake Travel and Tours, Inc., Easton, Md., in the gardens of the Club. Mr. and Mrs. Courain and Mr. and Mrs. Ellison were among a group of travel agents on a study tour of Nassau, Freeport and the resort islands.

Golden Agers Celebrate

The Lynnhaven Golden Age Club sponsored by the Virginia Beach Recreation Department held its annual banquet at the Seatack Elementary School, Friday night, under the leadership of Mrs. Cherry Sawyer. The Princess Anne Plaza 50

Plus Club, its president, Mrs. Margaret Stearns, and members, Mrs. Sara P. Cason, the president of the Princess Anne Area Golden Age Club, and its members, Mrs. Uola Hite, president of the Atlantic Park Club and some of its members, and others from Virginia Beach, Norfolk, and Portsmouth were guests.

Miss Ida Benjamin, Mrs. Hazel Stone, Charles Williams, sang solo with Bernard Williams piano.

11-Hour Pop Gala Scheduled

Tidewater's very first Pop Festival will be held on Thanksgiving Day at the Virginia Beach Drive-In Theatre on Laskin Road near Hilltop. The festival, which is expected to attract a full house, will feature 11 top-name national groups and two local troupes.

Several of the groups are hard rock and roll aggregations, but the 11-hour gala will feature a variety of music running the full spectrum, except for classical, according to a spokesman for Virginia Booking Agency, who is responsible for the event.

Three of the groups, the Cuff Links, Steam and Mother Love, currently have hit records in the top ten on the pop charts.

The other groups which will participate are Pacific Gas and Electric, The Grand Funk Railroad, Rhinoceros, Raven, Almond Brothers, Sweet Rain and the two local groups, Rooth and Headstone Circus.

A $50,000 sound system has been installed for the festival, and spectators will view the proceedings either from their cars or near the stage.

The booking agency spokesman said that such festivals have been highly successful around the country, and that if the Virginia Beach one is as successful as he hopes a much larger one will be planned in the spring.

Groups for this festival are coming to Virginia Beach from Canada, as well as from New York, California and Florida, to name only a few places. Spectators are expected from all over eastern Virginia and North Carolina.

Bill Goffred and Wayne Crawford take to the Wedgewood Theatre stage in Williamsburg as the California bound brother and the dark young son who stays to make his father's farm, and wife, his own in the Eugene O'Neill masterpiece, "Desire Under the Elms," playing nightly Wednesday through Saturday till Dec. 6.

BADGES & BANTER

By Les Lehigh

It seems only fitting on this Thanksgiving Day eve to suggest that each of us pause for a moment and reflect on our individual situation in life, especially in light of many daily references being made to our living in "troubled times".

While some of us may not be entirely satisfied with our present status in life, our reflections may bring us to the conclusion that many others are less fortunate than we. In making a comparison of what we do have and what we feel we have been deprived of the final analysis may lead each of us to the realization that we truly do have a lot to be thankful for.

TAHB Installs Howard

David A. Howard of the Larmore Organization was installed as president of the Tidewater Association of Home Builders for the year 1970 at the annual President's Ball. Congressman Thomas N. Downing was the speaker of the evening and conducted the installation of officers and directors. Other officers installed were Bernard Krill vice president, Bernard Krill; second vice president, C. Roy Kelley; secretary, Douglas Talbot; and treasurer, Doyle E. Hull.

New members of the Board of Directors installed were: James Blackford, Nelson Davidson, John Digges, Fred Liebold and Ted Schlossman.

Representative Attends School

James J. Crowling, Jr. of Virginia Beach, representative for the Nationwide Insurance Companies in Norfolk, recently completed a three-week Career Training School at the Ramada Presidential Motor Inn at Lynnhaven, Va.

The three-week school is designed to help an agent to render greater professional service for his policyholders upon his return. This program, one of a series of training courses held periodically by Nationwide, began on Nov. 2 and concluded Nov. 21, 1969.

Airman John W. Monroe, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Monroe of Lynnhaven Drive, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., for training in aircraft maintenance.

Art Display Ends Thurs.

Mary Alice Veazie of Portsmouth is "Artist of the Week" at DeCor House, 1788 Virginia Beach Blvd.

Her art will be on display through Thursday, Nov. 27 at the new shop which features different Tidewater artists weekly.

Mrs. Veazie has studied and taught art and has had a number of one-man shows. She has exhibited works in the Sears Traveling Show, Contemporary Southern Art at Weatherspoon Art Gallery in Greensboro, N. C., the Irene Leache Memorial Exhibition in Norfolk, two shows at Frederick College among others.

Her awards include an award for the Chesapeake Art Guild

Jaycees Entertain Students

Eleven foreign students attending the Naval Guided Missiles School at Dam Neck were guests of the Virginia Beach Jaycees for dinner on Nov. 25 at the Black Angus Restaurant.

The dinner was part of an overall program in international relations designed to provide the foreign students with an insight into the American way of life and to promote better understanding of the customs, attitudes, and traits among all the participants involved. To this end a Jaycee has been assigned as a sponsor to each foreign student bringing the student into his home, church, and family activities, thereby acting as a good will ambassador for Virginia Beach, the state and the country.

The guest speaker was Capt. Mitchell, Royal Navy, presently serving on Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic Fleet Staff (SACLANT) as the Director of Strategic Policy and Long Range Objectives. His topic was "NATO-Past, Present, and Future". Additionally there was a presentation to the students on the activities and organization of the Jaycees, not only locally, but nation and worldwide.

Comedy Previews Thursday

Lake Wright Dinner Playhouse on Northampton Blvd., at the Virginia Beach-Norfolk city limits opens the comedy hit "See How They Run", Friday Nov. 28.

The play enjoyed a long run both on Broadway and in London, before touring the United States.

A preview showing Thanksgiving night will also be open to the public, according to producer Timothy L. Jones. The performance will be a special family night production.

Several members of the cast are from Virginia Beach, including Norrie Martin, Anne Pennington, Peter Scoppa and Joyce Williams.
